British Columbia's Social Credit government almost emptied the provincial treasury today in a budget filled with a sweeping series of vote-catching handouts.

Topping the list of the goodies is a reduction in the sales tax to four per cent except for liquor effective at midnight tonight.

It is the second cut in as many years and brings the sales tax to its lowest level in B.C. in 25 years.

The tax on liquor remains at the two-year-old level of seven per cent.

B.C. now has the second lowest sales tax rate in Canada after Alberta which has no sales tax at all.

The government also announced a $100 jump in the homeowner grant bringing the annual total tax relief for property owners up to $380.

For senior citizens, this year's raise boosts the grant to an annual total of $580.

The budget — the fourth under Premier Bill Bennett — appears almost certain to take the province into an early election.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe in presenting the 60-page budget document to the house this afternoon called it "One of the most important in the history of the province."

Asked if it heralds an election Wolfe smiled and said, "It looks good enough to be one,"

But he quickly pointed out everyone said last year's was almost certainly an election budget.

The provincial government will spend $4.56 billion, an increase of more than five per cent over the last year fiscal year which ended Sunday.

Revenues are estimated to equal expenditures for a balanced budget, Wolfe said.

Health, education and welfare again eat up the lion's share of taxpayers money, with both health and education each exceeding the $1 billion mark for the second successive year.

Health costs are set at $1.2 billion or a quarter of the entire budget.

Education adds $1.1 billion and human resources another $648 million.

The spending for the three ministries totals $2.98 billion, almost equal to the NDP's entire budgetary expenditures in their last year of government four years ago.

The sales tax reduction is expected to cost the province $133 million.

But consumers are spending more than the governednt anticipated last year. For example, at the current five per cent rate, sales tax will bring into provincial coffers $50 million more than estimated in last year's budget.

Wolfe said the sales tax decrease is the equivalent of a $70 tax reduction for every B.C. family.

A number of items such as vitamins, dietary supplements, diabetic and ostomy supplies are exempted completely from sales tax effective immediately.

The increased homeowner's grant will cost the province $55 million more according to figures released by Wolfe.

In addition to using up the surpluses, the government is providing tax relief in other areas including an increase in the renter's grant to a maximum of $150 from $100.

Wolfe also announced a slight reduction in the provincial personal income tax from 46 per cent of the federal tax level to 44 per cent.

There will be a further personal income tax break next year for those with low incomes.

Postal Unrest Feared In Wake Of Pay Award

OTTAWA (CP) — The binding contract settlement imposed on 23,000 inside postal workers "is even worse than the union expected," Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said today.

"The mediator-arbitrator has, with one stroke, taken away many of the major protections we have achieved over the last 12 years, protections in such areas as shop stewards' rights and responsibilities, surveillance and severance pay," Parrot said.

Postal workers are forbidden by law to strike during a federal election campaign.

Parrot said he "cannot take responsibility" for the postal workers' reaction to the report.

"What will be the reaction of our members? It is too early to say," Parrot said.

"The mood of the membership will probably be a sad one. No doubt the first reaction will be to walk out — that will be on the minds of everyone."

Union leaders were not instructing a walkout.

Parrot said he hopes the postal workers will get together "and prepare for the next fight."

The binding settlement, effective to the end of 1979, did not deal with problems arising from technological change or the organization of work — two key clauses of the dispute in the first place, Parrot said.

He was speaking at a news conference an hour before going to court to face criminal charges of defying Parliament's back-to-work order to inside postal workers last October.

Four other national executives of the union are also in court today.

"I don't want to say too much about it right now," said Parrot as he prepared to enter the court. But he said the union will not be destroyed if leaders are put in jail.

Facing charges with Parrot are union officers Leroy Hiltz, David Jones, Sid Baxter and Andre Beauchamp.

The union will work to recover its losses in the next round of bargaining.

Basically there were no changes in the old contract provisions on technological change and the use of casual employees. But the union felt the old contract provisions were inadequate and was pushing for improvements.

The post office must consult the union in advance of the implementation of new technological changes and it must offer overtime work to regular employees before hiring casual workers.

The union complains that the post office regularly violated those provisions in the past and it was asking for the right to veto any proposed technological changes that would adversely affect members. The union also had asked for an end to the use of casual, non-union employees in the post office.

Parrot said the wage settlement awarded by Tremblay is lower than the post

$4,300 Grabbed

City police today are looking for a suspect who snatched a bank deposit bag containing $4,300 Sunday night.

A police spokesman said Vlasta Liscar had just closed Johnny's Coffee Shop, 893 Fort, and was walking to a parking lot at the rear of the building at 8:14 p.m. when a man jumped out from the shadows, grabbed the bag and ran off.

BCRIC Costs $15M

The distribution of free B.C. Resources Investment Corporation shares to every eligible British Columbian will cost $15 million, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe admitted today.

Wolfe recently said he had no idea how much the distribution of the BRIC would cost and denied Opposition suggestions that the total cost could exceed $20 million.

But in presenting the 1979-80 provincial budget to the legislature today, Wolfe revealed details of the share giveaway costs.

Banks and other financial institutions will receive $9 million for handling the applications, $3 million goes to printing and a further $3 million for data processing.

Asked about the cost at a press conference, Wolfe said the NDP and Conservatives had been projecting a cost of more than $24 million.

Hydro Needs $671M

B.C. Hydro estimates it will need another $671 million during the 1979-80 fiscal year, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said today.

In his budget speech he said Hydro already has $350 million towards that amount and the remainder will come from various pension plans and sinking funds.

The minister also said legislation will be introduced during the current session allowing Hydro to increase its borrowing limit to $5.65 billion from $4.9 billion.

Last year, Hydro was given more than $476 million — $125 million from provincial trusteed funds and $51.8 million from Canada Pension Plan funds.

U.S. Truckers Off the Road

WASHINGTON (WP) — In response to selective strikes by the Teamsters, the U.S. trucking industry locked out the union Sunday — effectively halting much of the country's freight traffic.

The action followed failure of union and industry bargainers to agree on a new three-year contract by their Saturday-midnight deadline.

There was no immediate word on whether the Carter administration would seek a back-to-work order.

The shutdown is an outgrowth of administration pressure to keep wage and benefit increases for the 300,000 trucking members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters within anti-inflation guidelines.

In announcing the "defensive shutdown," Trucking Management Inc., bargaining agent for more than 500 companies, said it had "no alternative but to instruct its member associations and authorizing carriers to shut down their operations."

"The union's "selective" strike, which encompassed some of the nation's largest as well as economically most vulnerable freight lines, "will cause a major disruption in trucking transportation, not a limited or selective stoppage," TMI said.

Meanwhile, as a stop-gap measure, the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized its local agents to grant temporary permits to any trucker seeking to provide "needed service."

Meet The Stars

Veteran actress Geraldine Page has won just about every award except an Oscar and she has a strong chance for her first one on April 9 for her performance in Interiors.

Born in 1924, she was prominent on the Broadway stage in the 1940s and began working in movies in 1953. Just one year later she had an Academy Award nomination, but no Oscar, for her role in Hondo.

In 1978 she gave a strong performance in Interiors, a moody Woody Allen film that drew mixed reviews despite its five Oscar nominations.

It was not nominated as best film.

The Times and *VI90*are sponsoring a Visit the Stars contest, offering readers a chance on a trip for two to Hollywood for those who correctly predict the Oscar winners for best actor, best actress and best movie.

There are also five major runner-up prizes.

Full rules and the official entry form is in an advertisement today on page 16.

Bubble Shrinks, Reactor Cooling

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The crippled Three Mile Island nuclear reactor is steadily cooling down and the dangerous hydrogen bubble that blocked final shutdown efforts appears to have shrunk dramatically, a top nuclear Regulatory Commission official reported today.

"I think it is certainly safer than yesterday," said Harold Denton, NRC operations chief at the site, referring to the bubble which not only blocked final shutdown operations but also posed the risk of an internal reactor explosion.

Thousands of area residents, however, remained poised to evacuate if necessary. All they needed was word from Gov. Dick Thornburgh.

The evacuation plan that civil defence authorities of six counties surrounding the plant are ready to put into effect could eventually clear 636,000 people out of an area within 20 miles of the plant.

Denton said he still wanted to doublecheck mathematical equations used to guess at the size of the bubble before saying with certainty the bubble had dramatically decreased in size. He said the calculation had been satisfactory while the bubble size was steady, but may be flawed now because it leaves out other vital considerations.

"It is going down (in size)," Denton said. "We just don't know how much."

He also reported that general radiation levels outside the plant were declining although radiation inside the concrete containment building surrounding the reactor were at lethal levels.

Denton also announced at a news conference at the nearby Middletown town hall that the NRC has advised the operators of seven other reactors using the same Babcock and Wilcox cooling system to take steps to assure their plants could overcome the type of pump failure that triggered the Three Mile Island crisis Wednesday. He said some of those reactors reportedly had been shut down.

He also said federal inspectors were being sent to each of those power plants.

The improved outlook followed a visit at the plant Sunday by President Carter — himself a trained nuclear engineer — and Gov. Thornburgh. They donned bright yellow protective boots, personally inspected the plant on the Susquehanna River island and reported the situation "stable."

Denton said only two uranium fuel elements in the reactor at midday were over 400 degrees (F). At the same time Sunday, readings over 500 degrees were reported.

"The plant is still being cooled," he said. "Fuel temperatures are still dropping."

He said the temperature in the containment dome was 90 degrees and the pressure was one pound per square

Stoney to Probe NDP Furore

The provincial executive of the NDP has directed president Gerry Stoney to come to Victoria Tuesday to sort out the controversy over the one-vote nomination win by Frank Mitchell in Esquimalt-Port Renfrew provincial riding.

Stoney today said the provincial executive will not make any formal ruling until after a meeting Tuesday night with the Esquimalt NDP executive.

He refused further comment as did Mitchell and the man he beat, John Brewin.

The provincial executive met over the weekend on a protest lodged on behalf of Brewin by Esquimalt Ald. Larry Mann.

The constitution committee of the executive expressed concern with procedures carried out at the March 25 nominating meeting where Mitchell won by a single vote when constituency chairman Bill Doneley voted twice.

Doneley said at the time that under Robert's Rules of Order he could vote once as a delegate and again to break a tie. The first ballot ended in a tie 225 to 225 and Doneley voted a second time, giving the victory to Mitchell.

Some provincial executive members said they could not find any justification for the chairman voting twice either under Robert's Rules of Order or the NDP constitution.

If the constituency executive cannot come up with a solution satisfactory to all parties, then the provincial executive may intervene.

Mitchell, an Esquimalt policeman and a former MLA for the riding, first ran as an NDP candidate 28 years ago.

Brewin is a city lawyer. He was president of the provincial NDP until he was succeeded by Stoney in 1978.

Thomson Boosts Ante

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Thomson returned today to the fray in a takeover battle for retail giant Hudson's Bay Co.

The Thomson family interests announced they will raise their all-cash bid by $4 to $35 a share to counter an earlier offer of $40 a share by George Weston Ltd.

Weston's offer, made last week, was for all cash or half in cash and half in stocks.

When Weston made its unexpected offer, Thomson responded by saying he would not change his March 15 bid of $31 a share for 51 per cent of HBC shares, apparently capitulating to the big food retail chain.

In a statement, Thomson said the new offer will no longer be conditional on the deposit of any minimum number of shares.

"Accordingly, if 13,855,000 or fewer shares are deposited under the offer, all shares deposited will be purchased," the statement said.

"If more than 13,855,000 shares are deposited, the offers will purchase 13,855,000 shares on a pro-rated basis."

Braking Defect Probed In VWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced today it is investigating a suspected safety defect in the braking systems of more than 400,000 Volkswagen cars.

The investigation, which could lead to a recall, centres on 1975 and 1976 Rabbits and Sciroccos and 1974 through 1976 Audi Foxes and Dashers. The agency said these cars may have diminished braking performance because of faulty seals in the brake master cylinders.

Postal Award Angers Parrot

office's first offer. The last contract expired June 30, 1977.

Permanent employees will receive a lump-sum payment of $200 for the last six months of 1977 and $618 for 1978. The salary of mail handlers was $6.13 an hour when the last contract expired. It will go to $6.98 an hour, retroactive to July 1, 1978, and to $7.25 an hour July 1, 1979.

Parrot said a large part of that increase was taken from the cost-of-living allowance that members already were receiving.

The arbitration report also provides for an end to the cost-of-living allowance at the end of 1979.

Parrot said the Tremblay report was politically motivated. The government appointed Tremblay because it knew he was inexperienced in labor relations and "was not pro-union."

Parrot said postal workers "will do their best to make sure the Liberal government is not re-elected in the May 22 election."

"We will work against the Conservatives too. They are no better."

Tremblay rejected the union's request for a reduction in the work week to 35 hours from 40 hours, but he agreed to the CUPW request for two daily rest periods of 15 minutes each. The rest periods used to be 10 minutes each.

The cost-of-living allowance, which was $1.04 an hour Dec. 31, 1978, will be reduced because Tremblay agreed to the employer's request for partial inclusion of the allowance into rates of pay.

Therefore, the cost-of-living allowance dropped to 51 cents an hour, effective Jan. 1, 1979, and will go to 39 cents an hour July 1, 1979.

Tanzanians Renew Attack on Kampala

Times News Services

Tanzanian forces stepped up their war against President Idi Amin today with an air attack on Jinja, Uganda's second-largest city, and renewed shelling of Kampala, his capital, after apparently pushing his Libyan defenders back, diplomatic sources reported in the Kenyan capital of Nairobi.

Residents of Jinja, 80 kilometres east of Kampala, said three fighters made a brief bombing run over the city but missed their target, the local army garrison.

Instead, their bombs fell near the Libyan Arab Uganda Bank, doing little damage and causing few casualties, the sources said.

The Tanzanian air force made its first attack of the war on Sunday, cratering the main runway of the international airport at Entebbe.

Ugandan exiles in Nairobi, however, expressed surprise at the raid on Jinja. Some of them suggested the attackers were Amin's Libyan allies threatening the Ugandan troops at Jinja, who the exiles said have refused to go into action against the invasion force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles.

The diplomats said the Tanzanian planes came from a base near Mwanza, 250 kilometres to the south across Lake Victoria. The strike was believed to be in retaliation for an attack Thursday by a Libyan bomber on Mwanza.

The official Yugoslav newspaper Politika reported from Kampala that 600 more Libyan troops have been landed at Entebbe despite the Tanzanian shelling of the airport, increasing the Libyan force supporting Amin to an estimated 2,600 men.

If nothing else, Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi's decision to back Amin to the hilt has placed Tanzanian president Julius Nyerere in a most uncomfortable position, according to one Nairobi analyst quoted by the Washington Post.

Nyerere already has alienated many African leaders who, whatever their personal distaste for Amin, are worried by the precedent of Tanzanian violation of another black African sovereign state's frontiers.

The Tanzanian leader also may have jeopardized his expeditionary force inside Uganda. Specialists question that any other black African army is ready to commit troops to help his invading force now that the Libyans have jumped in with both feet.

Trade Surplus Dips by 50%

OTTAWA (CP) — A modest trade surplus of $146 million was recorded in February, less than half the January surplus of $352 million.

Statistics Canada today attributed the drop in the monthly trade balance mainly to a fall in exports, especially of manufactured goods. The federal agency noted substantial decreases in foreign sales of lumber, wood pulp, iron and steel products and food and beverages.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, exports declined by 8.1 per from the previous month to $4.72 billion.

Imports for the month were down by 4.1 per cent to $4.58 billion.

Statistics Canada said the sharp contrast between the January and February trade figures appears to be part of a pattern which has developed in the last half-year, in which a month with a large trade surplus is followed by a less favorable trade performance.

No explanation for this alternating pattern was given, but the agency said monthly trade figures often fluctuate widely and it is best to look for a long-term trend.

The February trade figures, like those for January, were issued one week later than used to be government practice. One reason for the delay is that inaccurate preliminary information created havoc in the country's money markets last summer and was partly blamed for the dollar's instability.

The decline in exports of manufactured goods was matched by a similar drop in imports of end products, especially industrial machinery, equipment and tools and food and beverages.

26 Killed In U.S. Blaze

FARMINGTON, Mo. (UPI) — At least 26 people were killed today and several others injured in a fire that swept through the Wayside Inn Nursing Home, authorities said.

Capt. Matt Haug, commander of Company D of the 1140th engineer batallion at the National Guard Armory, said a temporary morgue had been set up at the armory.

Brezhnev Reported Critical

LONDON (AFP) — The health of Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev has deteriorated sharply in the last 48 hours, according to The Daily Express.

The newspaper says that specialists in arterial sclerosis from five Western countries are examing Brezhnev.

Citing information reaching Paris, the paper says Brezhnev's doctors have been joined by specialists from the United States, Britain, West Germany, Switzerland and Austria.

The newspaper also quotes a businessman familiar with Soviet affairs as saying that Brezhnev's life cannot be prolonged for very long.

Arterial sclerosis is a disease of the ciculatory system leading to a hardening of the arteries, chiefly those of the heart.

the weather

Weather over the province continues to be unsettled with weak systems pushing along the coast from the northwest. Occasional precipitation will occur over coastal districts particularly on the north coast and the outer south coast. This precipitation will become more persistent tonight and Tuesday over coastal regions. Inland, variable amounts of cloud and sun are forecast on both days with precipitation in the form of a few flurries over the central interior while showers or flurries will occur from time to time in the southern interior.

That Was No Joke, Says Bound Farmer

An East Coulée, Alberta, farmer who says he was tied up by three escaped prisoners Sunday had a difficult time explaining the adventure to his wife. "She thought I was pulling an April Fool's joke," said Pete Gruber, 56. Gruber who farms near the Drumheller Correctional Institute, said the three men tied him up after he stopped to investigate an open door at his neighbor's home. He says he escaped five minutes after they drove off in his truck. The three were arrested later in the day in Calgary.

It was just like the good old days of Your Show of Shows — back in ths 1950s when television was young and innocent and Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca were just about the funniest comedy duo around. They were back together Sunday in Hollywood — at the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences' 23rd annual ball. With Caesar and Coca — who debuted their comedy hour on Feb. 25, 1950 and folded it on June 5, 1954 — were producer Mark Liebman, and Mel Brooks, Carl Reiner and Neil Simon. All three wrote scripts for the show and Reiner was a regular in the cast.

Marvin Mitchelson, the Los Angeles divorce specialist who has spent weeks battling on behalf of Michelle Triola Marvin in her support dispute with Lee Marvin, came to New York Sunday and promptly got into another battle — with a bus driver. Unable to get a cab en route to a news conference at Nirvana restaurant, and to confer with fellow lawyer Roy Cohn about his next big case — that of Bianca Jagger against Rolling Stone Mick — he boarded a bus. But he had no change — only a dollar bill. So the driver ordered him off. Mitchelson refused — says the "correct change only law" is unconstitutional. He settled out of court when a fellow passenger broke his bill.

The judge who presided over the Watergate case says Richard Nixon should have been indicted and sent to prison if convicted. U.S. District Court Judge John Sirica left little doubt he is convinced the former president would have been found guilty if tried for the Watergate coverup. Sirica said in a television interview he first thought Gerald Ford was right in pardoning Nixon because "maybe the country had had enough of Watergate. But as the case dragged on ... when I had more time to reflect on what happened and so forth, I would have rather seen Mr. Nixon face an indictment with the presumption of innocence," he said.

When Charlie Douglas got his Road Gang together he had the highways to himself from Canada to Key West, and he knew where he was going. Now there's a detour ahead. Douglas, 45, pioneered the all-night radio program aimed at the truck driver. From his cramped booth at WWL radio in New Orleans, he beams country music, road conditions and down-home chit-chat to drivers all over the United States and Canada. Weather reports are given along interstate highways, rather than by region; the music is heavy on Red Sovine, and commercials are for water pumps, CB radios, truck stops and other truck services. But if proposed changes in federal regulations go through, his signal will reach only to about Columbia, S.C., and Springfield, Ill. — not bad by most standards, but pretty puny for WWL and the rest of the two dozen 50,000-watt clear-channel stations in the United States.

Wendy Masako Yoshimura, once a fugitive companion to Patricia Hearst, says she's happy with the "quiet, peaceful life of a struggling artist. Hardly anyone recognizes me on the street," she said in an interview. "People are fickle, they forget easily." Ms. Yoshimura, who faces a 15-year prison sentence for weapons violations if an appeal is rejected, didn't go to her onetime friend's marriage Sunday. "She's a media person, she's THE Patty Hearst," said the 36-year-old artist during an interview before the wedding. "If I was (invited), I probably wouldn't go."

Maggie Tells of Suicide Bid

In her book Beyond Reason, Margaret Trudeau says she once tried to plunge a kitchen knife into her breast after her husband accused her of being unfaithful.

A report in the Toronto Star says that in the book that Mrs. Trudeau reveals she fell madly in love with a "high-powered American" at the Celebrity Pro Tennis Tournament in New York five years ago.

"OK," she screamed at Prime Minister Trudeau when he confronted her with being unfaithful. "I've fallen in love."

"You are sick," he told her when she grabbed a knife and ran out into the snow.

The episode took place in 1974, when Trudeau had just won a decisive election victory and the couple was ostensibly still happily married.

Elsewhere in the book, Margaret says that she once spent eight hours stoned on mescaline sitting in a tree thinking she was a bird.

In the first of a series of excerpts from the book published in the London Daily Express she also says that her first impressions of her future husband were that he "was very old and very square."

She was sunbathing on a raft when Mr. Trudeau, who was then justice minister, approached her and said, "What are you doing here" and "What do you study?"

Margaret was not impressed. "Oh no, not another politician, was all I thought at the time. I wasn't particularly impressed. I even stood him up one day. I went off with Yves (her French boyfriend at the time) instead. I was young and romantic. Pierre struck me as very old and very square."

Mrs. Trudeau's first experience with drugs came during her last years at university.

"It was easy to get marijuana. We grew it in our gardens in the summertime or bought the grass that came up cheap from Mexico and California. I did try mescaline one day and spent eight hours sitting up a tree thinking I was a bird."

After graduation, Mrs. Trudeau travelled to a "hippie commune" in Agadir, Morocco.

From Agadir she drifted on to a village called Eureka.

After finally "growing bored with the promiscuity and the emptiness of the hippie life" Mrs. Trudeau returned to Vancouver only to have her mother call one day and say her "old boyfriend," the Prime Minister, wanted a date.

This time she found herself attracted. "I liked the charm, the boyish ways, and couldn't stop myself sneaking a look at his legs. He once was given the award of being the man with the most beautiful legs in the world."

After dinner and dancing, the Prime minister encouraged her to move to Ottawa. But she did not need much encouragement.

"At that instant I had decided that I wanted this man for myself," she wrote.

A simplistic solution

When Health Minister Bob McClelland stepped in last year to appoint a temporary administrator of Vancouver General Hospital and suspended the regularly-elected board of directors and the chief administrator, the move was welcomed. Someone had to stop the destructive internal squabbling at the province's biggest and most important medical facility.

Patient care was suffering because of budget restrictions — imposed by McClelland's own department — which forced reductions in nursing staff. Several nursing supervisors resigned in protest over the hospital administrator's handling of the crisis.

Now the hospital seems to be back on an even keel. Former RCMP assistant commissioner Peter Bazowski did a commendable job in getting the different factions at VGH to work together again. He was appointed with wide decision-making powers, but wisely listened to all sides before making any drastic changes.

The single disquieting development of Bazowski's tenure had nothing to do with him. McClelland himself decided to cancel the scheduled annual general meeting of the VGH membership, which elects the board of directors to supervise the hospital's affairs. A nasty clash between hundreds — possibly thousands — of pro- and anti-abortionists was shaping up and he thought such a potentially harmful conflict was the last thing the troubled hospital needed.

He might have been right at the time. Many disagreed. The democratic process may be messy and noisy but it has survived worse than propaganda battles over abortion.

But no one envisioned that the suspension of the 1978 hospital board elections and annual meeting would become permanent, which is what McClelland has lately threatened. He said recently that legislation eliminating the need for these annual rites would be introduced at this session of the legislature.

In itself, this is a dangerous enough development but what is worse, it shows signs of becoming a trend. Will the minister abolish all hospital boards and deny the public any direct role in running the hospitals?

He's done it once. It becomes easier the second time around. A takeover of a Vancouver health society earlier this year suggests McClelland's ministry is not going out of its way to preserve democratic participation in public health institutions.

At his urging, Vancouver city council seized control of the Downtown Community Health Society from a freely-elected board, admittedly in the midst of serious charges of scandal, election-rigging and general incompetence in the society. (It provides health care in the rundown eastside area of central Vancouver.)

These simple solutions dramatically cut through problems, but they set precedent which all too often has a tendency to become practice.

Hospital boards get in the way? Eliminate them. Do regional districts slow things down? Legislate them out of existence.

From an efficiency expert's stance, the appointment of professional decision-makers to run public affairs is a highly attractive proposition. No cumbersome public hearings or meetings. No voluble nuisance groups disrupting the even flow of proceedings. No "amateur" board members delaying meetings with uneducated questions.

The fact is that the direct involvement of ordinary citizens in government is inefficient. It is also open to abuse, as politicized small groups attempt to control organizations to serve their own ends rather than those of the general public.

But the beauty of democracy is that it is a self-correcting institution. The majority, given the opportunity, eventually dismisses those who would pervert the process.

Inefficient? Yes. A high price to pay? Yes, but not as high as the price paid to avoid public participation.

Bankrupt politics

The Liberal party, we're told, is afraid to emphasize the national unity issue too hard in the election campaign. Thus Prime Minister Trudeau is pushing his government's energy policy as a crucial factor in keeping the country together.

He pushed a little hard on Friday in a speech indicting Conservative leader Joe Clark as "mentally and morally bankrupt" because he lacks an energy policy.

This is the angry, fighting mad Trudeau whose tough talk is supposed to win back the disaffected voters, but such wild language is more likely to produce voter alienation. It doesn't do much for national unity, either.

JAMES RESTON

A vague, imprecise triumph

Jimmy Carter listens to Sadat, with Israel's Begin on the phone.

WASHINGTON — One of the paradoxes of this age of endless communications and negotiations is that the people and even the negotiators and historians are often left in doubt about what happened.

For example, with the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty we have come to the end of one of the most astonishing chapters in the history of 20th century diplomacy, but even Carter, Sadat and Begin have no complete record or common understanding of key elements in the treaty.

The reasons for this are fairly obvious. Many important talks on the Middle East struggle were held between President Carter and Prime Minister Begin, or between Carter and President Sadat, without anybody else present and without any recording or even summary of these conversations retained.

In other critical conversations — for example, the Carter-Sadat meeting at the Cairo Airport which is said to have produced the final compromise — Zbigniew Brzezinski of the White House staff was present part of the time and absent part of the time, and while he undoubtedly wrote his account of what was discussed and decided, the history of that dramatic event is still extremely vague.

Little in writing

A persuasive argument could be made for avoiding too many written documents, subject to too many different interpretations of the meanings of words in English, Arabic and Hebrew. Without a certain amount of ambiguity, maybe no agreement in the Middle East would have been possible.

Yet, it is clear from the debate in the Knesset in Jerusalem and in the statements out of Cairo in the last few days that the two sides are still far apart on the meaning of self-rule or autonomy for the Palestinians on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip. And the history of diplomacy is full of warnings about the dangers of imprecision.

"The vagueness and fluidity of democratic policy," wrote Harold Nicolson is his classic study, Diplomacy, "is one of its salient vices . . . There is the tendency of all democracies (and especially Anglo-Saxon democracies) to prefer a vague and comforting formula to a precise and binding definition . . . Thus it often occurs that democratic governments, by couching their statements of policy in vague or ambiguous language, invite the very dangers which they wish to prevent.

"Nor is imprecision the only temptation to which a democratic statesman or diplomatist is exposed. In order that his policy may make an appeal to the ordinary man or woman, he is apt to emphasize the emotional, dramatic, or moral aspects of the situation and to suppress the practical aspects . . ."

This is not a bad but almost a precise definition of the tactics that led to the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty. And the choice of ambiguity over precision, which Nicolson deplored, may very well — almost certainly will — lead to trouble long after Carter, Begin and Sadat have retired from the world scene.

But meanwhile these three men have given the coming generation a chance. In the end it may have been something very personal and human — that is to say something very imprecise — that turned this 30-year tragedy around.

"The hardest question I have to answer," Golda Meir once said to me, "is when young people come to my door and ask me: 'What does it mean to be a Jew in Israel? Is it to be war for the rest of our lives? Is there to be any personal life, having our own children?' "

I heard the same theme many years ago from President Nasser and not so long ago from Sadat. What about the misery of the poor fedayeen in Egypt? Is there no way to change the question?

Carter, Begin and Sadat have not come up with any conclusive answers, but despite all their past struggles, and inevitable future difficulties, they have changed the question, and have brought American power into the Middle East in defence of its principles.

Changed the question

This is an achievement of historic importance, however it comes out. But these three men have a responsibility to their countries and to history they have not yet fulfilled. They have not kept the record of this extraordinary chapter of history between the Jews and the Arabs, between the Middle East and the industrial world of the United States, Europe and Japan, or recorded the influence of the Soviet Union, China and the pan-Islamic revolution on the side.

Obviously, all the documents of U.S. - Israeli - Egyptian negotiations that led to this limited reconciliation between Cairo and Jerusalem cannot and probably should not be published. But it would be a tragedy if Carter, Begin and Sadat did not make an attempt, while it is still possible, to recover the documents and conversations that led to the compromise. Probably not for publication now, but at least for historians at the end of the century, who otherwise will never be able to understand how this long 30-year struggle in the Middle East reached the possibility of a new historical era.

Too negative

On the very evening Albertans gave Peter Lougheed an overwhelming vote of confidence, the lone NDPer in the provincial legislature lamented that it was a "sad day for democracy." How absurd!

The electors of our neighboring province were not dragged to the polls at gunpoint, nor were they handed a ballot with only one name as in the USSR. The people in their wisdom freely chose a strong government with a free enterprise small opposition.

But there is word, that is probably true, that the "opposition" has lost most — if not all — sight of the purpose for which it was established, both at provincial and federal levels. The original purpose of the opposition was to assist the government to function effectively, by suggesting amendments to proposed legislation, by offering advice on matters under discussion, by introducing new ideas or practical and effective means to carry on a project in the public interest.

I did follow the campaign which preceded the Alberta vote. The opposition was very negative, condemning the Heritage Fund and many other aspects of the Lougheed government: in this way, the opposition condemned itself to defeat.

What happened in Alberta is repeated right here in our own province. The opposition is always, relentlessly and continuously, condemning the government for everything it does or doesn't do: the five free shares are dismissed as "election gimmick," the speech from the throne contains nothing good (except the promise of a dental care scheme about which we know nothing) and so on. The past session of the legislature was marred by over-long sittings and too much talking. Some members of the opposition talked to physical exhaustion.

The present provincial government well deserves some adverse criticism and much needed improvement in some areas. If the premier, the cabinet ministers and their staff made the effort of going over all the editorial correspondence which appeared in our dailies in the last two or three months, they would have some ideas about public concerns. By the same token, the opposition should come out with some positive and enlightened criticism instead of rousing speeches which are of no help to solve any problems in a rational, intelligent way. For, if it goes on doing nothing better than pointing an accusing finger at the government, it does not deserve a better fate than what it got in Alberta. — E.J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

An opportunity

Those free shares offered to every citizen of British Columbia, what does that really mean?

There are two possible opinions, a negative one and a positive one. Let's start with the negative one, so well defined and expressed by the NDP. They have for two months now, gone on public record by saying that they will oppose the distribution of those free shares. They stimulate people to sell their shares in pubs, beer parlors, on the street, etc. They are saying that the shares are worthless yet want people to give those "worthless" shares to the NDP. Why?

Some even need the shares for wallpaper for their expensive waterfront homes. In short, they are portraying a totally negative and incorrect picture. Then after two months all of a sudden the NDP completely reverses its views because of political consequences. They found out that the people at large are most definitely in favor of this concept.

Now the positive side by the Social Credit party, the Liberal party and to some extent, the PC party. Aside from getting those free shares, which means real ownership to the individual, the future sale of more shares at the discounted price will represent a unique opportunity for people of B.C. to invest in the future of B.C. This will prevent control from drifting away into the hands of outsiders.

By buying more shares at the discounted price, we will be able to invest more in our province, with obvious economical and psychological benefits. It also means less borrowing from other sources and unknown Arab countries. Almost everyone can and will buy more shares at the special rate, rather than gambling on horses, lottery tickets, etc.

Shares could be given as a birthday present, wedding, anniversary, bonuses, incentives, etc. The Social Credit government trusts people with private ownership, rather than big government ownership. My suggestion and advice is to buy as many shares as possible, because we will never see a golden opportunity like this again. — Paul Reitsma, 4917 Argyle Street, Port Alberni.

Insulting report

In response to an article in Weekend magazine dated March 3, we the ladies of the diocese of Victoria lodge our complaint against the cheap sensationalism and lack of responsibility shown by the magazine, and reporter Stephen Williams in the publication of the article Confessions of an Ex-Priest.

We believe that the treatment of this very delicate and serious subject was made insulting and lacking in the dignity which it deserves. We realize that the priesthood is a difficult vocation, and many men will experience serious difficulties, but we believe the treatment to this problem should be dealt with in a more sympathetic manner. The vow of celibacy is and always will remain one of the most difficult conditions to man.

We hope that due consideration will be taken when reporting on such delicate matters, and that Weekend's reporter realizes his responsibility to have a balanced opinion. In this way it will serve a more constructive role in society. — Sheila Joseph, Secretary, Victoria Diocese, Catholic Women's League of Canada.

Obscenities

At the risk of offending all those free spirits who seem to feel that the use of offensive language in a play, book or film is mandatory in order to set a mood, create an atmosphere etc., I feel I must protest the use of said language in the play The Shadow Box. I never did find out whether the play was good or bad, since we walked out after only 25 minutes — that was all we could stand.

If we are to continue to be subjected to such obscenities, would it be too much to ask to have a warning printed in the McPherson advertisements, such as appear in ads for films.

As far as the claimed necessity for such language is concerned, may I recommend that our believers in realism see the TV movie, The Jericho Mile — an excellent film with absolutely nothing distasteful in it of any kind, yet with an almost all-male cast and set in a prison. None of the horror and reality is lost; the frustration and the pain came through loud and clear, conveyed only by superb acting. — P. Dyson, Victoria.

Great sales

Take note, sponsors of great sales: those who offer a special on school shoes in October; those who, once the rainy season is over, have a sale on raincoats; Air Canada which is offering a price reduction from March 27 to May 7, when the school Easter break is March 25-30.

Thanks a lot! Our school board tries hard to organize a time for children and parents to be together, maybe even travel in Canada, and then the Air Canada promotion department cannot even get the dates correct.

Air Canada may have a nice full page ad, but it is two days off a good thing. Hope the public sees through it. So much for promoting travel in Canada again. — Terri Brend, 1275 Queensbury Avenue.

Just like a Big Mac?

It's Jupiburger

In the Times of March 21 you ran a story entitled Jupiter in Some Ways Like Earth, a very interesting and enlightening article.

I must, however, insist that the picture that accompanied the article convinced me more than the actual words I read. Never before have I seen a better looking picture of one of the world's leading products . . . the immortal hamburger, the Big Mac itself, complete with sesame seeds, etc.

Are you sure this is not just another promotion? Could it be the Sky Lab is just another venture by the big chain and that its sole occupant is none other than Ronnie Mac himself? If the chain doesn't grab onto this one and get some mileage out of it, they should change their advertising agents. How about "Try one of our Jupiburgers, cooked with solar heat"? Or, "Our Jupiburgers will send you out of this world." The concept is unlimited . . . that is, of course, if they didn't slip the picture in as a promotion in the first place to draw comments like this from people like me. They do it all for us. — W. Burton, Victoria.

'An architecture for the people'

By WOLF VON ECKARDT
The Washington Post

Mark Girouard, the British architecture historian, who held an all-day seminar at the Smithsonian recently, has given us more than a fascinating account of "life in the English Country House." He has found a way to get educated people interested in architecture again. That will not only enrich the educated; it will also help improve architecture and our "built environment," as the jargon has it.

Architects of our time are getting away with what they are getting away with because their clients (ultimately all of us) have only a vague idea of what we expect of them and no idea of what they are talking about.

For example: "There is a focus in my architecture on dematerializations," the noted Chicago architect Stanely Tigerman wrote in the current issue of Quest magazine. The focus, Tigerman said, is on "buildings in which the scale is ambiguous, ones made out of materials that, unlike wood or brick, are not tactile or identifiable, but something else. Then the house begins to be nothing. It is no longer couched in the conventional language of 'house.' One enters a disorienting, shifting dream world."

One surely does.

Architectural history, the way it is told by most historians, does little to orient us. They give us mostly Who Struck John, irrelevant genealogy and cost accounting:

"In 1973, no doubt inspired by Mansart, his neice Lorabelle had the south chimney extended by 3 1-2 feet at a cost of $97.50. The innate vitality of the now Italianate masses are expressing Bernini-like variations of the plasticity of the order in concert with the advance and recession of the plane of the wall."

Yawn.

We are seldom, if ever, told about the lives and aspirations of the people who created the building, about the lifestyle that shaped the architectural style, which in turn shaped the lifestyle.

This is what Girouard does so magnificently. In telling us about 500 years of English country houses, he also tells us about the 500-year rule "of an integrated and powerful class, which knew the kind of buildings it wanted and had the confidence and money to produce them."

Girouard's readers and listeners are enthralled. Girouard's Smithsonian seminar the other day went on from 10 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. and was attended by 300 people, some 150 having been turned away for lack of space. The beautifully designed and illustrated book ($25, Yale University Press) is a best-seller in Britain and is selling extremely well in the U.S.

"I suppose much of this is nostalgia," Girouard told me in a brief interview before his marathon seminar.

He is a lean, tall youngish-looking man of 48, wearing thick glasses, a shy, scholarly air and a burgundy velvet suit — the perfect picture of an Oxford don. The book is based on a series of Oxford lectures, but Girouard now lives in London, devoting all this time to research and writing.

"The English country house," he continued, "is, of course, most everyone's dream house — not just in England, everywhere. It seems to have inspired most of what you see in American suburbia. So people are curious. In fact, that's what prompted me to do this book — curiosity. There are lots of books on the English country houses, but none tell you what went on inside."

In praise of the English country house

Girouard provides a feast of informational tidbits and anecdotes to nourish the curious. Royalty would deal with uppity noblemen, he tells us for instance, simply by visiting their country house. That mean exhaustive redecoration, if not an entire new wing — at punishing expense.

In a large part, the story of English country-house life is the story of the changing relationship between the lords and their servants and between community and privacy. In the medieval house, everyone ate together, usually in a rigid ritual that makes the Japanese tea ceremony look like an office Christmas party.

At certain medieval ceremonies, each course of a meal was often announced by a fanfare of music. The noblemen would take off their hats to greet the food. And so large was the feasting crowd and so great their enjoyment of it that it was one of the jobs of the ushers of the hall to walk up and down shouting "speak softly my masters."

The noise of this tribal togetherness, suggests Girouard, may have been one reason for the lord using the hall only as a symbol and eating his dinner in his chamber. As the servants were gradually moved out of sight, the top floor tended to be given over to the maids and man-servants in a dormitory known as "barracks."

Back stairs were invented and, aside from providing relative privacy, also brought an important change in English and, for that matter, Western society; they dissolved the single community, the enlarged household, like that of the Capulets and Montagues, in which all classes not only ate with their lord but were also protected by him in return for fierce loyalty. The gentry no longer mixed with the servants but with the gentry in the next country house. So did the servants. The solidarity of the clan was replaced by solidarity of class, with the power moving down the social scale to the largest class, from the gentry, to the middle class, to the working classes and proletariat.

The British nobility retreated into the saloon and developed an inexhaustible appetite for social life and, to a leser extent, culture. Sumptuous libraries, art galleries and, most importantly, smoking rooms were added to the country house. Tobacco, says Girouard, "had a stronger influence on Victorian planning than tea." He tells us how the decor of these rooms determined the decorum of the people in them and vice versa.

"I'd say the reason the English country houses are so satisfyng as architecture is that they are largely the creation of their clients, people who built for themselves and knew all about building," said Girouard at the end of the interview. Most architects were primarily general contractors.

"I wish architects today would also pay more attention to just how we live and want to live," Girouard said.

U.S. bringing back electric chair

By ROBERT CHESSHYRE

WASHINGTON — A lean, pallid young man will soon leave his cell on Florida's Death Row, where he has lived for five years, say goodbye to his friends among the 118 other men under sentence of death in that state, and go to the electric chair.

John Spenkelink's execution will be the first in the United States since 1967 of a man not willing to die. It will usher in a wave of judicial killings. There are over 480 men and five women under sentence of death in the United States, and the number grows by about two a week.

Moves to restore the death penalty have been creeping inexorably forward since previous laws were ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in 1972. Although public opinion has swung in favor of capital punishment, it is only just beginning to dawn on the American people that the electrocutions, gassings, shootings and poison injections are about to resume.

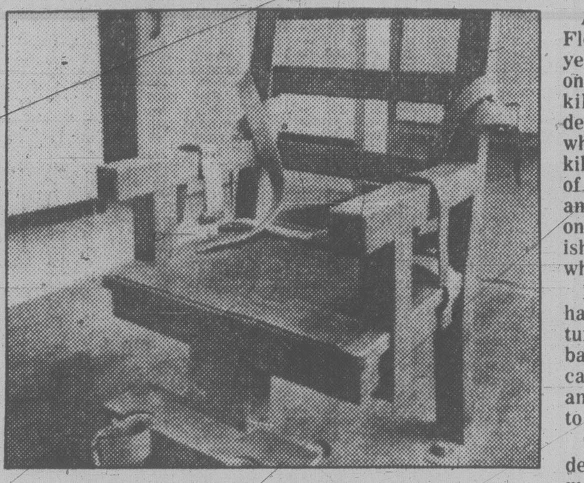
There were no executions between 1967 and 1972 because states were waiting for the Supreme Court verdict. In 1972 the 600 people who had accumulated in Death Row were all given life sentences.

Before Spenkeling, who was convicted of killing another criminal in an argument over money, dies, another man, John Evans, may be executed in Alabama. But Evans, like Gary Gilmore, the only man to have been executed in the past 12 years and who was killed by firing squad in Utah two years ago, wants to die, and is not pursuing an appeal system that can normally guarantee a macabre five-year gap between sentence and execution.

If Spenkelink dies, abolitionists estimate that up to another 20 people will be executed this year, with the numbers rapidly accelerating in the early 1980s, as states clear the final legal hurdles in rewriting death penalty laws and catch up with the backlog of executions.

Henry Swartzchild, director of the National Coalition Against the Death Penalty, said last week: "We are intent on vying with South Africa as the only other Western country that conducts executions on this scale, which is horrendous."

Nearly 420 of the condemned people are concentrated in 13 southern states, with Florida, Texas (106 on Death Row) and Georgia (75) — which has executed more people than any other state since records began — leading the way. "This state," said a Georgian lawyer, "is in a bloodthirsty mood."



Florida's chair for scheduled execution

What has enabled the death penalty to make this comeback since the 1972 Supreme Court ruling that it was not capital punishment itself but the way it was operated that was unconstitutional. The court found that the poor and the blacks were discriminated against, so breaching the Eighth Amendment by being a "cruel and unusual" punishment.

This sent states scuttling to redraft their laws, and in the South in particular it is an electoral asset to be pro capital punishment.

But abolitionists, pointing to the geographical bias of the application of the death penalty, the still overwhelming preponderance of the poor and the blacks facing execution, and above all to the correlation between the race of the victim and the sentence imposed, argue that capital punishment is being as arbitrarily applied as ever.

An analysis of murders in Florida over a recent five-year period shows that not one of the 111 white men who killed blacks received the death penalty, while the 72 whites on Death Row had all killed white men. The taking of a black life — even by another black — was only one-tenth as likely to be punished by death as taking a white life.

But the Supreme Court has for the foreseeable future rejected all arguments based on the arbitrary application of the death penalty, and in effect told the states to get on with it.

The campaign against the death sentence is therefore moving away from the courts and back into the area of public policy, with delegations visiting governors, and demonstrations planned outside jails when executions resume.

The Rev. Joe Ingle, who runs the Southern Coalition on Jails and Prisons and has got to know most of the men due to die soon, believes the death penalty has been sold by politicians as an abstraction and a panacea to check crime, but that when the executions resume revulsion will swing opinion back the other way.

The closet New Yorker

russell baker

NEW YORK — Outside the window at this very moment a man is parking a 20-foot car in a 19-foot space. He has been working at it for 10 minutes. It is a classic illustration of the New York temperament. If this man were a San Franciscan, he would give up and go play tennis. If a Washingtonian, he would already have a reserved parking space. Getting a reserved parking space is what Washington is all about. When it comes to parking, the true Washingtonian makes Machiavelli look like Anne of Green Gables.

The New Yorker, however, has to fit life into spaces too small for it. What he calls home would look like a couple of closets to most Americans, but the New Yorker manages not only to live there but also to grow trees and cockroaches right on the premises.

A window affording a view of the sky is something to boast about. Getting a seat on the subway is an exciting start to his day. On such a day, he suspects, the gods may even favor him with a lunch table expansive enough to contain not only his pastrami, but also a dish of pickles and a glass for the cream soda.

The sight of a 19-foot parking space makes him giddy with delight. The average $250,000 townhouse is only 17 feet wide. Is it a wonder that a 19-foot parking space looks to him like a berth fit for the QE2?

So he backs in with his 20-foot car, nudges the car parked behind him, calls on his horsepower and applies brute force to the car behind. Would he really be so unfeeling toward another car's gear box? Not unless he had to. He pulls out, cuts his wheels, goes into reverse, steps on the gas.

The machine behind, locked in parking gear, shudders under the impact, leaps back a few inches. He cuts his wheels, attacks the car in the front position. First he nudges it around the bumper with the soft nuzzling of a tentative seducer.

The front car declines to yield. He goes into reverse. Bashes rear bumper against rear car. Rear car shudders, leaps. Then — gear in forward position — slam on the gas — bang the front car. Everthing vibrates. Back he goes — bang — into the rear car. Forward — boom — into the front.

This goes on daily outside this window. Shattered pieces of red tail-light covers regularly litter the gutter. Whatever ruin occurs to automotive internal organs will become manifest only later when thousands of rush-hour motorists sit cursing another breakdown on the East Side Drive.

Once in awhile the owner of one of the parked cars under assault will arrive during the brutality and take exception to the violence. This raises the prospect of combat. Eagerness for combat is another New York characteristic. This is only natural. When you are trying to live a 20-foot life in a 19-foot space, you have to be ready to fight for every millimeter.

Although the papers regularly report homicides committed during parking quarrels, I have never seen one end in blood-letting outside the window here. Occasionally there will be a stream of vile language and threats to commit horrors, but so far the police have always arrived in the nick of time.

The most dangerous crises arise when two parkers simultaneously spot a 19-foot space and simultaneously start to pull into it. This leaves one car with its front end sticking out and the other with rear end blocking traffic. These impasses produce passions out of Italian opera. Threats, oaths, cries of hatred, tears, pledges to exact vengeance and screams of dismay from other cars jammed behind the blockade.

Trying to fit life into spaces too small for it takes a toll of civilization. Blood pressure among New Yorkers is probably always high. One goes through life most days with temperature just one degree below the boiling point. It takes very little to push it into the danger zone.

New Yorkers instinctively realize this about each other and, recognizing the danger, try to avoid encroaching on each other's limited life space.

This may be why New Yorkers instinctively avoid making eye contact with each other in crowded places, why they "look right through you," as dismayed visitors often complain. They are not looking right through you at all; they are discreetly avoiding an instrusion into your space. They sense the danger in a place where a one-degree temperature rise can mean an explosion.

A man newly arrived in town tells of parking his van at the curb in Greenwich Village one night, returning next morning and finding a message on the windshield. It said, "If this truck is parked here again it will be destroyed." He never parked it there again. He suspected the threat was probably bluster, but on the other hand, this being New York. . . .

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market fell sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today.

A trading halt imposed at the opening in shares of Hudson's Bay Co. was continued pending further news. Woodbridge Co. Ltd. and Thomson Equities (International) Ltd., holding companies of Thomson family interests, said they have increased their offer for control of Hudson's Bay.

The Thomsons said they now are offering $35 a share for 60 per cent of Hudson's Bay's common shares. Their previous offer was $31 a share for 51 per cent. Hudson's Bay, which has also recieved an offer for 51 per cent of common shares at $40 a share from George Weston Ltd., closed Friday at $33¾.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said class A and B convertible common shares of Canadian International Power Co. Ltd. will be removed from the trading list at the company's request at the close on April 6. The company has created a liquidating trust to complete the liquidation of the company for tax purposes.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped into a broad decline today amid renewed energy worries.

Analysts noted some relief over the latest news from the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., where an accident occurred last week.

General Public Utilities, parent company of the utility that operates the Pennsylvania plant, asked today that the trading halt it requested for its stock on Friday be continued.

Among other issues with links to the nuclear-energy industry, J. Ray McDermott was down ¾ to $18⅜; Westinghouse lost ⅝ to $18; Kerr-McGee fell 2½ to $48½, and General Electric dropped ⅞ to $47⅛.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices continued dropping in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange, with the composite index plummetting 2.43 to 246.59. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce dropped ⅛ at $26½, Consolidated Bathurst A ⅝ at $13¾, Inco ¼ at $23, Norcen Energy Resources ⅝ at $20¾, Shell Canada ⅜ at $19⅛, TransCanada PipeLines ⅛ at $19½, and Walker-Gooderham A ½ at $45¼. FCA International advanced five cents at $3.25 on a volume of 25,500, Stelco A ⅛ at $30⅛, and Bell Canada ¼ at $65¾. Among speculative issues, Silver Stack Mines advanced 20 cents at $2.85, on a volume of 15,000 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market rose fractionally near the close of light trading today. The Financial Times index was up 0.8 to 531.6. Oils gained and golds held steady while industrials were mixed. Canadian shares eased.

VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderately-active trading today.

Interpublishing was the only industrial traded early and was unchanged at $4.60 on a turnover of 100 shares.

Cosmos Resources led resource traders and dropped .57 to .85 on a volume of 25,900 shares. Kandahar Resources gained a dime to .95 on 21,500 shares, Silver Cristal added two cents to .35 on 13,000 shares and Wharf Resources was unchanged at $1.50 on 11,900 shares.

On the curb exchange, Consolidated Cinola Mines gained .80 to $5.75 to 13,700 shares and Beach Gold Mines added two cents to .32 on 10,000 shares.

Ashcroft Resources gained .12 to .96 on 6,000 shares and Mabee Minerals Inc. lost a penny to .59 on 4,500 shares.

Senior Clark Aide Neville a Tory-Come-Lately

NEVILLE

. . .zealous convert

By PAUL WHITELAW
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Their faces won't appear on campaign posters nor their names on any ballots. But they stand to be big winners on election day with powerful new jobs if Joe Clark — the man they serve as top-level advisers — becomes the 14th prime minister.

Although few Canadians will know their identity even after the eight-week campaign, voters will have passed judgment at the polls on their abilities as well as the Conservative leader's.

That's because, in a close race, the advice these half dozen-or-so people whisper into Clark's ear could be the margin between victory and shattered political dreams.

If anyone doubts the impact they can have on the public's perception of Clark's leadership, they need only think back to his gaffe-plagued January world tour.

The Tory leader was convinced by his senior aides that it was a "can't lose" proposition. It turned into a public relations disaster.

Clark, of course, could be criticized for his awkwardly stuffy performance on the international odyssey and for appearing, on occasion, to have been poorly briefed. Ultimately, he was responsible for deciding whether or not to accept the advice offered by his inner circle.

In a Tory government, that votes. He now describes the experience as "one of the great inner circle would be in line for jobs in the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) and, possibly, elsewhere in the federal government.

Clark's closest advisor in the race to the May 22 election — and chief architect of the world tour — is 43-year-old Chief of Staff Bill Neville.

A Rhodes scholar, Neville is a veteran behind-the-scenes powerbroker with a background in journalism, lobbying and government.

His commitment to the Conservative cause was a relatively late development in his varied career.

After working as a news agency reporter on Parliament Hill for eight years, Neville began his political career as executive assistant to former Liberal cabinet Judy LaMarsh. He later worked for another Liberal cabinet minister, Edgar Benson.

"Over the years between 1967 to 1971 — it wasn't something that happened overnight — I became increasingly unhappy with the style of the government," he ays.

Neville soon became a Tory, bringing with him a convert's zeal. Any doubts about his new commitment were erased in the 1974 election when he ran against former Liberal finance minister John Turner, losing by 11,000 kamikaze acts of all time."

Then-Conservative leader Robert Stanfield hired him as director of research the next year, a job he held until Clark won the leadership in 1976 and called on Neville to be his top aide.

While Neville is travelling with Clark, the day-to-day management of all the minute details of the campaign will be run from party headquarters in Ottawa by 42-year-old Lowell Murray.

As National Campaign Chairman, Murray has worked for nearly two years to set the overall tactics, message and style of the campaign.

Although Murray declines to speculate about a role for himself in a Tory government, he would be a contender for a top job in the PMO or bureaucracy. He is mentioned in speculation as a possible Privy Council Secretary.

A third key member of the Clark team is Tim Ralfe, a 39year-old former CTV correspondent who signed on in 1978 as the campaign media relations director.

He views his job as a personal crusade to defeat Trudeau.

Ralfe says no jobs have been promised him if the Tories win and he is unsure whether he wants to stay on after the election. He's keeping his options open.

Look Shows Grits, PCs Galluping for Dead Heat

TORONTO (CP) — Before you place a bet on the coming federal election, better take a look at the advance polls.

They do for politicians what the Daily Racing Form does for thoroughbreds — they call the odds. And they do so with astonishing accuracy.

In the last 21 federal elections in Canada, the Gallup Poll of Canada, a public opinion poll, predicted the outcome incorrectly only once.

As things now stand it's going to be neck-and-neck all the way.

The latest Gallup poll statistics, released March 7, showed the Liberal and the Conservatives uncomfortably close.

The Liberals were supported by 39 per cent of those voters who decided on a preference, the Tories 38 per cent and the NDP 19 per cent.

"I think what Gallup says in the most recent poll is right," says Sen. Keith Davey, Liberal campaign co-chairman. "It's definitely going to be a close fight."

In this kind of situation, pollsters are wary about trying to predict which party will win.

"It's a dead heat," says Peter Regenstreif, a University of Rochester professor who conducts political polls for a Toronto newspaper. "As matters stand now, I think the Tories would end up with a few more seats than the Liberals . . . It's too soon to tell.

"The Gallup poll shows only the way voters feel at the time the poll was taken. You have to keep on taking the public pulse up until deadline."

However, Clare Hatton, vice-president and research director for Gallup Poll of Canada insists there isn't usually a dramatic change from month to month in public opinion polls. She cites what happened in the last federal election:

In May, 1974, two months before the election, advance polls showed the Liberals at 40 per cent, Tories 33 per cent and NDP 21 per cent. In June, the figures were Liberals 42 per cent, Tories 34 per cent and NDP 18 per cent.

The actual election in July gave the Liberals 43 per cent of the vote, Tories 34 per cent and NDP 15 per cent.

Gallup poll officials are proud of their record of success — one wrong, 20 right — in measuring public opinion in the last 21 federal elections.

For its election forecasts, the Gallup poll conducts personal interviews with 1,000 Canadians more than 18 years old.

Dr. George Gallup, who started the whole thing in 1929 when he won a doctorate of philosophy from the University of Iowa for his polling methods, likes to quote Sherlock Holmes who, in The Sign of Four, put the theory as well as anyone: "While the individual man is an insoluble puzzle, in the aggregate he becomes a mathematical certainty."

Problems: Horner

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal Industry Minister Jack Horner says his chances of re-election in the Alberta riding of Crowfoot are suffering because of Prime Minister Trudeau's campaign for federal resource powers, but Trudeau's stand is the right one.

"Sure it's causing political problems," says Horner. "But all kinds of things are going to cause me political problems."

He said the prime minister's job is to ensure all Canadians an adequate supply of energy.

Energy Issues Heat Campaign

Canadian Press

Energy promised to put heat in the second week of campaigning for the May 22 federal election as rested party leaders resume travelling after a weekend of assessing reaction to a range of issues raised last week.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark are certain to keep energy policy before voters as they move into Quebec and Atlantic Canada, a region dependent upon imported oil.

Meanwhile, Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democratic Party, launches a four-day western tour in Vancouver.

Energy, raised repeatedly by Trudeau last week, took an emotional he accused Clark during the weekend of being "mentally and morally bankrupt" for allegedly copying most of the Liberal program while ignoring the contentious issue of pricing.

Trudeau told a Toronto nomination meeting for Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie "there's one crunch in this policy and the leader of the Opposition slinks away."

The New Democrats, who may hold the balance of power in a minority government, insist that Petro-Canada alone should supply imported oil. The corporation is involved in exploration but not in oil or natural gas production.

Clark begins the week in Halifax, moving Tuesday to Quebec where the party is hard-pressed for support.

Broadbent, who hit hard last week at the government's economic record in vote-rich southern Ontario, hopes to have his campaign fine-tuned for the western swing.

He will be trying to drum up support for the party's proposed fair prices commission in Edmonton, Regina and Winnipeg.

The New Democrats have decided to concentrate on inflation and unemployment, claiming Trudeau cannot be trusted after 1974 when he campaigned against wage and price controls only impose them a year later.

National unity, federal-provincial relations over resources, universal medical care and control of the RCMP all surfaced last week and are likely to remain major issues.

However, political strategists are anxious to detect a trend in the early going. This week's cross-country travels should provide some indication of plans for the remaining seven weeks.

Pot Law Reform Pushed As Issue

EDMONTON (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Association to Liberate Marijuana (CALM) says the group is determined to make the legalization of marijuana an issue in the May 22 federal election.

Buck '79, Edmonton area director for CALM, told a weekend news conference that the national organization would be sending questionnaires to candidates, asking them to state their position on the issue.

"All of the major political parties have paid lip service to decriminalization but no action has been taken," said Buck '79, who was known as Buck '78 last year.

CALM would work with NORML (National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws) in making pot an issue.

Ray Wintonyk, president of the Edmonton branch of CALM, said that introducing a category for recreational drugs in the Food and Drugs Act is essential to change

ON-THE-SCENE tour of the control room of the leaking Three Mile Island nuclear plant is made Sunday by President Carter, along with Dr. Harold Denton, director of U.S. Nucler Energy, left, Pennsylvania Governor Dick Thornburgh, and an unidentified employee.

N-Plant Crisis Training Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The danger of a melt-down at an Ontario nuclear plant is 100 times greater than Ontario Hydro says it is, says the chairman of a royal commission into the province's power needs.

Arthur Porter said Sunday nuclear workers in Ontario should receive frequent computer simulation training — much as airline pilots do — in handling such emergencies.

Fears of a melt-down hang over the Three Mile Island nuclear plant near Harrisburg, Pa. In a melt-down, the reactor core melts, burns through the reactor vessel and sinks into the ground, releasing much radioactivity.

Porter, who heads the royal commission on electric power planning, described as unrealistic suggestions by Ontario Hydro and the Atomic Energy Control Board that chances of a serious accident were only one in every one million years of a nuclear station's operation.

Porter, instead, placed it at one chance in 10,000 reactor years.

That means that if Canada built 100 nuclear reactors there would be a probability of one core meltdown in 40 years, he said.

Porter, former professor of industrial engineering at the University of Toronto and now a private consultant, said a reactor accident at any of the major Ontario Hydro nuclear plants would be less serious than the one in Harrisburg.

He said the giant Pickering plant just east of Toronto and the Bruce plant 70 kilometres southwest of Owen Sound have large containment buildings which he compared with "the largest vacuum cleaner in the world," to keep radioactive material released in a reactor breakdown from entering the atmosphere.

Steam carrying radioactive products escaping from a reactor at Pickering or Bruce would condense in the big containment building and fall as water to the floor where it could be dealt with.

The giant vacuum would have sucked in the gas bubble which threatened to explode at Harrisburg and pour down radioactive material on an area occupied by hundreds of thousands of people.

But this added safety feature to deal with the gas bubble does not exist at the older nuclear generating station at the Bruce plant.

Porter said there would have to be a failure of at least two key protective systems in Ontario nuclear power plants for a major disaster to occur.

But in a Candu reactor, such as the one in Pickering, a major accident could result in several thousand immediate fatalities in the area surrounding Toronto and many more delayed fatalities from cancer, Porter said.

Lawsuits Expected

WASHINGTON (WP) — While the extent of damages from the Three Mile Island nuclear accident near Harrisburg, Pa., is still unknown, legal experts say it is likely to result in a flurry of lawsuits, and perhaps higher insurance costs.

"There will undoubtedly be a hell of a lot of litigation resulting from this," said Harold P. Green, an expert on nuclear power issues.

Monitors on Alert

OTTAWA (UPC) — More than 100 monitoring stations, on alert to watch for radiation from a Pensylvania nuclear power plant, have found no unusual radioactivity readings yet, federal and provincial officials said Sunday.

Radiation data collected so far showed no increase in emission levels due to the damaged Three Mile Island nuclear plant.

Ernie Letourneau, director of the federal Radioactivity Protection Bureau, said 13 federal government stations, which normally take weekly readings, have been on 24-hour-alert since Wednesday, when the Three Mile Island Plant first began to malfunction.

He said preliminary findings showed no increase in radiation levels over eastern Canada and "we don't expect there to be any. There seems to be no cause for alarm."

Southern Ontario is nearest the defective plant. However, the plant's location south of the Allegheny Mountains prevents direct ground-level air movement towards Canada.

LeTourneau said the findings could not be judged conclusive until at least Tuesday, but readings so far "showed no increase in the radioactivity levels whatsoever."

He said the bureau, a divison of the Department of Health and Welfare, was also in constant touch with Environment Canada weather officials to monitor shifts in wind currents which might affect the spread of any radioactive particles.

In the event of a major nuclear accident in Harrisburg, residents of Ontario, southern Quebec and the Maritimes — the areas most likey to be affected — would have about three days to evacuate before any significant local atmospheric changes occurred, Letourneau said.

Nuclear Danger Fades As Bubble Shrinks

inch below the outside atmosphere, reducing chances of radiation leaks.

The hydrogen bubble, which developed unexpectedly, earlier had been estimated at 850 cubic feet in size. The new estimates today were that it was 50 cubic feet.

The development appeared to greatly reduce the previous slight possibility that the bubble could block the flow of cooling water inside the reactor, letting the reactor fuel get hot enough to melt. This could turn into a catastrophe.

To remove hydrogen from the surrounding containment, engineers hooked up hydrogen "recombiners" to the vents of the containment building, where the nuclear core is housed, to start today's operation.

The recombiners are designed to convert some of the hydrogen gas buildup in the containment building back into water by heating it with oxygen — a process similar to the way steam from a teapot is converted back into water vapor.

Authorities said the manoeuvre posed no new danger and Thornburgh — as if to stress that stance — ordered state employees to report for work as usual today in the state Capitol complex, 10 miles from the plant site.

Carter — who 27 years ago was part of a Navy team that helped avert a nuclear disaster in an experimental reactor at Chalk River in Canada — made a 26-minute on-site inspection of the mist-shrouded Three Mile Island plant Sunday. During his visit, he passed a wall of beige instrument panels that was covered with red, yellow and and white lights — and an occasional green one — showing the damaged reactor's condition.

Thousands of residents already had fled the area because of the danger posed by the accident at the plant.

WHAT MAKES THE SPECIAL X EVEN MORE SPECIAL?
WE'RE GIVING AWAY ONE A WEEK
FOR 10 WEEKS.

Some things have a special way of making their way into people's hearts. That's what's happened to the Special X, Honda's 10th Anniversary car. People are seeing them, falling in love with them, and they're selling like hot cakes. And with a limited edition of only 1500 having been made, they're not going to last all that long. And if that's not enough to make you want to hurry down to see one, then how about this: by having a look at a Special X you have a chance to win a Special X. Because we're giving away one a week for ten consecutive weeks.

THE MORE YOU LOOK AT A SPECIAL X, THE MORE SPECIAL
A SPECIAL X LOOKS.

Because the Special X comes with everything that makes Canada's No. 1 selling small car special. And more. Special things like a metallic Blue/Black paint job. Special striping. Special tartan cloth inserts in the seats and door panels. A special wood grained steering wheel. And many more Special X special features.

It even comes with a five-speed transmission. And radial tires.

SPECIAL METALLIC BLUE/BLACK PAINT
RADIAL TIRES AND SPECIAL WHEEL HUBS
SPECIAL ANNIVERSARY STRIPING

FRONT WHEEL DRIVE MAKES EVERY SPECIAL X, AND EVERY HONDA, THE FRONT RUNNER.

The Special X comes, as all Hondas come, with front wheel drive. An idea that Honda successfully popularized in Canada. That's why Honda Civic has driven to the front, and stayed there, to be the No. 1 selling small car in Canada for the past 3 years. While front wheel drive has put the Honda Civic a step ahead, there have also been several other features that have helped keep it there. Features like rack and pinion steering. Independent MacPherson Strut suspension on all four wheels. Carpeting. Tinted glass. Fully reclining bucket seats. And a reputation of being perhaps the most fun car in Canada to drive.

WIN A HONDA DURING OUR ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION.

It's Canadian Honda Motor Ltd.'s 10th Anniversary. And Honda dealers are celebrating. They're celebrating by giving away Hondas. They're giving away a Special X a week for ten weeks. They're giving away a Honda Accord Hatchback. A Honda Accord Sedan. An exciting new Honda Prelude, the GT car re-thought. They're giving away 100 Honda Z-50 Mini-Bikes. And everybody who comes in for a test drive during the 10th Anniversary celebration gets a Honda 10th Anniversary cap.+ It's all happening at your Honda dealers now. He has got all the details. Contest ends May 31, 1979.

+ Quantities limited.

Victoria Charmed by Bonnie Prince Charlie

By AB KENT
Times Staff

The man who will be king flew into Victoria Sunday and set hearts a-flutter.

The Prince of Wales, it turns out, is not called Bonnie Prince Charlie for nothing.

The Charles charm was evident when a crowd of 500 gathered to hear a booming royal salute and watch cadet guards in red tunics, Lieut.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving, Premier Bill Bennett and other dignitaries and elected representatives line up along the tarmac at Patricia Bay airport to welcome the 30-year-old heir to the throne on his first visit to Victoria.

Girls and grandmothers were out in force and and one young woman kissed Charles in what later turned out to be a set-up so a British photographer could grab a picture.

The prince looked slightly astonished when the woman, wearing a navy duffle coat, leaned over and lightly kissed his cheek.

"Good God," Charles said, coloring beneath his South Seas tan, but he smiled and kept moving.

"Was that planned?" reporters later asked Kate Brooke, 22, who said she had come from Vancouver for the weekend to see the prince.

"Well, I suppose," she said.

"I thought nobody else would. I really wanted to do it, so I did."

Later she admitted her friend Mike Lloyd, of the London Daily Express, asked her to do it so he could take a picture for his paper.

"I just had to do it. I was determined to do it and it was such a good feeling. He gave a lovely smile.

"I tried to kiss him on the lips but I couldn't get there, so I pulled him very hard by the arm and kissed him on the right cheek."

Prince Charles, returning from a month in Australia, Singapore and Hong Kong, was a hit from the moment he strode down the ramp from his Royal Air Force VC 10 jetliner, right on schedule from Honolulu.

"Good morning, your highness," said federal representative Sen. Ray Perrault and the introductions that followed were smooth and quick.

Charles had a smile for everyone, and warm words for many as he paused to shake hands or chat with a dozen-strong official welcoming party en route to the limousine that took him to Government House.

Amateur cameramen, vastly outnumbering the dozen or so professionals, snapped away at point-blank range in the bright spring sunshine.

The prince was brisk in his inspection of the cadet guard and band from Royal Roads Military College and did not linger over the introductions to the dignitaries grouped in front of the hangar.

These included Perrault, government leader in the Senate, the lieutenant-governor, Premier Bennett, Pierre Forget, federal co-ordinator of the royal visit and Canadian equerry Capt. Bruce Griffin.

After inspecting the guard with its commander Officer Cadet A.J. Stephenson, the prince was introduced to North Saanich Mayor G.R. Greenwood, Victoria Mayor Mike Young and Rear-Admiral M.A. Martin.

Small bursts of applause carried forward on the breeze with the last of a 21-gun salute fired by No. 5 (B.C.) Field Battery.

The Canadian ensign, the provincial flag and the Royal Standard billowed and here and there the red, white and blue flash of a small Union Jack could be seen in the crowd.

Charles made his way along the rows of spectators lined behind a rope barrier.

"Did you come out from Victoria?" he asked a group of young people.

"Would you be doing something else on Sundays?"

Noting the cameras several spectators were trying to focus on him, Charles quipped: "Wherever I go nowadays people say, 'You're too close'."

A few feet further on, Helen Robson thrust a ceramic vase into his hand as he was about to pass.

She said it had been made especially for the prince by Ingrid Busch.

"Would you thank her for me?" Charles asked.

"I said I would," Helen told newsmen later, adding she asked Charles to "say hello to your family because I think they're beautiful."

Today the prince was at Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific, the third of three international schools in which his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, took a founding interest.

He had private discussions with the students and faculty, attended a student concert and was to spend the night as their guest.

Sunday night Charles received a number of guests at Government House, among them former governor-general Roland Michener, Pearson College chairman John Nichol, college director Jack Matthews, representatives of the government of B.C., the Royal Commonwealth Society, the English Speaking Union and the Monarchist League.

A government house dinner for the prince and his party followed.

The prince leaves Pearson College Tuesday at 8:20 a.m. for takeoff in the RAF jet at 9:20 and a trip to Yellowknife for the second leg of his official visit which concludes in Ontario.

Search Called Off

A search has been called off for a 36-year-old Esquimalt man who fell overboard from a sailboat Saturday in Georgia Strait.

David Heffler of 453 Head is missing and presumed drowned.

Heffler was with two other persons aboard the 28-foot sailboat Maraiche when it ran aground about two kilometres offshore from Steveston at the mouth of the Fraser River.

The mishap occurred at about 10 a.m.

Rescue officials carried out a search Saturday and Sunday without result.

A rescue spokesman said the matter has now been referred to Richmond RCMP.

Fire Blamed On Smoking

An elderly woman was hospitalized early Sunday after fire broke out in her apartment at the White House Apartments, 1178 Beach Drive.

Mrs. Mary Heybroek was treated for smoke inhalation and released later in the day.

Oak Bay fire officials blame the fire on careless smoking.

A spokesman said the fire started in a loveseat in suite 104 occupied by Heybroek and had likely smoldered for several hours before the woman smelled smoke and turned in the alarm at 1:06 a.m.

He said Mrs. Heybroek smashed a window to get out of the ground-floor suite and injured her foot and hand in the process.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. The battle of Lundy's lane was fought between the British and Americans in the war of 1812-14. I understand the latter withdrew and lost the battle. Can you tell the casualties on both sides? W.H.J.

A. The British had 878 casualties with 84 killed. The American loss was 853 with 171 killed.

City Man's Son Killed

The son of Victoria assistant schools superintendent Bernie Chandler was one of six persons killed in a multi-vehicle pileup near Edson, Alta. over the weekend.

Dean Lyon Chandler, 21, was a passenger in a car that collided with four other vehicles and a tanker truck carrying 2,000 gallons of diesel fuel.

Harold Gumz, 21, of Edmonton, in the same car as Chandler, was also killed as were Michael Szabhou, 38, Thornhild, Alta., driver of a car carrier; Russell Graham, 34, and his children Lisa Meredith, 12, and Barry Russell, 18, all of Prince George, who were riding in a station wagon.

Three Traffic Mishaps Send Eight to Hospital

Eight persons landed in hospital following three separate traffic mishaps in Greater Victoria Sunday.

Thomas Seward, 71, and his wife Kathleen, 65, of 1929 Sooke Road were in fair to good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital today recovering from multiple injuries they received in a two-car collision at Sayward and Pat Bay Highway at 4:09 p.m.

The driver of the other car, Robert Hamilton, 23, of 309-1535 Jubilee suffered minor head cuts and was treated and released from Victoria General Hospital.

But two passengers in his car, his mother, Verna Joan Hamilton, 42, of 7621 Wallace Drive, and sister Darlene Hamilton, 19, were admitted with head injuries and were reported in satisfactory condition this morning.

A two-car collision at Cloverdale and Blanshard at 4:43 p.m. sent a 65-year-old Sidney woman to hospital with severe leg injuries.

Lillian Kelly was listed in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mrs. Kelly was a passenger in a car driven by Alexander Ronald Bell, 29, of Port Alberni. Neither Bell nor another passenger, Kenneth Kelly, 33, also of Port Alberni, were hurt.

The driver of the other car, Glen William Wallis, 25, of 313-909 Pembroke; also escaped injury.

A 32-year-old Saanich woman is in stable condition in Victoria General Hospital after the car she was driving collided with another car on Douglas in front of Mayfair Shopping Centre at 7:37 p.m.

Norma Woods, 4036 Quadra, received severe neck injuries.

A passenger in her car, Rosemary Fuller of the same address, was treated for chest pains and later released.

City firemen had to use their Jaws of Life machine to remove Woods from the wreckage.

The driver of the other car, Clive Bond, 38, of 890 Tulip was not hurt.

Police said Bond was driving south on Douglas when his car went out of control, hit a traffic island, spun around and collided with Woods' car which careened into a power pole.

For Our Dinner, 'Taties and Herring

THE HERRING are gone now, and where they have removed to in their shoals and multitudes, only the wide seas can answer. But while they were with us, they were a strong presence — a reminder of the incredible richness of ocean.

We first became aware that the herring were running in these waters when we stepped outdoors to smell a fishiness in the morning air.

It was a prevailing odor. It went with us all the way up the line to Campbell River.

That was the morning, too, when we counted 21 eagles. White-headed adults and scruffy immature birds, they perched enormous in the tops of roadside evergreens, or on rocks that jutted from the tide flats.

Offshore, the gulls were also busy, wheeling and diving with discordant fussings. The herring were in. Not a huge school, or even a very big one, and nothing to compare with the live-and-silver concentrations of fish from which herring boats were loading themselves almost to foundering-point elsewhere.

But enough to bring liveliness and a sense of anticipation to these narrow waters. For when the herring move in on their spawning run, there are no ifs, ands or buts about the weather picture. The springtime has arrived triumphant.

Later that day, an Islander of our acquaintance gave us a gift of some herring.

No, he told us, they hadn't come off any boat. He had caught them himself with a dip-net, and could guarantee their freshness.

He and his wife, we learned, had been walking a beach when they spotted a thick stream of herring pouring into one of the low-tide pools. They were coming in to leave their spawn on the seaweed.

"We watched them roaring into the pool for a while," he said, "then we went up to the house and got a landing net. All we had to do was stand there and dip it, and in no time we had all the herring we could use."

This friend also produced a scrap of seaweed which he spread carefully on a table. The crinkly sea-lettuce twinkled with a frosty lacing. This was herring spawn, clustered thickly on the weed to guarantee that new herring would return in their myriads in due time.

The absolute lavishness of the herring runs tempts fishermen, and governments, to excess. With fantastic prices paid by Japan for herring roe, the inroads into the schools have been heavy.

Too heavy? That remains to be seen. I'm uneasy about the herring future, remembering the over-fishing of past years which reduced the schools to such an extent that for an anxious time it was touch-and-go as to whether the fishery would ever recover.

Perhaps this time, the federal authority has acted with wisdom, keeping the inherently-wasteful catch of roe herring within bounds. But I find myself wishing that we had our own provincial fisheries department (or at least a department which consisted of more than a couple of men concerned with shellfish) to guard a provincial resource.

Meanwhile, we were glad to accept those little silvery fish, which I contemplated freezing and laying away for salmon bait. Then Win suggested that a traditional herring-and-'tatie supper would be nice, and we changed our plans.

I gutted and scaled our herring. Win rolled them in flour, then gave them a quick frying.

They came to our table with boiled potatoes. That was it. No other vegetables, no sauce or garnish. Just potatoes and herring, for a memorable feast.

We ate the scraps of roe too, but found it piddling stuff, gone in a snap and a swallow. I can't understand why the Japanese bother.

Heroin Treatment Plan Now in Second Stage

B.C.'s controversial heroin treatment plan, launched in January, has shifted into second gear with the start-up of the voluntary entry phase.

Bert Hoskins, director of the Alcohol and Drug Commission, said area co-ordination centres around the province are now beginning to accept voluntary applications from persons with drug dependancy problems.

He said a total of 56 persons — six from the Victoria area — have already indicated they want treatment. They include 11 persons with dependancies on drugs other than heroin. One of them is an old age pensioner who wants help withdrawing from the effects of a perscription drug, Hoskins said.

He said it will likely take a couple of weeks before any of the voluntary entries are referred to the treatment centre at Brannen Lake.

The reason for the delay, he said, is area assessment panels have not yet been appointed by the provincial cabinet. The panels must review each application before entry is made.

Hoskins said some of the estimated 200 persons who were receiving treatment under the old narcotics addiction program and accordingly transferred to the new one in January, will start arriving in Brannen Lake this week.

He said many of the cases will likely be dealt with by the area co-ordination centres on an out-patient basis. The centre in Victoria is located in the 2600-block Douglas. As of Friday the centre had an active caseload of 11, all on the methadone program

The most controversial part of the treatment plan — the compulsory aspect — is still in limbo pending a court case testing its constitutionality.

The question is whether the plan falls under criminal or health laws. Under the British North America Act the federal government has jurisidiction over criminal matters while the province has jurisdiction over health.

When Health Minister Bob McClelland announced the program last year he said all persons dependant on heroin will have to take treatment whether they want to or not. The plan allows police to arrest addicts and force them into treatment. Hoskins said the police entry phase is scheduled to begin in late July, depending on the outcome of the court case.

U.S. Health Plan Battle Looming

WASHINGTON (WP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy and top labor leaders are getting ready to propose a new "Health Care for All Americans Act" that would drastically change the way the nation pays for its medical treatment.

In an interview, the Masachusetts Democrat conceded that the far-reaching bill he will introduce soon — which privately would insure almost everybody, but set an annual limit on the nation's total health spending — faces "an uphill battle.'

Almost everyone else would call it an impossible battle in this Congress. But Kennedy called an ambitious health insurance plan such as this "inevitable" at "some future date."

His plan, he said, would cost the federal government an added $30 billion to $32 billion a year, mainly to improve medicare, and employers and individuals an additional $12 billion when fully in place.

Kennedy, the AFL-CIO, the United Auto Workers and the Committee for National Health Insurance plan a mid-April Washington Press conference to unveil their plan.

Kennedy confirmed the accuracy of a copy obtained by the Washington Post, and the fact that he and the labor leaders have abandoned their long-standing goal. That was a plan by which the government would have become virtually the country's only health insurer, paying doctors and hospitals what now would be $200 billion a year in federal taxes.

This is how the new Kennedy-labor national health plan would work:

—Almost everyone would buy a private health insurance plan at a controlled rate geared to wages, with lesser rates for the self-employed and some others.

—Employers would pay at least a minimum percentage of employees' premiums. A large, affluent employer would pay more to subsidize firms and persons less able to pay. But no employer would have to pay more than three per cent extra if earnings would drop.

—The federal and state governments would continue to cover the aged and disabled and some welfare patients.

—The nation's health insurers would form four consortiums — for commercial firms, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, nonprofit prepaid plans and doctors' prepaid plans.

—Insurers and plans could still compete for business by offering more benefits or cash rebates through lower costs of care or better administration.

—Insurers and representatives of the employer-employee groups and the public would negotiate prices with representatives of hospitals and doctors.

Noose Talk Revived

LONDON (AP) — The assassination of Conservative MP Airey Neave by Irish terrorists has renewed pressure to revive the death penalty in Britain and made it an issue in the general election campaign now under way.

Neave, the Conservative spokesman on Northern Ireland, was murdered by a time bomb as he drove out of the House of Commons parking lot on Friday. He was an advocate of the death penalty for Irish terrorists who kill in their campaign to get the British out of Northern Ireland, and both the Irish Republican Army and the Irish National Liberation Army, an ally of the IRA, said they were responsible for his murder.

His death stunned Conservative Leader Margaret Thatcher and her party as they were preparing to begin campaigning for the national election May 3 brought on by the Labor government's defeat in a confidence vote.

The Young Conservatives, the party's youth organization, demanded restoration of capital punishment for terrorist murderers.

George Gardiner, Conservative MP for Reigate, wrote in The Sunday Express: "Speaking personally, I would gladly see every man and woman found guilty of causing death by an act of terrorism stood up against a wall and shot."

But Norman St. John-Stevas, a Tory leader in Commons, said it would be "unbalanced and ignoble to change the convictions of a lifetime in the emotional impact of a personal tragedy."

104 Vietnamese Capsize, Drown

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuter) — More than 100 Vietnamese refugees drowned off Malaysia's east coast on Saturday when their boat capsized as it was being towed out to sea by a police patrol vessel, the United Nations refugee agency said today.

Rajagopalam Sampatkumar, Asian representative of the United Nations' High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), said he will protest to the Malaysian government about the 104 deaths.

He said the drownings could have been avoided and the agency has sought assurance from Malaysia that such accidents will be prevented in future.

The accident happened off Mersing Port, in Malaysia's southernmost state of Johore, about 240 kilometres from Singapore.

Sampatkumar told reporters the refugee boat with 227 Vietnamese aboard sought temporary asylum in Mersing after 10 persons died during the voyage from Vietnam.

A police patrol craft refused them entry and towed their boat out to the sea, where it sank.

The surviving 113 refugees were brought to Mersing where UN officials were taking care of them, he said.

Sampatkumar said one of the refugees was taken to hospital with gunshot wounds in the leg.

He said shots were fired from a Malaysian navy boat in an effort to turn the boat away from the coast.

Most of the survivors have been taken to a UN refugee camp on Tengah Island, Sampatkumar said.

He said the refugee boat "simply capsized" as it was being towed away from the Malaysian coast.

Sampatkumar said it was not the first time that such an unnecessary tragedy has occurred off the Malaysian coast.

About 300 Vietnamese refugees drowned off the coast of Trengganu last November when two boats turned away by the local authorities capsized, he said.

Sampatkumar said a similar incident with the loss of several refugee lives also occurred in 1977 off the east coast.

United Begins Big Shut-Down

CHICAGO (AP) — United Airlines said Sunday that it is laying off a total of 13,300 pilots, attendants and other crew members because of a strike that has grounded all its flights.

United, the largest carrier in the U.S., said the layoffs will remain in effect for the duration of the strike which began at midnight Friday.

"It's standard procedure to lay off unionized workers if a strike shuts us down," said airline spokesman Dave Ostwald. He said the workers will be rehired when the airline resumes operation.

The workers laid off include 7,800 flight attendants and a total of 5,500 pilots, co-pilots and navigators, he said.

Negotiations beetween the two sides in the dispute have been scheduled for Tuesday in Washington.

The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers walked out after rejeecting a contract offer.

United serves 110 cities, carrying about 130,000 passengers daily. Oswald said operations will be cancelled at least until April 10.

Ostwald said United is trying to place passengers on other airlines.

Fake Visa Ring In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (WP) — As many as 3,000 illegal aliens, most of them North and South Koreans who used Argentina as a way station, may have entered the United States with false U.S. visas they purchased from a bogus "parallel" American consulate operating here for a year before it was closed 10 days ago.

Among those arrested by Argentine police in connection with the "consulate," and the visa ring that operated it, were four Argentine employees of the U.S. consulate here. They were charged with participating in what diplomatic observers said could turn out to be the largest visa scandal in the history of U.S. consulates abroad.

Although it cannot be determined exactly who used the visas to enter the United States illegally, officials say some of those who purchased the fraudulent travel documents were refugees from North Korea.

One U.S. diplomat here acknowledged the possibility that North Korean espionage agents could have been among those who bought the fake visas.

South Africa Assistance Detailed

UNITED NATIONS (AFP) — The United Nations anti-apartheid committee Sunday published a list of 382 banks throughout the world which have given loans to South Africa between 1972 and 1978.

The report, which showed the loans totalled $5.5 billion, said the majority were made by banks in West Germany, Britain, the United States, France and Switzerland.

Smaller loans had been made by banks in Italy, Denmark, Luxemburg and Canada.

H-Bomb Article Surfaces

WASHINGTON (WP) — Copies of the Progressive magazine article that a judge blocked from publication in the United States because it allegedly contained secrets about the hydrogen bomb have surfaced but not yet been published — in Australia.

Peter Isaacson, editor in chief of the Melbourne Sunday Observer said in a telephone interview Saturday night that he had given his paper's copy of the article to Australian intelligence officers after being asked to do so Friday by a cabinet minister. This apparently occurred after the State Department asked the Australian government to intervene.

A front-page story in Sunday's edition of the Observer, headlined "H-Bomb Plan in Melbourne" says at least one other copy of the article is known to be in Australia. Dr. Helen Caldicott, an anti-nuclear activist who now practices medicine in Boston, gave a copy of the Progressive story to the newspaper, the story said.

News of the spread of the banned Progressive article did not reach the U.S. government until Friday, a Justice Department spokesman said Saturday night. The state Department quickly confirmed that the article in the Observer's possession was genuine, apparently from reading the copy Isaacson surrendered to his government, according to Robert Havel, the Justice Department spokesman.

A Justice Department attorney and a Department of energy scientist left for Australia Saturday afternoon, Havel said, "to help the Australian government determine how to proceed."

Sunday's Observer story said Caldicott showed the article at a Melbourne press conference two weeks ago, and quoted her as saying, "I could be in trouble when I get back to Boston because they know I've got it." Caldicott's office said she is in Australia. She could not be reached for comment.

Havel said he didn't know why it took two weeks for her remarks to be forwarded to Washington.

The Observer story about the H-bomb article made it clear that the management of the Progressive magazine did not know about the proliferation of its controversial story.

Progressive editor Erwin Knoll said in a telephone interview from Madison, Wis., Saturday night that he knew Caldicott and had printed an excerpt from her book, Nuclear Madness: What You Can Do, in his December issue. But he said he had not given her a copy of the article by freelance writer Howard Morland. "We have rigidly obeyed the court order," Knoll said.

Lumber Girls Stress Western Superiority With National Victory

EDMONTON — Now that Home Lumber has returned the Canadian senior women's basketball championship to British Columbia, coach Jack Lusk thinks a Victoria team in an inter-city league with Vancouver and/or Seattle "would be a very nice thought."

The West Coast's superiority in women's basketball was restored here Saturday when the leagueless Victoria team, sparked by players who have been there before, breezed to an 85-64 victory over Saskatoon.

That gave B.C. its 13th triumph in the last 15 years and Victoria's seventh in 12 years. It was championship No. 3 for the Lusk-coached Home Lumber in the past four years.

Victoria's other succcess, starting in 1968, were recorded by Rawlings, Maplettes (twice) and University of Victoria Vikettes.

Only Hamilton, in 1973, and Montreal, last year, have interupted B.C.'s hold on the title trophy.

Without a league, Home Lumber has relied on exhibitions for competition. Busy savoring his team's latest success, Lusk "hadn't thought" about next season but did say "the present setup" of exhibition games "is not helping basketball in Victoria."

At least one member of the victorious Home Lumber team won't be around next season. Karen McComber, a graduate of Reynolds high school who contributed four points in Saturday's victory, has accepted a scholarship offer from the University of New Mexico.

If Home Lumber does return next season and find a league, it is unlikely that Gail Klaver, Angie Dobie, Bev Bland and Joanne Sargeant will play out of Victoria. All four, recruited as pickups for the national tournament, expect to remain in the Greater Vancouver area.

The four were instrumental in adding extreme depth that helped Home Lumber to victory here.

"They gave us a bench that made it easy to ignore any foul problems. Fouls weren't a problem because if anyone picked up three in a hurry, there were eight or nine people that would have done the job," said Lusk.

The replacements, he added "fit in very well. Angie, Gail and Bev played with us in the past. They all have great personalities. For example, Sargeant was named the most valuable player and when she went up to accept her award, she told the selectors that they made a mistake . . . that five other girls should have gotten it."

Both Sargeant and Bland, who earned selection to the all-star team, scored 15 points each as Home Lumber started strongly, raced to a 46-27 lead at the half, and was never really threatened.

Klaver added 14 points while Dobie scored nine in sharing her fifth Canadian championship. It was Sargeant's fourth championship.

Leslie Godfrey, Lorna Lundeen and Sandy Lewis each scored eight points while McComber and Marg Mainwaring added four.

Allison Lang had an outstanding night, scoring 24 points for Saskatchewan, which won the sportsmanship trophy in a vote by the players.

Home Lumber shot 40 per cent from the floor and snared 34 rebounds compared to only 25 by Saskatoon.

Lusk said he didn't fear Saskatchewan but considered Nova Scotia, which Home Lumber beat 73-71 in Friday's semi-final, the biggest threat in the tournament.

Nova Scotia finished third by virtue of a 78-66 win over fourth-place New Brunswick.

Nancy Knowlton led the winners with 26 points and Nelda Robbins had 15 for New Brunswick. Knowlton was the tournament's leading point-getter with 154 points in six games and led four other players in all-star team selections.

Other all-star selections were Laura Gillespie of Ontario, Joyce Slipp, player-coach for New Brunswick and Saskatchewan's Heather Witzel, a former Vikette.

Gillespie had 24 points Saturday to pace Ontario to a 71-52 victory over Quebec in a playoff for fifth place.

Seventh-place Alberta downed Manitoba 86-63.

Bruins Snap Back To Trip Cougars

New Westminster Bruins, the defending champions of Canadian major junior hockey, aren't ready to roll over and give up the ghost in this year's playoffs.

Not yet.

Upset by fierce criticism and the suspension of coach Ernie McLean for the balance of the season as the result of their gang attacks against Portland Winter Hawks in a Western League game March 22, the Bruins dropped their first two playoff games and appeared headed for meek exit in this year's title scramble.

But the Bruins came bouncing back Sunday in New Westminster's Queen's Park Arena. They defeated the Victoria Cougars 5-2 to enjoy their first taste of success in the WHL's double round-robin semi-final series.

The Cougars, who continue to be hampered by injury, now have a 2-2 record. The Winter Hawks, who suffered their first setback Saturday night in Victoria's Memorial Arena, 6-4, are 2-1 and the Bruins, who head back into action in Portland tonight, are 1-2.

Cougars entertain the Winter Hawks here Tuesday.

For coach Jack Shupe, the new injury concern is captain Geordie Robertson. The high-scoring centre, sidelined twice earlier this season with knee problems, was back on the injury list Sunday.

Robertson suffered another knee injury when he slammed against the boards during Saturday's game with Portland. Robertson suffered the injury at the 8:01 mark of the second period, went off briefly but returned minutes later to finish out the game.

Soreness and swelling kept him off the ice Sunday, however. Robertson's injury is not considered too serious, but still a source of concern since another centre, rookie Barry Pederson, is already on the sidelines with mononucleosis.

Centre Scott MacLeod scored two goals and added an assist to pace the Bruins Sunday before only 2,136 fans, New Westminster's smallest playoff crowd in three years. Only 3,503 turned out in the 15,000-seat Pacific Coliseum to watch Portland defeat the Bruins 9-2 Friday and the attendances are seen as a reflection of fan reaction to the March 22 incident.

MacLeod, Bruins' top scorer with 109 points in the regular season, scored his team's first and third goals and set up linemate Neil Meadmore for the clincher at 17:08 of the third period. Dave Orleski, the third member of the line, had three assists.

Kent Reardon and defenceman Rick Amann completed the New Westminster scoring.

Wingers George Fritz and Randy Irving, both playing strongly in the playoffs following regular-season disappointments, scored for Victoria.

The game was fast-skating and well-played, with each team picking up only four minor penalties.

Bruins outshot Cougars 34-22 with the third period providing New Westminster with its big edge, 18-4 in shots and 3-0 in goals.

The third-period performance upset Victoria coach Jack Shupe.

"You wouldn't think it was the same team that played the night before," he said, referring to Victoria's strong performance in defeating Portland before 4,125 fans Saturday.

He had praise for goaltender Steve Amiss, who invariably has played many of his best games in New Westminster, and said the absence of the two centres had a definite bearing on the outcome.

Saturday, with the defence bolstered by the return of Tony Feltrin, it was Victoria's offense that dominated in a wide-open, crowd-pleasing game.

Amiss again performed strongly but the Cougar hero was centre Gary Lupul. He scored his team's final three goals to chill a belated Portland comeback attempt.

Feltrin, brothers Torrie and Geordie Robertson, rookie Brent Denat, Mike Shields and defenceman Len Dawes turned in strong games against Portland.

Trailing 6-3 with less than four minutes to play, Portland's Ron Chorney scored to make it 6-4. Still, it seemed cushion enough for the Cougars until Portland coach Ken Hodge made a play that resulted in a minor penalty to Geordie Robertson.

On orders from Hodge, the Winter Hawks requested referee Ian Sandercock to check the legality of Robertson's stick. It was oh-so-close but after lengthy deliberation, Sandercock ruled the stick illegal and assessed Geordie with a minor.

Cougars, however, rode out the shorthanded situation comfortably.

BREITENBACH

HUNG UP ON STICK of Toronto's John Anderson is Ken Breitenbach of Buffalo Sabres during first period of National Hockey League game Sunday in Buffalo. Maple Leafs had Sabres tied up most of way and finished with 6-3 triumph to snap 11-game unbeaten streak of Buffalo goalie Don Edwards.

Late Hot Burst by Lucas Keeps Portland Blazing

By The Associated Press

Professional pride is nice, but Maurice Lucas had a more tangible explanation for his 14-point burst in the final four minutes Sunday that gave the streaking Portland Trail Blazers a 109-107 victory over Milwaukee Bucks.

"I wanted the ball, I wanted it badly," explained the veteran forward. "I want to get into the playoffs because I want the extra income."

Lucas' spurt helped the Blazers to their eighth victory in the last nine games and kept them 2½ games ahead of San Diego Clippers in the race for the last playoff spot in the National Basketball Association's Western Conference.

Elsewhere Sunday, Philadelphia '76ers edged Los Angeles Lakers 112-111, San Antonio Spurs nipped Boston Celtics 112-110, Cleveland Cavaliers beat Houston Rockets 114-105, Washington Bullets defeated Denver Nuggets 105-89, San Diego topped New York Knicks 126-116, Phoenix Suns beat Detroit Pistons 116-105, Seattle SuperSonics edged Golden State Warriors 102-97 and Atlanta Hawks defeated New Jersey Nets 109-98.

On Saturday, New Orleans Jazz edged Atlanta 109-107, Milwaukee whipped Chicago Bulls 108-99, Kansas City Kings trounced Indiana Pacers 126-101 and Seattle blasted Detroit 123-102.

Lucas finished with 30 points for the Blazers. His short bank shot with 27 seconds left gave them a 108-107 lead and his free throw with 11 seconds to play produced the final margin.

Lucas scored most of his points down the stretch by moving into the low post against Milwaukee rookie George Johnson, who was playing despite five personal fouls.

Los Angeles, trailing 109-100 with 1:38 left, reeled off 11 in a row to take the lead before Philadelphia bounced back to win on Darryl Dawkins' three-point play with five seconds left. The Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led all scorers with 38 points.

Elvin Hayes scored 30 points as Bullets coach Dick Motta became the third coach in NBA history to win 500 games, joining Red Auerbach and Red Holzman in that select circle. Motta's teams in Chicago and Washington have lost 397 games in 11 years. The loss put Denver one-half game behind first-place Kansas City in the Midwest Division.

Lloyd Free scored 28 points and Nick Weatherspoon added 24 as San Diego snapped a four-game losing streak to stay within reach of Portland.

Phoenix won its sixth in a row behind 23 points and 12 rebounds by centre Alvan Adams. The Suns' 48-30 record is the third best in the NBA, but they still trail Seattle by two games in the Pacific Division.

Seattle, the NBA's top defensive team, held Golden State without a basket for five minutes of the final period. Guards Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams led the Sonics with 24 and 21 points, respectively.

Abrupt End to Season

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The Pacific Hockey League, cancelling plans for post-season playoffs because of problems like an ice-plant breakdown, says the its 1978-79 season is over and Phoenix Roadrunners are the champions.

Commissioner Ken Broderick made the announcement today. It would have been a three-week delay before the four-team playoffs could have been held, he said.

The biggest problem was at Spokane. Coliseum director Mike Kobleck said the evaporator of the ice-making unit broke. It would be April 23 before the ice could be ready, he said. In San Diego, Sports Arena dates weren't available until April 11.

Meanwhile, the PHL owners said they were talking with others about a new national league. In the western division would be the present PHL teams of Phoenix, Spokane, Tucson and San Diego along with expansion cities with Seattle, Portland and San Francisco Bay suggested.

The eastern division would include World Hockey Association teams not involved in the WHA-NHL merger, plus Houston, Indianapolis and Miami.

Broderick said the PHL owners plan to "act immediately to finalize the results."

Lakers Top Tourney

CHEMAINUS — Fuller Lake collected the title in its own inaugural three-day juvenile hockey tournament Sunday by beating Burnaby 5-4 in the final at Fuller Lake Arena.

Tony St. Denis fired two goals to lead the Lakers' attack while singles were added by Kevin Scyrup, Darrell Descoteau and Ed Levitschnig. Brian Hansen (2), Tod Racine and Tom Smith, later named the tourney's most-valuable player, counted for Burnaby.

Fuller Lake and Saanich, which was picked as the most-sportsmanlike team, tied for first place in the "A" division of the preliminary modified round-robin competition with 2-0-1 records but the home team advanced to the final because of a better goal record. Port Hardy finished at 1-1-1 and Duncan was 0-3 in the same section.

Burnaby advanced from the "B" division with a 2-0-1 record while Nanaimo and Sooke tied at 1-1-1 and Campbell River was 0-3.

Wayne Jones of Saanich and David Marquis of Duncan tied for the goaltending award and Cory Paisley of Fuller Lake received the sportsmanship award.

Flying Paster a Breezing Winner

Flying Paster stamped himself the West's top threat for the Triple Crown races when he rallied in the stretch to impressively win the $192,400 Santa Anita Derby at Arcadia, Calif., on Sunday.

Flying Paster, California's horse of the year for 1978, was carried wide on the first turn, but jockey Donald Pierce took the lead in the stretch to win by 6½ lengths.

Beau's Eagle, winner of the California Derby, was second, a head in front of Switch Partners, with Shamgo another head back.

Owned by retired newspaper executive Bernard J. Ridder, the son of Gummo-Procne won his ninth race in 13 starts and collected $124,900 to boost his career earnings to $550,310.

Flying Paster's stirring rally showed that he will be the West's No. 1 candidate against Spectacular Bid in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Flying Paster paid $3.20, $2.80 and $2.40.

Terlingua finished fifth, with Kamalii King sixth,

At Hialeah, Alydar, recovered from a broken foot bone suffered last August, galloped to an easy seven-length victory in his 1979 debut.

Alydar carried only 114 pounds against a mediocre six-horse field, but his performance was nevertheless outstanding in the seven-furlong allowance race.

The son of Raise A Native was timed at 1:22 2-5 and created a minus show pool of $26,596. A total $126,167 of the $129,899 show pool was bet on Alydar. He was 1-10 to win, paying $2.10 across.

At Aqueduct, Vencedor, the favorite, took the lead at the head of the stretch and won the $55,100 Westchester Handicap.

At Bowie, Skipat, owned and bred by John A. Grondin of Norwich, Conn., staked out a claim for sprint honors among distaff performers in winning the $82,700 Barbara Fritchie Handicap, clocking 1:22 2-5 for the seven furlongs to win by 3½ lengths.

At Golden Gate Fields, Whydidju held off Tourulla by a nose to win the $55,400 California Oaks and at Santa Anita, Saturday, favored Bywayofchicago, ridden by Darrel McHargue and carrying 120 pounds, scored a 2½-length victory $56,350 San Simeon Handicap.

Caps Find the Way To End Humiliation

By The Canadian Press

There's only so much Washington Capitals are about to take — regardless of anyone's first-place aspirations — and coach Danny Belisle says his charges are just plain tired of being humiliated by New York Islanders.

So, for the first time in the team's five-year National Hockey League history, the Capitals beat the Islanders 6-4 Sunday behind the two-goal performance by Swedish rookie Rolf Edberg.

"I think it's just the accumulation," said Belisle, when asked why his team was able to beat the leaders of the National Hockey League's Patrick Division. "The guys have a lot of pride and everything was starting to go negative again."

The loss, coupled with Montreal's 3-3 tie against Boston Bruins, dropped the Islanders three points back of the Canadiens in the hunt for top spot overall — a position which carries with it a home-ice guarantee for every playoff series. However, the New Yorkers have four games remaining, one more than Montreal.

Elsewhere Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs dumped Buffalo Sabres 6-3, Atlanta Flames walloped Pittsburgh Penguins 7-2, Philadelphia Flyers whipped New York Rangers 7-3 behind the two-goal performance of former Victoria Cougar Mel Bridgman, Detroit Red Wings trimmed Minnesota North Stars 3-1 and Vancouver Canucks battled to a 2-2 deadlock with Chicago Black Hawks.

The Capitals took a 3-0 lead on goals by Dennis Maruk, Yvan Labre and Robert Picard and made it 4-0 on Edberg's score early in the second period.

New York's Mike Bossy scored his 62nd goal of the season to break Reggie Leach's record of 61 goals for a right winger, set in the 1975-76 season. But Edberg and Guy Charron came back with goals to give Washington a comfortable 6-1 lead going into the third period. Clark Gillies, Mike Kaszycki and Bossy scored in the third period for the Islanders.

Ron Delorme, a graduate of Lethbridge Broncos, scored three goals and Merlin Malinowski, who came out of junior ranks from Medicine Hat, had a goal and three assists as Colorado posted its highest goal total of the season and its first victory at home in 15 games. Had the Rockies failed to win, they would have tied an NHL record for consecutive winless games at home. The record is shared by Chicago and Montreal and has remained unmatched since the Canadiens' 14-game winless streak in 1939-40.

Lanny McDonald scored three goals for the second night in a row and Toronto scored on three of its first five shots in beating Buffalo and ending an 11-game personal unbeaten streak for Sabres goaltender Don Edwards. The Leafs clinched a wild-card playoff berth by defeating Minnesota North Stars 6-2.

Rick LaPointe, another Cougar grad, started a three-goal first period that helped the Flyers defeat the Rangers, solidifying their hold on second place in the Patrick Division. The Flyers, 10-1-1 in their last 12 games, lead the Rangers by five points.

Defenceman Mike O'Connell scored his third goal of the season at 3:13 of the final period to give Chicago the tie with Vancouver.

HEADING for Regina and new golf job is Victoria professional Cec Ferguson (above). He signed two-year-contract at weekend as head pro at Regina Golf Club, effective immediately, and leaves Thursday. Ferguson, 28, succeeds Ron Belbin and is "extemely delighted" over opportunity for club job. Fergie spent two previous years, his first as a pro, as tour player.

Substitute, Listener Fill In Well for Carew

By The Associated Press

They say you can't replace Rod Carew, but Willie Mays Aikens, a substitute, and Bobby Grich, a good listener, didn't do a bad job Sunday.

Aikens subbed for Carew after the seven-time batting champion was ejected, and hit a two-run homer to help California Angels beat Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4 in exhibition baseball at Anaheim.

Carew was thumbed out of the "Freeway Series" game when he bumped plate umpire Jim Scott in the fifth inning while protesting he hadn't swung at a third strike.

In the next inning, Dan Ford singled and Aikens hit his second homer of the spring for the Angels.

Grich, claiming some assistance from Carew, also was a hero for the winners with two run-scoring singles, including a rally-capping hit in a two-run third against Andy Messersmith.

"I had the locker two away from Carew at Palm Springs," Grich pointed out. "I did a lot of talking to Rodney and changed my stance."

Elsewhere, Bob Horner the National League's rookie of the year last season, played in his first game of the spring for Atlanta Braves, who edged Minnesota Twins 3-2. Horner, involved in a contract dispute with the Braves, went hitless in four appearances in his designated hitter role. Barry Bonnell hit a two-run homer to lead the Braves.

George Scott's two-run single keyed a five-run fifth inning and Mike Torrez tuned up for a regular-season start later this week as Boston Red Sox defeated St. Louis Cardinals 9-6.

Chris Chambliss singled home the winning run in the 10th inning, giving New York Yankees a 4-3 victory over Detroit Tigers. Joe Wallis' five hits helped Oakland A's beat Chicago Cubs 9-8.

Rookie Eric Wilkens earned his first spring victory, allowing two runs and five hits in six innings, as Cleveland Indians beat Seattle Mariners 7-3.

Johnny Grubb's two-run homer led Texas Rangers to a 6-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals and Greg Pryor's solo homer sparked a four-run eighth inning that carried Chicago White Sox past Toronto Blue Jays 10-7.

Dave Cash's 10th-inning single drove in the winning run as Montreal Expos edged the Houston Astros 3-2. Dave Parker and Phil Garner each hit two-run homers to lead Pittsburgh Pirates past Cincinnati Reds 7-5.

San Francisco hurler John Montefusco, in his best performance of the spring, gave up only two hits, struck out four and walked none as he led the Giants to a 5-3 victory over Milwaukee Brewers.

In other developments, St. Louis Cardinals announced that pitchers Rob Dressler and Will McEnaney, catcher Terry Kennedy and infielder Tommy Herr will be assigned to the club's Springfield (Ill.) farm club.

Toronto the 25-player limit by optioning outfielder Joe Cannon to Syracuse of the International League.

Texas reported that injuries to pitchers Jon Matlack and Ferguson Jenkins will postpone their regular-season starts this week. Matlack, suffering from possible bone chips in his left elbow, was scheduled to pitch on opening day Thursday. Jenkins, with a sore achilles tendon, was slated to pitch Saturday.

Japan Approves Plan

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan Pro Baseball Commission has given approval to San Francisco Giants and San Diego Padres to open the 1980 major league regular season against each other in Japan.

Bob Lurie, owner of the Giants, and Ballard Smith, executive vice president of the Padres, and other National League owners have also approved the idea.

The three-game series is tentatively scheduled to open Friday, March 28, in Yokohama or Tokorozawa, both near Tokyo.

Further details still have to be worked out among Japanese and American baseball officials.

Quebec Skiers Top Aerialists

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Men from Quebec and women from Utah dominated the aerial events Sunday during the World Cup of professional freestyle skiing at Grouse Mountain.

Aerialist Jean Corriveau, 20, of Quebec City captured first place, while over-all World Cup aerial winner John Eaves, 26, of Montreal was second. Pierre Poulin of St. Augustin, Que., was third.

Eaves also won 1979 World Cup combined championship, which includes mogul, freestyle and aerial competition, for the third consecutive year.

Lea Hillgreen of Salt Lake City, Utah won the $250 first prize in the women's aerials, finishing ahead of Stephanie Sloan of Toronto and Mary Beddor of Sandy, Utah.

Lauralee Bowie of Banff, Alta. was the combined points winner in women's events during the three-day competition, the last meet in the eight-stop World Cup tour. Sloan was second.

In men's, Steve Resendes of Park City, Utah, was the weekend's over-all points champion with Frank Breddor of Sandy, Utah second and Eaves third.

Eaves, a former gymnast, said consistency is the key to his success and estimates he will earn about $20,000 for his domination of the tour this season.

"You've got to be up in the top 10 consistently, and sometimes in the top five," Eaves said. "The combined skier works harder than the specialist and he deserves whatever he gets — sometimes it's not enough."

Corriveau, who earned $1,500 for his first-place finish in the aerials, thrilled the estimated 6,000 fans watching the final round with a triple somersault with two half twists.

Diplomats Triumph In Foul-Filled Match

By The Canadian Press

Washington Diplomats took advantage of some undiplomatic behavior by their opponents Sunday to win their second game of the North American Soccer League schedule, defeating Atlanta Chiefs 5-1.

Atlanta was called for 22 fouls to Washington's 16 and played a man short for the last 61 minutes after Louie Nanchoff was sent off for tripping an opponent.

On Saturday Houston Hurricane defeated Toronto Blizzard 2-1, Philadelphia Fury crushed Rochester Lancers 3-0, Tampa Bay Rowdies edged Memphis Rogues 2-1, Fort Lauderdale Strikers blanked New England Tea Men 2-0, Portland Timbers outscored San Jose Earthquake 4-3 and New York Cosmos beat San Diego Sockers 2-1.

Washington already led Atlanta 2-0 when the Chiefs lost Nanchoff on goals by Mike Dillon and Alan Green in the 17th and 21st minute. Joe Horvath and Sonny Askew added to their margin before Atlanta broke through on a 20-yard shot by Jeff Bourne in the 73rd minute. Green's second goal three minutes later closed out the scoring.

David Robb, who scored more than 100 goals during a career with Aberdeen of the Scottish First Division, collected three goals to give the Fury its 3-0 victory.

Robb made his three goals within a span of 21 minutes and eight seconds in the second half.

Midfielder Wes McLeod and striker Mirandinha each scored a goal in the first half for Tampa Bay.

Walter Schubert hit a left-footed shot in the tie-breaker shootout to give Houston its victory.

Schubert, a West German player, set-up Houston's lone goal in regulation time with pass to Kie Haaskivi.

Paulo Mata scored for Toronto.

Teofilo Cubillas, a Peruvian World Cup star signed just three weeks ago, scored a quick goal that was all Strikers goalie Arnie Mausser needed. Forward Nico Bodonczy scored the second.

Seninho scored in sudden death overtime to give the defending NASL champion New York Cosmos their season-opening victory.

New York had taken a 1-0 halftime lead on a goal by Giorgio Chinaglia at 40:18, but San Diego came back to tie it at 46:29 when Ade Coker headed in a shot past Cosmos' goalkeeper Erol Yasin.

Bateman Extends Win Streak to Six

Terry Bateman of Victoria Mercuries captured the Adidas Grand Prix junior men's 5,000-metre cross country event at the University of British Columbia, Sunday, with a 15-second victory over Steve Pybus of Vancouver Olympic Club.

It was the sixth straight victory for Bateman and the seventh race of the eight-race series.

Peter Spirr of the Vancouver Olympic Club captured the 10,000 metre open competition.

At Cherry Point, near Cowichan Bay, Jon Smith of Victoria finished first in the Ceevac April Fool's Day 10,000 metre mini-marathon in 31:05 while Anne Harrison was the first female runner home in 40:01. Eighty competitors took part.

Burnaby Too Strong For Braves in Playoff

BURNABY — Burnaby Blazers, showing depth and balance, bounced Saanich Braves in two straight games to capture the Pacific Coast junior "B" hockey championship.

Winners of Friday's opener 6-2, Burnaby beat Saanich 7-4 Saturday to sweep the best-of-three series and advance to the provincial final.

Saanich started strongly Saturday, grabbing an early 2-0 lead, but the Blazers pulled ahead by ramming in five straight goals.

Geoff Wilkinson sparked Burnaby with two goals.

Jack Wallis, Steve Craig, Scott Connors and Ed Beauchemin connected for Saanich.

Netminder Steve Hanna turned in a strong performance for the Braves as Burnaby outshot Saanich 57-27.

Red Burnett, 68, Dies of Heart Attack

TORONTO (CP) — Robert J. (Red) Burnett, a sports writer with The Star for more than 50 years, died Sunday of a heart attack. He was 68.

Burnett, who joined the Star in the mid 1920s, retired in June, 1975, but came back to work part-time as a copy editor in the sports department. His last shift was Saturday night.

Burnett was best known for his hockey writing.

Wests Edge A's In Cup Contest

Victoria West ousted Victoria Athletics from Jackson Cup competition with a 2-1, semi-final victory Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

However, Athletics have already qualified for the British Columbia championship Province Cup playoff by clinching the Vancouver Island Soccer League first division title.

The Jackson Cup winner and the first division regular-season champion both represent the Island League in the nine-team tournament for the B.C. crown and a berth in the Canadian championship.

Dan Henry scored what proved to be the winning goal for Wests on a pass from Steve Moss seven minutes after relieving Steve Forslund, who was injured at 62 minutes.

Forslund had opened scoring at 21 minutes off a cross from John McGuire and George Pakos equalized for Athletics 14 minutes later after being sent in on the left side by Mark Robb.

Wests, who have won the Jackson Cup a total of 13 times, later this month will face the winner of next Saturday's other semi-final, between Gorge of the first division and Prospect Lake of the second division.

In regular first division play at the weekend, Nanaimo United climbed into sixth place by winning two matches — a 3-0 Sunday shutout over Duncan Selects in Duncan and a 2-1 Saturday win over Cosmopolitan Royals at Nanaimo.

Oak Bay tripped Nanaimo City 2-1 in another match Sunday in Nanaimo.

Ron Sage scored twice at five and 20 minutes to give United a 2-0 lead at the half against Selects and John Williams finished things off at 78 minutes. On Saturday, Ray Telford scored a 76 minutes to give United the win after Sage and Mark Wyatt of Royals had traded goals at 10 and 25 minutes, respectively.

Oak Bay took a 2-0 lead at the half on goals by Mike Sails (at 10 minutes on a penalty shot) and Alex Nelson (25 minutes) while Paul Butler counted for Nanaimo City on a penalty shot at 75 minutes.

In other Sunday action, Metro Toyota added the playoff title to its second division regular-season laurels by edging Castaways 2-1 in an overtime struggle; Port Alberni edged Campbell River 1-0 in a third-division playoff semi-final; Castaways dropped Victoria Athletics 3-1 in the fourth division playoff final and Saanich Police downed UVic Norsemen 1-0 by default in a makeup match; and Health Spa beat Duncan Merchants 1-0 by default in the fifth division consolation final.

Tide a Winner, Birds Take Cup

Crimson Tide, the Vancouver Island Rugby Union representative side, clipped Fraser Valley 21-14 in a McKechnie Cup match Sunday at Queen's Park in New Westminster.

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds took the title, however, by beating Vancouver 3-0 in another match the same day to finish the round-robin series with a 3-0 record.

Tide finished at 2-1 after suffering a 10-9 loss to Thunderbirds earlier in the annual competition while Fraser Valley ended up at 1-2 and Vancouver 0-3.

The VIRU reps had a hard fight to top a much-improved Fraser Valley squad and were only ahead 6-4 at half time.

Three players from Oak Bay Wanderers — Peter Monaghan, Peter Kilshaw and Greg Smith — scored single tries for Tide. Brooke Smith of UVic Vikings contributed a rare penalty try on an interference call and Pat Trelawney kicked one penalty goal and a conversion.

International player Ken Peace, Marsh Iannone and Ian Paton each scored a try for Fraser Valley and Jim Donaldson was good on one conversion attempt.

In the junior match for the Japan Cup, Crimson Tide topped Fraser Valley, 14-10.

Don Dreiger, Derick Ash and Mike de Goede each scored a try and Mark Pinckard booted a conversion for the junior Tide.

Results of regular VIRU matches at the weekend:

Bermuda Blanks Canada In Zone Soccer Tourney

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuter) — Bermuda beat Canada and the United States beat Mexico in Sunday's opening rounds of the North American zone qualifying soccer tournament, from which the top two countries will go through to the Pan American Games in Puerto Rico in July.

Bermuda, which led 2-0 at halftime, defeated Canada, 3-0. Andre Amory scored in the sixth minute and Ralph Bean in the 14th and 87th minutes.

In the second game of the round-robin tournament, the United States, which led 1-0 at halftime, beat Mexico 2-1 on goals were scored by Angelo DiBernardo of the Los Angeles Aztecs in the 44th minute and George Nanchoff of the Atlanta Chiefs in the 69th minute. Felipe Camparan of Mexico scored in the 71st minute.

World Curling Test A European Show

BERN, Switzerland (CP) — It was a European show at the 1979 men's world curling championship, with the Canadians relegated to spectators in the final game for the seventh consecutive year.

Norway's Kristian Soerum, who eliminated Barry Fry of Winnipeg 6-3 in the semi-finals, won his country's first world title with a 5-4 verdict over Peter Attinger of Switzerland.

Saturday's final, the 51st game in the tournament, which will be held in Moncton, N.S., next year, was close all the way and tied 4-4 entering the 10th and last end.

Soerum, representing Norway for the fourth year in a row and a 6-4 loser in the 1978 final to Bob Nichols of the United States, stole one in the last end when Attinger went through the house with a open draw.

"I think we learned a little bit every year," Soerum said. "We found out about the tactics of the game and how to slide and throw a stone properly. We hope this will help to make curling grow in Norway."

Norway, with an estimated 5,000 curlers, and Switzerland with 20,000, both made their world curling debuts in 1961. That was the year the late Lyall Dagg of Vancouver beat Norway 15-2 and whipped Switzerland 20-4 on his way to the title.

"Times have changed," said Canadian lead Bryan Wood, playing in his third world tournament — a winner the previous two times with skip Don Duguid of Winnipeg in 1970 and 1971.

"Both Norway and the Swiss, from eight or nine years ago, are much, much better. Including all the rinks, the tournament is tougher. All the rinks are much improved over that time. And the Swiss and Norwegians are on a par with us.

Attinger, who finished first in round-robin play at 7-2, moved to the final in Allmend Ice Stadium with a 9-5 win over Keith Wendorf of West Germany in semi-final play Saturday.

After the final game, held before a crowd of 10,179 — the largest ever to watch a single match — Wendorf was selected by fellow curlers as the player who displayed the most sportsmanship.

The Canadians, who qualified for the semi-finals after beating the U.S. in a tie-breaker game Friday night, were inconsistent in round-robin play.

In the semi-final against Norway, the Canadians were mediocre, Fry said.

Fastest Canadian Nationals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Nancy Garapick of Halifax won the women's 100 metre butterfly event Sunday in 1:01.11, a Canadian record, at the Canadian amateur swimming championships and Pan American Games trials.

Garapick was well ahead of runner-up Susan Sloan of Toronto, whose time was 1:01.47. Wendy Quirk of Edmonton, who held the previous Canadian record of 1:01.29, was third at 1:02.32.

It was the third first-place finish of the meet for Garapick, who earlier in the four-day competition won the women's 200 metre and 400 metre individual medley events in 2:13.18 and 4:41.43.

"It's the fastest Canadian nationals I can ever recall," said Garapick, a veteran competitor at only 17 years of age.

Garapick's efforts in the individual medley events were the world's best times but are not world records, because they were achieved on a 25-metre course, instead of the standard 50-metre length.

Peter Szmidt of Pointe Claire, Que. won the men's 1500 metre freestyle Sunday in 15:26.31, beating the previous Canadian record of 15:26.81. Alex Baumann of Sudbury was second at 15:32.15 and Bruce Berger of New Westminster placed third in 15:38.40.

Szmidt earlier on the weekend won the men's 200 metre and 400 metre freestyle events. He had the same time as Bill Sawchuk of Thunder Bay in the 100 metre men's freestyle, but Sawchuk was declared the winner. Earlier in the meet, Sawchuk won two other events — the 200 metre butterfly and the 400 metre individual medley. Graham Smith of Edmonton and Cheryl Gibson of Toronto also won three events each.

Dan Thompson of Toronto captured the men's 100 metre butterfly event Sunday in 51.84, followed by Clay Evans of Vancouver at 55.73. Stephen Pickell of Toronto, whose 1977 time of 54.25 stands as a Canadian record, was third at 55:91.

Anne Gagnon of Quebec City took the women's 200 metre breaststroke in 2:34.70, with Johanne Bedard of Quebec City second at 2:35.47 and Robin Corsiglia of Montreal third at 2:35.68. Corsiglia, 16, set the Canadian record of 2:33.27 two years ago.

Smith won the men's 200 metre breaststroke, turning in a Canadian record time of 2:16.87. Smith, 20, had held the record of 2:18.37 since 1976. Greg Wurzbach of Edmonton was second at 2:17.89, with Bruce Kent of Montreal third at 2:19.68. Earlier in the meet, Smith set Canadian records in the men's 200 metre individual medley and in the 100 metre breaststroke.

Carol Klimpel of Toronto won the women's 50 metre freestyle in 26:43, well off the Canadian record of 26.01. Anne Jardin and Debbie Gaigneault of Pointe Claire, Que. were second and third, respectively.

In the men's 50 metre freestyle, Graham Welbourn of Quebec City emerged the winner with 23.20. Gary MacDonald of Toronto, holder of the Canadian record of 22.84, was second, followed by Pat McConnell of Cornwall, Ont.

Gibson won the women's 800 metre freestyle in 8:41.82, followed by Barb Shockey of Saskatoon and third-place Leslie Brafield of Toronto.

Whalers Fire Dineen, Lose Again at Home

Times News Services

New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association fired coach Bill Dineen Sunday and replaced him with Don Blackburn.

The firing was announced shortly before the Whalers' game against the visiting Edmonton Oilers. Going into the game, New England was third with a 33-29-9 won-lost-tied record, but had lost seven of its last eight games at home.

The change didn't help. Oilers defeated the Whalers 5-3 to tag New England with another home-ice loss.

Dineen, who joined the Whalers this season after winning two WHA titles in six years with the defunct Houston Aeros, will remain with New England as a scout.

The Whalers are among four WHA teams being absorbed into the National Hockey League next season but team officials declined to say if Blackburn would retain the job.

Edmonton's win, combined with Winnipeg Jets' 7-3 victory over Quebec, enabled Oilers to take a a three-point hold on first place over the Nordiques.

Birmingham beat Cincinnati 6-3 in a Saturday game marred by a bench-clearing brawl.

Overtime Battles In Hockey Semis

Oak Bay and Rebels I advanced to the playoff final of the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association by winning semi-final matches in overtime Sunday.

The final is scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday at UVic.

Oak Bay overcame a 2-0 halftime deficit to edge UVic 3-2 at Windsor Park and Rebels I topped Rebels II 2-0 after playing to a scoreless draw in regulation time at Oak Bay High School.

Dave Billingham scored his second goal of the game at the start of the second 15-minute overtime period to give Oak Bay the victory after the clubs had finished regulation play in a 2-2 deadlock.

Eric Kjekstad also counted for the Bays. Mark Charlton and Julian Fekis notched Uvic tallies.

Brian Foley and Narinder Nandhra scored for Rebels I.

Leafs Trim T-Men In Deciding Game

Rob Coldwell and Dale Cook each scored twice Sunday to give Esquimalt Maple Leafs a 9-3 triumph over Port Alberni Timbermen in the third game of the best-of-three Vancouver Island intermediate hockey championship series at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Leafs now advance to the semi-finals of the British Columbia championship for the Coy Cup against North Shore Hurry Kings, starting Friday in Vancouver. The best-of-three series continues Saturday and, if necessary, Sunday with the winner going on to the final in Prince George the following weekend.

Bayden Robinson, Ron Poole, Rick Adams, Billy Gidden and Bill Jobson added single tallies for Esquimalt, which held period leads of 4-1 and 6-1.

Doug McVey scored twice for Timbermen, who tied the series at 1-1 with an 8-7, overtime decision over the Leafs on Saturday. Clubmate Brian Day contributed a single.

Steve Kishkan made 28 saves in the Esquimalt goal while Glen Goldbeck and Joe Hamilton combined to make 39 stops for Port Alberni.

On Saturday, Jerry Blanchette set the pace for Esquimalt with three goals and singles were added by Gerry Caldwell, Bob Martin, Chris Riddell and Cook.

In other Coy Cup quarter-finals decided at the weekend, Hurry Kings defeated Trail Smoke Eaters 5-2 Saturday to sweep a best-of-three series in straight games and Prince George Mohawks beat Kamloops Cowboys 6-2 Saturday to win a best-of-seven series, 4-2.

Mohawks, defending Canadian intermediate champions, took their seventh consecutive Cariboo League title in a series that doubled as a Coy Cup quarter-final.

Mohawks will meet Prince Rupert Kings in the other best-of-three semi-final next weekend in Prince Rupert.

Grand National 'Murderous Event'

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuter) — The victory by Rubstic in the Grand National steeplechase Saturday at Aintree has been overshadowed by the tragic irony of Alverton's death following criticism of the contest from an unlikely source, East Germany.

The East German connection with one of sport's greatest institutions came in the form of a mid-week critique of the annual race by the sports daily, The Sportsecho. The paper called it a murderous event in which some 300 horses had been killed and countless jockeys injured over the years, and said many of the fences, particularly the notorious Becher's Brook, were "literally neckbreaking."

So it sadly proved for Alverton, the 6-1 favorite who was well up among the contenders and apparently going smoothly until he hit Becher's for the second time six jumps from the finish Saturday.

As millions watched on television, Alverton seemed to clear the hurdle but not the ditch on the other side of it and crumpled to the ground with his legs flailing. Grief-stricken jockey Jonjo O'Neill said later: "He jumped it brilliantly the first time around but he met it all wrong the second time. He hit the fence with his chest and landed on his head. Poor Alverton broke his neck and was killed instantly."

It was one of the roughest Nationals in recent times, with only seven of the 34 starters finishing the race and a second horse, Kintai, having to be destroyed after breaking his back. Two jockeys suffered minor injuries.

Part of the trouble stemmed from the problems posed by riderless horses that remained on the course and interfered with the field at the massive Chair Jump — considered even more difficult than Becher's. Already there has been criticism of the setup of guide rails on the course which prevent the loose horses from getting off the track and which Saturday seemed to guide them back into the path of the field.

Local member of Parliament, Simon Mahon, later called the National a "cruel and abhorrent event" that should be scrapped and the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals demanded greater controls.

RSPCA spokesman Mike Funnell said: "This course is a killer. It proved it again Saturday."

Opening lead — ace of diamonds.

Here is a hand played by Sam Fry, Jr., New York expert, way back in 1934. It seems impossible to make four hearts against proper defense by East-West, but the fact is that not only did Fry make the contract but also there was no way of stopping him.

West led the ace of diamonds on which East signaled for continuation by playing the eight. But West then played a spade at trick two and Fry realized that East had started with an eight-card diamond suit — because it would have made no sense for West to shift to a spade if he had another diamond to lead.

Taking full advantage of this knowledge, Fry won the spade shift with the king, led a low trump to the ace, played a spade to dummy's ace, led the jack of trumps from dummy, and finessed!

This deliberate loss of a trump trick to West's queen was certainly extraordinary, but it was the only way to make the contract. West stewed for a long time, trying to find a suitable reply to the Greek gift he had received, but there was no escape from this dilemma.

Actually, West now played the ace and another club. This permitted Fry to cash three club tricks and dispose of his diamond loser, so the end result was that Fry made four hearts.

It would not have helped West to lead a spade after taking his queen of hearts. In that case, declarer ruffs the spade in dummy, discarding a club from his hand, and plays a low club to the king. West takes the king with the ace and returns a club to dummy's queen, but declarer then ruffs a club, establishing dummy's fourth club as a trick, and crosses to dummy with a trump to discard his diamond loser on the eight of clubs.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, April 3
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Define meanings — get factual data, especially where property, land are concerned. Pisces, Virgo, Libra persons could figure prominently. Be alert — someone is attempting to sell you proverbial bill of goods!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on piecing together bits of information — you can come up with complete story. Romance, wishful thinking, creative thinking, imagination all play important roles. Relative may attempt to "shift responsibility." Protect your own interests!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get money facts on the record. You may be carrying burden not rightfully your own. Know it, take steps accordingly. Income potential is enhanced if you refuse to bow to limitations imposed by "ordinary" people.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Break new ground, encourage fresh concepts. Take initiative. Stress independence of thought, action. Original thinking is your ally. Be brave in expressing your ideas. Love is very much a part of scenario.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What seems faded will come into focus. Follow through on teaching program. Your ability to sense pulse of public surges to forefront. Individual, with interest in psychology, seeks your counsel. Be co-operative, but don't give up something of value for mere flattery.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Wish is fulfilled if you make sufficient inquiries. Means ask questions, put out "feelers." Get antenna up — you could be on brink of remarkable discovery. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Humor could be a major ally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stand tall for rights, decisions. Aquarius, Scorpio, Leo individuals figure prominently. Superior is ready to make room for you at top. Goal is available — you can grab brass ring. Be confident, despite apparent obstacles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Communicate, write, paint, illustrate meanings. Find creative outlets — bridge distance, language barriers. A "very special person" is in your life — now and "forever." Gemini, Cancer and Virgo persons are part of your personal scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family member "takes over," resolves dilemma. Be diplomatic, but strive to find where the money is going. Check contracts, leases, credit cards. Discuss budget with one close to you. Mysterious experience should not be cause for fear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Go slow, heed feelings expressed by spouse, partner or legal counsel. Avoid self-deception. See in light of actuality. One who is fond of "creating illusion" will let you in on a secret. Be discreet. Your ability to keep a confidence is being tested.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accept challenge of added responsibility — one who shares basic interests will aid. Know it, act accordingly. Emphasis on employment, services, health, utilizing past experience to fulfill current obligations.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish rather than initiate project. Deal with Aries, Libra, Scorpio persons. You can extend sphere of influence. Love is very much a part of scenario. Accent on excitement of change, variety, creativity, short trip in connection with special communication.

IF APRIL 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are original, versatile, have tendency to scatter forces. Your sense of humor is an asset — you are capable of experimenting, expressing yourself in unique manner and of laughing at your own foibles. Body image is more important to you than the average person. Your weigh could be of concern — proper nutrition, excercise should be high on agenda. You are artistic, impatient, generally popular. You tend to draw to you persons who are restless, daring, fond of travel. Gemini, Sagittarius individual play significant roles in your life.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

The children were playing on the floor when Steve looked in. "What a lot of marbles," he said. "You seem to have four different colors, but only two yellow ones."

"That's right," Tommy replied. "A quarter of them are red, a third are green, and we've got half again as many blue as red."

How many in all?

Thanks for idea to Eileen Dalton, Ennis, Erie.

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Veteran Joanne Carner, bagged her second victory in three weeks Sunday by sinking a two-foot par putt on the second extra hole to defeat Japan's Chako Higuchi after a five-way playoff in the $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Carner, equalling her 1978 victory total, moved past Nancy Lopez in money winnings with $61,300.

Carner, who turns 40 next week, fired a final day 71. She birdied No. 14 and finished with four consecutive pars. The victory paid her $22,500. The other four won $9,675 each.

Higuchi, who shot a 73, saw her six-foot par putt slide past the final playoff hole.

Lopez, who was bidding for her third consecutive victory, started the day with a two-stroke lead but bogeyed four of the last eight holes to finish in a tie with Carner, Higuchi, Jan Stephenson and Donna Caponi Young. The quintet finished at two-over-par 286 for 72 holes on the par-71, 6,134-yard Mesa Verde Country Club course.

Lopez, Stephenson and Young dropped out on the first overtime hole with bogeys.

Jo Ann Washam made pro golfing history Sunday by making a hole-in-one on the par-three, 168-yard seventh hole and becoming the first player to score two holes-in-one in the same tournament.

Carner, four strokes behind most of the week, said she "never dreamed" she had a chance when she entered the clubhouse two over par. "But I knew there were many critical putts to be made."

She added: "The golf course beat everybody." Only six players broke par in the final round.

Washam and Judy Rankin finished two strokes behind the leaders at 288.

Lopez, who had ten straight pars before running into bogey trouble on 11 and 13, said afterwards, "I was lucky to get as far as I did. I'm still struggling."

Watson Shot Lights Out

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP) — Ed Sneed probably put the outcome of the Heritage golf tournament in proper focus.

"I played about as well as I can," Sneed said thoughtfully. "I can't conceive shooting a lower number on this golf course. And Tom (Watson) beat me by five shots.

Watson, the front-runner all the way, needed only a final round of par 71 to win the tournament by a comfortable five strokes and, in the process, set a tournament scoring record for the Harbour Town Golf Links — a demanding layout Watson ranks among the great courses in the country.

"It's unbelievable — the score Watson shot," saidd Sneed, who finished in the runner-up position. "The way he played all week is unbelievable. He shot the lights out."

He did, indeed.

"It's always a thrill to win a tournament," Watson said. "It's doubly thrilling to win on a golf course you love. It's triply thrilling to win with a record."

The record was his 270 total, 14 shots under par and one better than the old mark Jack Nicklaus set on this resort island layout off the South Carolina coast in 1975.

It was Watson's 12th triumph on the Professional Golfers' Association tour — plus two British Open titles — and his first of the season.

He collected $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and took the lead in the season's money-winning race, with $145,965.

Evert Stages Comeback

Chris Evert of the United States, in her final competitive match before her wedding, fought back for a 3-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Dianne Fromholtz of Australia in the championship match of a $200,000 women's tennis tournament Sunday at Carlsbad, Calif.

Evert, who will marry British tennis pro John Lloyd on April 17, was soundly beaten in the first set and trailed 3-1 in the second before turning the match around.

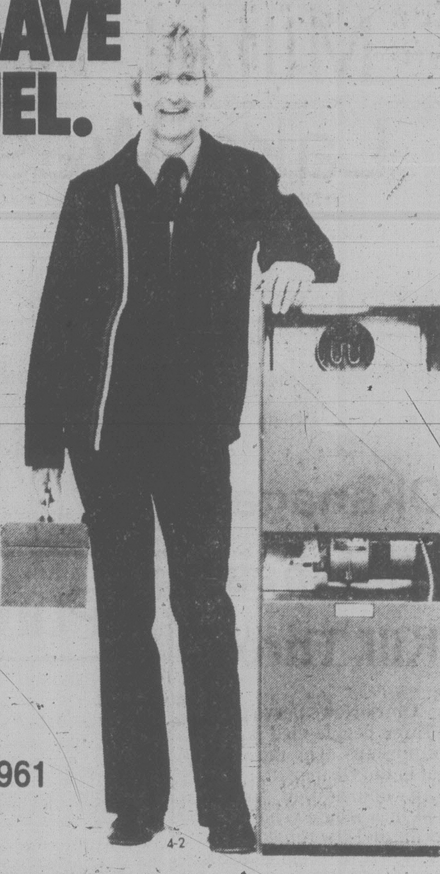
It was love-30 in the fifth game of the second set, Evert serving, when the long-time queen of women's tennis won five of the ensuing six points for a much-needed victory that started her comeback.

Victory was worth $100,000 to Evert, who defeated teen-ager Tracy Austin 6-1, 7-5 in Saturday's opening matches. Fromholtz, a 22-year-old southpaw who shocked favored Martina Navratilova 7-5, 6-1 Saturday, earned $50,000.

At Milan, Italy, John McEnroe of the United States defeated Australian John Alexander 6-4, 6-3 Sunday to win a World Championship Tennis tournament.

The 20-year-old lefthander, who picked up $35,000 with the victory, beat countryman Vitas Gerulaitis in the semi-finals Saturday.

Alexander had eliminated top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden in the quarter-finals of the tournament. He earned $17,000.



ESSO ECONOBLUE: THE NEW LITTLE FURNACE THAT CAN SAVE A LOT OF FUEL.

The new Esso Econoblue takes up only 3½ square feet of floor space. Yet it is designed for maximum fuel economy.

This oil-fired, forced air system uses a better mixture of air and oil vapour for more complete combustion. And because the mixture is also recycled, you get more heat out of every drop of oil.

If your old furnace works at 66% efficiency, for example, Econoblue could reduce oil consumption by 20%. This means if you now use 750 gallons of fuel a year, Econoblue could save you 150 gallons.

So, if your furnace has been showing signs of age lately, don't wait until it gives up altogether.

Call Esso Home Comfort. The sooner you do, the sooner you'll start saving fuel.

Outdoor Access Limits Eyed

SORRENTO (CP) — The B.C. government may have to limit public access to the outdoors because wildlife and its habitat is being threatened, Rafe Mair, provincial environment minister, said Saturday.

Mair, speaking to an environmental group in this community about 60 kilometres northeast of Kamloops, said much of the access to B.C.'s expansive area has been artificially created by logging roads.

While some persons may view that as desirable because more people can experience the outdoors, he said, others argue the impact is disastrous because game populations and their habitats are destroyed.

He said the government may have to step in and settle these irreconcilable opinions by limiting public access or wildlife must bow to public encroachment.

The minister did not say how the government might limit public access.

He told the group, the Thompson-Shuswap Research and Development Association, that both business and citizens must do their part to preserve the environment.

Business should help — not by apologizing for what it has done wrong or by improving public relations by pointing out what it has done right — but by avoiding damage in the first place.

The public, he said, must not forget that it's the person who throws the beer can into the river who is sullying the environment — not the company that makes the can.

The public also must be prepared to spend money to salvage the environment, he said. The government, however, must find better ways to involve citizens when it makes decisions about the environment because the public put it in power.

He said the public will be consulted more in the future.

Prison Risks Admitted

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The director of a medium-security prison which will be be built here by 1983 says that the facility will pose some risks to the community.

John Stonoski said the majority of the 450 to 500 prisoners the facility will hold will serve terms of five to 10 years for such crimes as breaking and entering, fraud, robbery, manslaughter, rape, drug trafficking and murder.

Security will be geared to handle prisoners "who do not actively try to escape but would seize the opportunity to do so should it present itself," he said.

The prison will be surrounded by a double four-metre fence topped with razor wire. There will be four towers manned by armed guards and one armed perimeter vehicle patrol 24 hours a day.

Stonoski said the prison will operate under the living unit philosophy, a set-up which combines counselling and custodial functions in each officer.

A vigorous work program will give prisoners a choice between vocational, academic and industrial programs.

He said a regular feature of the prison will be temporary absence permits and day paroles.

Prisoners who qualify are entitled to three days leave every three months.

Mackenzie Loggers Stay Out

MACKENZIE (CP) — About 600 workers voted Sunday to remain off the job at three British Columbia Forest Products mills in a dispute over overtime.

The employees, members of Local 18 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, walked out Friday night at the plants in this northeastern B.C. community.

A union spokesman said the workers walked out to protest the company's use of operators on overtime while other employees are available. The union also claims a supervisor at one of the mills verbally abused a production crew.

The spokesman said the workers voted to remain off the job until company officials agree to meet with the union to discuss the grievances.

Milfoil Threatens Lake Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — The Washington state department of ecology has been asked to issue a permit which would allow the use of herbicides to control infestations of Eurasian water milfoil along the shoreline of Lake Washington.

The permit would allow modifications of water-quality standards in five areas of the lake to allow use of the herbicides. A public hearing on the proposal is scheduled for April 10.

A-1 Spray Services Inc., a Tacoma firm hired by a group of Lake Washington property owners, has suggested the use of Aquakleen, which contains 2,4-D, or Aquathol or Aquathol K, chemicals containing dipotasssium salt of Endothall.

The state's draft environmental impact statement describing the use and effects of the chemicals said about 100 property owners asked A-1 to do the work.

Eurasian water milfoil is a fast-spreading water plant which first appeared in Seattle-area lakes several years ago. It has become a problem in the Okanagan Lake system in B.C. and experts fear it may spread into the Columbia River.

Okanagan Crashes Kill Three

Times News Services

Three people died in traffic mishaps over the weekend in the Okanagan.

An unidentified woman died in a single-vehicle car crash and two men were killed in a two-vehicle head-on collision. Both accidents occurred near Penticton.

A search is also under way for a missing diver identified as Gordon Booth, 24, of Gibsons who failed to surface while diving with two others off the southeast side of Gambier Island in Howe Sound early Saturday.

Randall Loyie, 20, and Christopher Jenner, 28, both of Kaleden were killed in a two-vehicle head-on collision early Saturday six kilometres south of Penticton.

Panorama Setback

CRANBROOK (CP) — An Alberta-based consortium has received a setback in its proposed plans to build a $150 million ski resort near Invermere in the East Kootenay.

The Cascade Group of Calgary bought the Panorama ski area last May with a plan to develop it into a major facility with a daily lift capacity of 10,000 skiers. Panorama now is a small, locally-oriented ski hill.

The East Kootenay Regional District, however, now has passed a six-month moratorium on zoning changes in the region. A district spokesman said the moratorium is in response to public concern over the speed with which proposed developments in the area are taking shape.

Cascade's first-stage proposals for Panorama Mountain now will be held up for at least six months.

Hair Styles for Spring

These are some of the latest in hairstyles for spring by Toronto hairstylist Kim Anthony.

Top right: Lots of thick, chunky curls you don't need to perm. Dry hair is sectioned and twisted into pin curls, wrapped with aluminum foil and each section is pressed with a hot curling iron. Hair is then unwrapped and brushed out.

Bottom right: The updo, influenced by the 1940s, was achieved by drawing all the hair to the top of the head and letting the curled ends frame the face.

Bottom left: For versatility, gather all the hair into one braid and, for an elegant touch, tuck the end of the braid under at the neck and secure with pins or twist the braid into a chignon on the top of the head.

Top left: Soft shoulder waves with lots of volume and movement is achieved with a roller set. Casual daytime look can be quickly transformed for evening by sweeping sides back and securing with combs and decorative pins.

Nostalgia Blossoms

family

EDMONTON (CP) — Some people thought Holly Harper was crazy when she opened her nostalgia clothing boutique three years ago.

Since then, three more nostalgia stores have opened, catering to those who prefer to wear feather boas, flapper dresses, fur-trimmed day suits and fake jewelry.

The department stores are following suit, filling racks with clothes reminiscent of the '30s, '40s and '50s and calling it the new nostalgic or retrospective look.

Eaton's brought in genuine old dresses for the Christmas trade and "they walked right out," says Robynne Ranft, the store's provincial fashion co-ordinator.

The nostalgia look features shorter and slimmer skirts, padded suit shoulders, little or no collar on blouses and jackets, defined and often belted waists, sky-scraper heels and hair done up in waves or vol-au-vent rolls to be tucked under hats.

What brought these styles back? The too-simple answer is that there's nothing new in fashion.

Some, with an eye on fashion trends, feel that people are seeking relief from the drab realities of today's world.

Ron Holgerson, special events co-ordinator with The Bay, says:

"The cities are becoming crowded. There's a recession, lack of employment. We need heroes and romance again."

They take on a '40s and '50s look which "is like costuming — dressing up in Mommy's clothes."

In the 1960s, just about anything was acceptable. But the '50s philosophy of dressing for the occasion is being adopted now.

"More women are entering the work force and it's inevitable that they'll have to dress the part just as men do with their three-piece suits."

Ms. Harper, who leans on Jane Austen's Sense and Sensibility for some of her conclusions, says previous generations have enjoyed, at the same time, social and very private lives. There were more social functions but little of one's personal self was disclosed.

'Tip-of-the-Tongue' Reading Problem

MONTREAL (CP) — Some reading disabilities may be due to memory problems, and not to perceptual difficulties, says a Harvard University psychologist.

Dr. Jerome Kagan, speaking here at a recent conference on children with learning disabilities, said many educationists believe that problems in perception such as seeing letters or words backwards are common causes of reading problems.

But after conducting a three-year study, he thinks some reading problems may be linked to a difficulty in remembering the information that is stored in the memory — a kind of "it's at the tip of my tongue" situation.

And he said the best way to help these students is to give them special tutoring, reduce their anxiety, build up their confidence, allow them to go slower and teach them memory tricks.

Most learning problems are related to socio-economic factors and to motivation, Kagan said.

Of the remaining 25 per cent of children with problems at school, some have severe emotional problems, while others have hearing or visual difficulties.

TORONTO (CP) — Most pregnant women are taking a less casual approach while expecting their babies and are being open-minded and sensible, says the head of the obstetrics and gynecology department at the University of Toronto.

Dr. John Harkins, who has delivered more than 2,000 babies in his 29-year career, said that mothers are insisting on a proper diet.

"They are opposed to drugs, they won't smoke and they want natural childbirth."

He calls this approach open-minded, healthful and sensible.

Not so sensible are young couples who want their child delivered at home, he said.

"It's a very dangerous practice," Dr. Harkins said.

"I'm opposed not only for the mother but the baby. If you see the trouble you can get into even in hospital . . . ."

He wants childbirth practices to go toward more sophisticated pre-natal health care.

It costs about $500,000 to raise a retarded child, a condition often resulting from birth complications, and only $35 a day to monitor a pregnancy and help prevent or reduce such complications.

"Yet governments quibble over a few million bucks to set up a type of care to decrease costs," Dr. Harkins said.

Funds should be channelled into services to ensure that Canadian mothers, fetuses and new-born babies receive the best possible care from the time a pregnancy is confirmed, he said.

Dr. Harkins is on an inter-hospital committee drawing up a plan to reduce infant death and illness across Metropolitan Toronto.

He said it's his dream for this year, the International Year of the Child, that the Ontario health ministry will agree to finance a network of improved care for expectant mothers.

Dr. Harkins, a former chairman of the examining board for obstetrics for the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, said the public tends to think an obstetrician is a "weary guy who gets up at night to catch babies."

But the medical speciality goes far beyond that, he said.

An obstetrician or gynecologist may be a surgeon operating on cancer, a physician treating heart or kidney disease, a specialist in treating women before pregnancy and new-born babies after, a researcher or a family planning counsellor.

"You see patients entrenched with the view they want a baby or an abortion or a sterilization. You really have to listen.

"One girl came with her parents who wanted her to have an abortion. I felt the girl really didn't want one and her father was ready to punch me out.

"Well, she had the baby, subsequently married the child's father and they're very happy. Her father eventually apologized to me."

Spring Footwear

NEW YORK (CP) — Spring '79 will see footwear with glove-like fabrications, bright colors and sculpted heels with echoes of the '40s, says the United States Footwear Council. It says shapes will be closer to the foot, rounder and softer in sports and dress shoes for both women and men.

Good News From MARGO
in the SHELBOURNE PLAZA

The MARGO BEAUTY STUDIO in the Shelbourne Plaza was the FIRST Margo Studio. For eighteen years, it has been noted for its friendly, courteous, and efficient staff.

We know that you will be pleased with the service of any of the eight experienced stylists at the SHELBOURNE PLAZA MARGO'S.

MISS JO
Look who has returned to hairdressing. Jo was for years a great favourite of many Margo customers. At present Jo is only working two days a week, Wednesday and Friday. We hope that many of Jo's former customers will call to welcome her back to her old location in the Shelbourne Plaza.

MISS CHERYLE
Cheryle came to Margo's almost a year ago after six years in Up-Island salons. Her happy, courteous manner, as well as her expertise in all phases of hairdressing, have made Cheryle a most popular stylist.

MISS LINDA
Linda comes to us from Newfoundland with a two-year stint at a Kamloops salon on the way. We have been very impressed by Linda's workmanship, and we heartily recommend her to all. (There is also a Linda at our Hillside Studio, so be sure to phone the right one!)

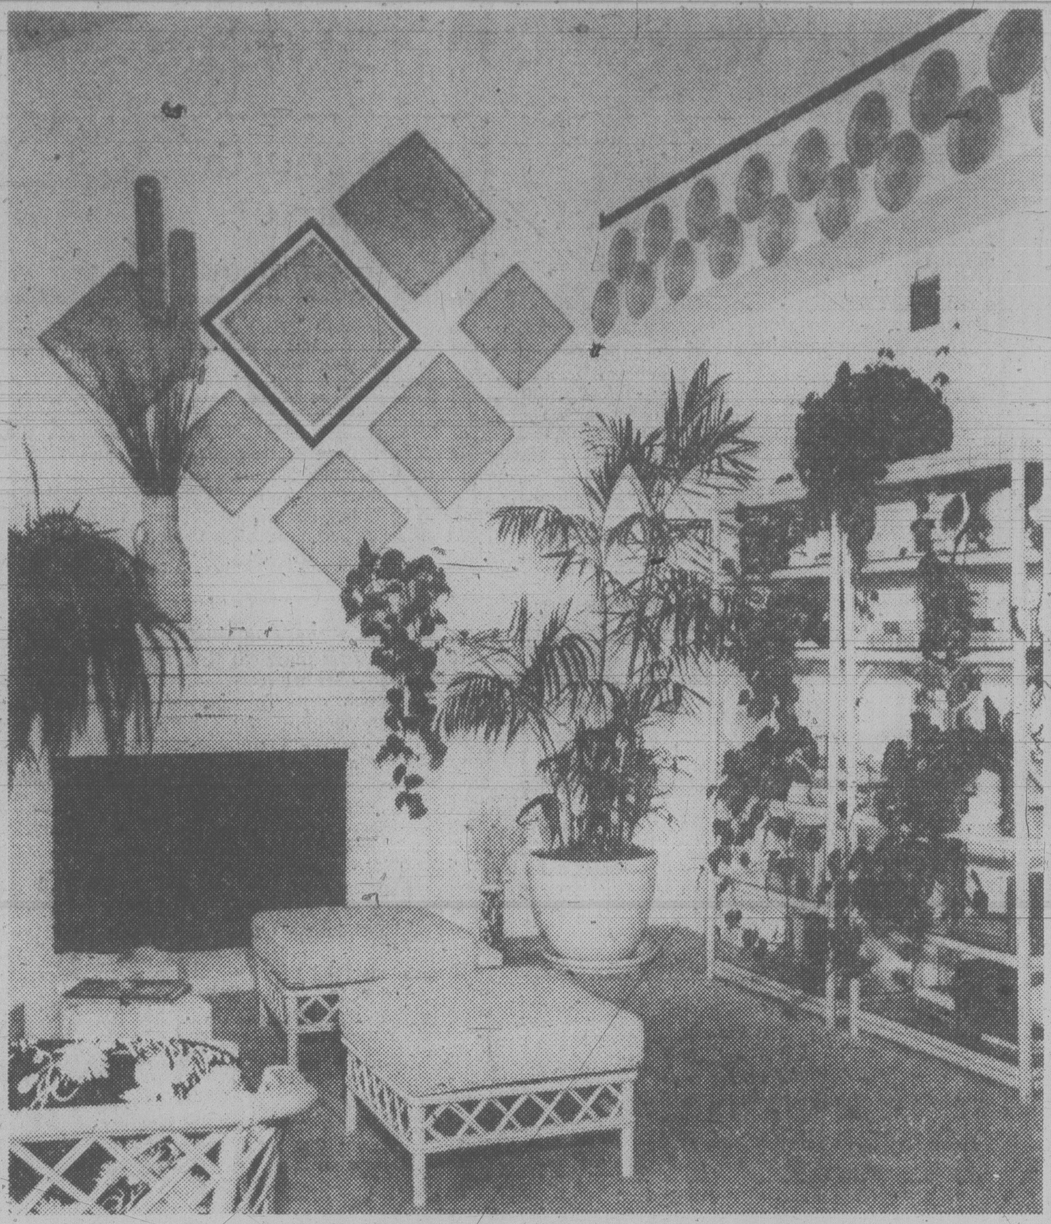
A Business Built on Customer Confidence and Goodwill



White walls, light colors provide a good environment for indoor plants

Decor Dispels the Blahs

By PAULINE GRAVES

A cheerful house can dispel the blahs almost as fast as a vacation.

The cheeriness might evolve merely from a new paint job in bright colors, cushions in spring-like prints or fresh accessories that compel the eye away from the familiar backgrounds.

A case in point is the room shown here, by decorator Pat Yeiser. The entire room says "spring", from the painted wicker furniture to the many healthy plants placed strategically around the room. Most eye-catching, though, and truly pace-making are the assorted trays and shallow baskets on the walls, used in lieu of pictures or wallpaper. Lacquered and bright yellow, the trays in varying sizes comprise the fireplace grouping, the largest, 24 inches by 24 inches, outlined by a 2-inch wide blue stripe which makes it undeniably the centre of attention.

The surrounding sizes are 20-inches by 20-inches and 15 by 15. Note that the off-side position of the grouping has more interest than if it were centered. However, the plants and the dried arrangement on the mantel provide needed balance.

Continuing the yellow along the adjacent wall, round shallow baskets, 10 inches in diameter, also lacquered, march in a double row along the front of the soffit, or enclosed beam. A 2-inch wide painted blue stripe along the top of the soffit brings cohesion to the basket lines, keeping them as a grouping and relating them to the nearby tray arrangement.

Nancy Walker thinks she has a solution for The Guest Who Wouldn't Leave.

If you have a visitor who tends to stay around for six-week stretches, Walker says, "the best thing is to paint lots of vibrant colors in the room. That will drive her out in about three days."

Walker comes from Riverside, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, where they make no bones about disliking unwelcome visitors. She is also president of the National Home Fashions League and a recognized expert in the use of color.

Matching colors and furniture are out. Laid-back colors and shiny accessories are in, she says.

For today's generation, "one piece becomes the focal point. Everything else (including color) is chosen around it. The piece may not be necessarily expensive, nor necessarily matching. People want to be individuals. They don't want their room looking like everybody else's."

Walker hasa few tips for consumers:

—It is a myth, says Walker, that white ceilings are necessary to reflect light. "That's a big fallacy. Unless you beam a light directly on the ceiling, it's always in full shadow. You can continue light colors right up from the wall."

—Be careful when using light colors on all four walls. "Most people don't realize that with warm colors, such as yellow, you have four walls reflecting on each other. It's best to select a shade paler."

—One color, if painted on each wall, and used on the floor, may not appear the same everywhere. "A lot of people like to continue the floor color into the walls. The wall color should be a shade lighter in value (but the same hue), because the side walls are in half shadow."

Never spray a cleaner onto glass covering a painting, says a collector. The fine mist from the spray can seep over the edge of the glass and onto the painting. Instead, spray the cloth, then clean the glass. Do the same to a mirror framed in gilt and the cleaner won't harm the gilt.

Halt Church Suppers? Ridiculous

Leslie Holbrook

Many of us native-born oldsters — perhaps most of us — grew up in communities where church suppers, strawberry teas, turkey dinners, bake sales, bazaars and, on the coasts, seafood festivals were important and enjoyable events.

Town as well as rural folk looked forward to these fine feeds in their own communities and often travelled considerable distances to take in community meals that had acquired special reputations for the quality and quantity of their offerings.

All this could come to an end if bureaucrats in Ontario's Durham Region had their way and their decision spread to other areas. Churches, fraternal and service organizations, and community centres were advised that food cannot be cooked in private home and transported to public premises for consumption.

No one quarrels with the argument that our health inspectors should protect us from food poisoning, but this ruling is ridiculous. It is reassuring to see some sanity follow when the provincial minister of health told his officials to exercise discretion when applying restaurant rules to community events.

Some of the finest food I have ever tasted was at a church lawn, potluck supper; some of the worst food I've been offered came from a fancy restaurant.

I would much prefer these choice church meals served by clean, friendly family cooks than many commercial dishes slapped down by sloppy waitresses with long hair sweeping across my food.

As churches and community clubs vie with each other to provide the best banquet of the season you can almost bet on the food originating in clean kitchens (older cooks, particularly, are trained that way).

As a former roving reporter for the hospitality trade I have run into enough questionable cooking, food storage and handling to fully support strict food inspection. This should apply to any food offered for sale including at community suppers; but the blanket ruling seemed unnecessary, especially when authorities provided no evidence that poisoning or even upset tummys had stemmed from these favorite community gatherings.

On the same front page of a paper carrying the story of the rigid ruling was another story about booze and bare breasts in swinging city eateries. Now there seems to be a more logical spot for checking up on hygienic conditions. Others areas include beverage rooms where spilled beer spreads over tables, wiped up periodically by a waiter's far-from-clean rag.

In any event, it is good to see that they had second, sobering thought about home-cooking. My gosh, such overly-strict interpretation of regulations would preclude even the family picnic — if mother baked anything in advance.

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: I'll be buying a new car in the near future and am seriously considering a Firebird. The 350-cid V-8 option consists of "Oldsmobile, Buick and Chevrolet-made engines," according to the manufacturer. Do you recommend one of these engines over the other two for dependability and longevity?—CONFUSED

DEAR CON: No, because to me they're so similar in terms of quality that one is every bit as good as the other. And they're all good. Bear with me a moment, but to go beyond your question, I feel that the controversy about Chevrolet engines in Oldsmobiles is meaningless. Millions of miles driving show no difference in longevity nor wear characteristics nor even fuel economy for similar-sized, similarly aspirated General Motors V-8's. And that includes even the Cadillac 350-cid V-8, whose block is cast by Oldsmobile.

DEAR MIKE: What are your thoughts on synthetic oils? Are they economical over the long haul? Do synthetic oils increase gas mileage? Is there less engine wear?—SYNOIL

DEAR SYNOIL: My experience with synthetic oils is limited to one trial in a 1978 Fairmont 6. In this case, I've found the use of a synthetic oil not economical. But I suspect (repeat, suspect) it does boost fuel mileage by a small amount. This Fairmont uses one quart of syntheic oil per 2,000 miles, so in terms of saving on the oil itself, no such luck. I change the Fairmont's filter every 6,000 miles, which takes an extra quart at that time. This means a total of $52 in oil alone up to the first change at 15,000 miles. I don't dare go to 25,000 miles despite assurances that the oil will stand up. As to whether synthetic oils increase engine life, I can't say, but I've had no trouble getting hundreds of thousands of miles out of many engines using conventional oil, proper care, and regular changes. So until the price of synthetic oil comes down by about 50% — or unless your engine burns no oil at all between filter changes — I'd be tempted to stick with conventional oils.

DEAR ABBY: When my parents were first married, they tried for years to have a child, but could not. They finally gave up hope and adopted me. Two years later they adopted my brother. I am now 19.

After 24 years of marriage, my mother became pregnant! She was 47 and my father was 55. They were thrilled, and are now the proud parents of a baby girl. And what a beautiful baby she is!

Abby, please tell couples who think there is no hope of ever having a child to hang in there and they might be as lucky as my parents.

MARCIA

DEAR MARCIA: Your parents are luckier than some who became parents in their later years.

My medical expert, Dr. John A. Haugen, a fine obstetrician and gynecologist for over 40 years says, "A child born of a woman in her 40s runs a much greater risk of being defective." (Particularly Down's Syndrome — better known as mongolism.)

True, tests can be done in mid-pregnancy to detect abnormalities. If an abnormality exists, the pregnancy can be terminated but this (the test) is quite a major undertaking. Also, mothers in their 40s are more apt to have complications and more difficult labors. Finally, most parents in their 60s find raising teenagers no picnic.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a doctor who examined me and said I needed some medicine. He didn't write a prescription. Instead, he called his brother's drugstore and told him to have the medicine ready for me, that I'd be over to get it in a few minutes.

I was quite surprised that I wasn't given a written prescription and allowed to have it filled at my own pharmacy. I also was angry because this doctor's brother charges much higher prices than the pharmacist I usually trade with.

One of my friends asked this doctor for a written prescription. He got mad at her and refused to give her one.

Abby, shouldn't people be given their own choice of pharmacies? MRS. O.J.

DEAR MRS. O.J.: Yes. The doctor is clearly operating outside the bounds of ethical medicine. Change doctors. And be sure to tell him why you're leaving.

Popularity Increases

NEW YORK (AP) — Steam baths are moving out of the health clubs and into the bathrooms of thousands of homes, manufacturers report. A steambath can be installed in a private home for about $1,000, say the manufacturers, who believe that in the next five years, health conscious Americans will buy 500,000 units.

Possible Snag in Hydro Line Plan

B.C. Hydro's plans to build a transmission line to carry power from the mainland to Vancouver Island may have hit a surprising roadblock.

Howard White, secretary of the Pender Harbor and District Ratepayers Association, said the unexpected development came at a weekend meeting when a spokesman for the provincial government's Environment and Land-Use Committee (ELUC) announced it has commissioned an independent economic evaluation of the massive power line project.

"This is quite an astonishing development, considering that Hydro was expecting to start clearing the right-of-way this summer," White said.

"Perhaps the ELUC is going to call for a bit of a moratorium and check up on Hydro's figures to see whether Hydro has been selling everyone a bill of goods."

Hydro's proposal to build the twin 500,000-volt island-hopping line from Cheekeye substation, near Squamish, to Dunsmuir substation near Qualicum Beach on Vancouver Island would have to be approved by the ELUC.

From Dunsmuir, the line would run down Vancouver Island to a substation in the Highlands area.

But Saturday's meeting, sponsored jointly by the Sunshine Coast Regional District and the Pender Harbor ratepayers' group, urged the provincial agency to hold a public hearing on the line, which is strongly opposed by citizens' groups and environmentalists.

White said a hearing would allow independent experts such as University of B.C. economists John Helliwell and Alan Cox to argue their case that there are less expensive ways of meeting Vancouver Island's power requirements.

The two economists claim it makes more sense to encourage pulp mills — which consume 40 per cent of the Island's power — to generate their own power using wood waste.

White said Pender resident Bruce Woodsworth caused a minor sensation at the meeting when he disclosed that an internal study conducted by Hydro indicates a natural-gas pipeline serving Vancouver Island would involve less than one-quarter the cost of the proposed electricty line, yet provide more than double the power.

White said Woodsworth, a retired engineer and geologist, stumbled across the information in mysterious circumstances: "Just before the meeting a high-ranking Hydro official apparently slipped him the information at the back door."

Woodsworth could not be reached for comment today.

Cowichan Budget Cut

DUNCAN — The 1979 budget for the Cowichan Valley Regional District has been reduced by 12.9 per cent in three main areas — general government, building inspection and planning.

The decrease was from $537,746 to $468,359. The tax levy for garbage collection and disposal dropped 17.3 per cent from $197,239 to $147,912.

Gunfire Sinks Bow Of Tanker

HALIFAX (CP) — Gunfire from the destroyer Margaree's three-inch cannon sent the bow section of the tanker Kurdistan to the bottom of the Atlantic about 200 nautical miles southeast of here Sunday, carrying with it an estimated 7,000 tons of bunker C oil.

Coast guard officials said the Margaree shot two neat holes below the water line when the bow did not sink quickly enough after divers from the Margaree opened its sea cocks.

There were no reports of pollution from the bow after it sank in the 2,500 fathoms — about 5,000 metres — of water at 12:30 p.m. Closest land is Sable Island, 100 miles away.

Federal Environment Minister Len Marchand told a news conference Saturday that his department rejected a proposal by the salvors — Eastern Canada Towing Ltd. and McAllister Towing of Montreal — to salvage the bow section.

He said he decided against an option to bring the bow into Port Hawkesbury, N.S., or Halifax.

"After the professionals had a look at it, my own fears as an amateur were confirmed."

The oil remained sealed inside the hulk as it sank. The opening of the sea cocks and the cannonfire affected only the ballast tanks, not the oil tanks.

$176,700 Upgrade Urged for Arena

Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe has proposed renovations to the Memorial Arena, continued improvements to the Crystal Pool and a greater commitment to community programs in a recreation report to city council.

In the report, Blencoe recommends that about $167,000 be spent on the arena, which he says is in bad need of an upgrading.

He says since the building opened in 1948, some 19 million people have attended events there, generating $750,000 in net profits for the city.

"In the last few years, however, the building has taken on the appearance of neglect in a number of areas. Moreover, attendance and revenues have begun to decline. If the arena is to continue to be an economically sound multipurpose facility, some upgrading is essential."

Blencoe said the building needs work in the area of customer comfort and has proposed improvements to seating, washroom and changing areas as well as to the lobby.

Turning to the Crystal Pool, Blencoe said that substantial renovations completed last year have led to a dramatic increase in public attendance and income.

He recommends the expenditure of about $47,000 for the addition of a solarium, a conference room and other improvements.

Blencoe said his department's main thrust in 1979 will be to improve community programs.

Sidney Court Opens Sept. 1

A provincial court serving the entire Saanich Peninsula will be reopened in Sidney Sept. 1, after a closure lasting nearly five years.

The weekend announcement by Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis has been welcomed by municipal leaders on the peninsula.

Sidney Mayor Dick Leigh said it was "wonderful news — the best news I've had yet."

The Sidney court was ordered closed in early 1975 by the former NDP government.

Curtis said the attorney-general's department would be responsible for staffing arrangements and he believed the government would bear the bulk of the costs involved.

CITY WATCHDOG RICHARDS Report 102. Many thanks to the supposedly Esquimalt Federal public servant who sent me a note in the mail to City Hall, but Your City's Watchdog has never accepted any funds before, during or after an effort to get elected to a public office. Furthermore not from any union as the writer stated. Your City's Watchdog wishes to encourage taxpaying homeowners to attend School Board meetings to see how and where their school tax dollars are being spent. Alderman Bill McElroy who is the chairman of the Traffic Committee, in a sense is responsible for the tow-away vultures who towed away cars on the east side of Government Street the day the Legislature opened. Your City's Watchdog pointed out that there is no longer the need for this tow-away zone at the last council meeting because of the staggered traffic conditions in this Parliament Buildings area now. Your City's Watchdog while visiting Nanaimo on the 91st Anniversary Railway trip, visited Nanaimo's City Hall to study their financial report and enquire about their zone representation on their City Council. It is a pleasure to purchase papers from the very polite paper boy Tim Walker that sells Times papers in front of the downtown Post Office. Please continue phoning 383-6259 or write to PO Box 154, Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, regarding city matters. Seen in Passing: A city fireman on duty throwing paper litter on the city's sidewalk. Postscript: The City's slogan on litter bins is Please Keep Victoria Neat and Tidy. Let's hope city employees while on duty can live up to the city's slogan.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

309 IN MEMORIAM

MONTAGUE — To the memory of our dear Father — Christopher N. — who passed away April 1, 1971, and our beloved Mother — Elizabeth B. — who followed just a year later, April 6, 1972.

You're not forgot dear parents,
Nor ever will you be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee
The loneliness without you,
The ache deep in our hearts,
We've nothing left but memories,
With these we'll never part.
We've needed you so often,
Yet no one has seen us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed,
While others are asleep.
God bless and keep them always.

—So sadly missed by your daughters, Elleen and Audrey; and their families.

Patterson-Brent. In Loving memory of our beloved son and brother who left us so suddenly April 1, 1977.

Your happy soul still surrounds us,

— Fondly remembered and missed so much by Mom, Dad, Mark, Tracy, Julie and Lisa.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

HOW TO WRITE
A GOOD
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite, information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Cactus in Bloom Fascinating

GARDENING
hilda beastall

A cactus plant in bloom arouses more interest than an African Violet or an orchid. This wild statement will be vouched for by any grower who has all three types of plants. Visitors can be lukewarm to "violets", mildly thrilled by an orchid if they have never before seen one growing, but a cactus flower — well, most people believe cacti do not flower in our northern latitude.

The plants are fascinating in form and color even without flowers. Patterns of spines are of the least of the fascination. One genus will provide enough species and varieties for a huge collection, varied enough to keep the indoor gardener interested for years.

An advantage in collecting plants of this type is that since they must be housed mainly indoors here on the coast, fluctuations of our weather are not a hazard.

Even though you are absent for a matter of three or four weeks little harm will come to the cacti. The only disaster possible would be a devoted friend taking pity on the poor dry things and dousing them with water.

Strong daylight and sunshine for eight hours or so on summer days are requirements; while in winter, overhead light for about six hours would be beneficial in absence of sunshine every day.

To induce cacti to reach the flowering stage, a hot summer followed by cooler winter temperatures (in the house) are ideal. Frequently, plants show signs of flower buds in early spring after a previous hot summer.

Watering, and not watering, also play a dramatic part in flower production with cactus plants. Cacti have the ability to store juices in their tissues instead of constantly transpiring moisture into the dry air of desert or the heated home. Thus they are constituted to go through winter with one or two waterings.

Care must be taken to provide a lower temperature during the winter indoors than the cacti experienced during the summer.

These suggestions apply only to desert cacti not to the jungle types such as epiphyllums and similar genera which give us the Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter cactus flowers. Growing in crotches of jungle trees, they thrive in filtered sunlight and considerable humidity, needing the same conditions reproduced in our homes to induce flowering.

Cacti of the open desert are often chunky and solid, or tall and solid. The larger they grow in nature, the more years old they usually are before they commence flowering in captivity.

One genus of cactus, the tiny half-inch diameter Rebutia, produces exquisite flowers as large as the plant when only in its second year from seed; a genus with hundreds of species and varieties, the Mammillarias, will delight the collector with a wide range of colors. Another easily flowered genus is Echinopsis.

Grafted cacti are a specialized form of cactus collecting; strange specimens can be seen in private collections.

Any one of these genera is worthy of a collector's enthusiasm, for one soon learns that an unspecialized collection needs the accommodation of a botanic garden greenhouse.

Medicare in Peril, Warns T.C. Douglas

DOUGLAS
... raps chiselling

The man who introduced Canada's first medicare plan warned Saturday prepaid health care across the nation is in mortal danger because some provinces are allowing large numbers of doctors to opt out of the program.

Tommy Douglas, the one-time premier of Saskatchewan who introduced medicare, told an Esquimalt banquet marking the end of his 25-year political career that the main function of the NDP in the current federal election should be to fight to preserve medicare.

"Medicare is in danger today as it never was before," said Douglas, noting that in Ontario about one in five doctors have opted out of the provincially-run Ontario Health Insurance Plan.

"It is essential that all Canadians know that something they deeply treasure is in mortal danger of being lost," Douglas told the meeting, sponsored by the Esquimalt-Port Renfrew and Victoria provincial NDP ridings.

Douglas said many disparities had emerged in the medicare plan since he, as premier of Saskatchewan, introduced the first Canadian plan in 1964.

The chiselling away at the program was begun by the federal Liberal government in 1975 when Ottawa began changing the basis of its contributions to the plan, he said.

The provinces followed suit, he added.

Douglas, who had been MP for the Vancouver Island riding of Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands since 1969, said voters should back candidates who call upon the federal government to restore its medical care cost share to 50 per cent and who want the provinces to abide by the principle of universal coverage.

'Lost' Plane Safe

A single-engine Cessna 185 reported missing Sunday on a flight to Whitehorse from Prince George was located today.

A search and rescue spokesman said pilot Dean Carrell of Anchorage, Alaska, put down for the night at a small airstrip at Terminus Mountain, 400 kilometres northwest of Prince George, because of bad weather.

The spokesman said the pilot resumed his flight early this morning and reported his position while flying over Watson Lake.

An air search had been launched for the plane after it was last seen about 1 p.m. Sunday when it was refuelled at Prince George.

Civic Workers Accept Terms

TRAIL (CP) — Outside civic workers here have voted overwhelmingly to accept a new two-year contract providing a total wage increase of nine per cent each year. Base rate when the contract expires in February, 1981, for the 55 workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, will be $8.09 an hour.

U.S. Embassy In Beirut Raided

BEIRUT (UPI) — Unidentified terrorists today attacked the U.S. Embassy in Beirut with rocket-propelled grenades as Arab opposition to the U.S.-sponsored Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty intensified.

The embassy building was damaged and the top of the flagpole blown off, sending the U.S. flag tumbling to the ground, but there were no casualties, embassy officials said.

They said they did not know who was responsible.

"We have some shrapnel and it appears we were hit by rocket-propelled grenades," the spokesman said. The attack occurred at about 5:45 a.m. PST and the rocket launchers apparently were fired from an area just east of the embassy in the Ain Meisseh neighborhood of predominantly Moslem West Beirut.

A Palestine Liberation Front official said in a weekend interview that U.S. targets would be attacked and that U.S. interests in all parts of the world faced days of "hellfire and brimstone."

The action coincided with mounting Arab action against U.S.-sponsored Middle East peace moves.

Virtually every state in the Arab world, with the exceptions of Oman and Sudan, moved to isolate Egypt as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin visited Cairo.

Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Jordan, the United Arab Emirates and Tunisia led an exodus of Arab ambassadors from Cairo Sunday, in accordance with a vote by a conference of Arab foreign and economy ministers in Baghdad last Saturday. Other Arab ambassadors were expected to follow soon in protest against the March 26 signing of a peace treaty with Israel.

The Baghdad conference also calls for a cutoff of Arab aid to Egypt, the transfer of Arab League headquarters from Cairo to Tunis, and freezing Egypt's membership in the League.

Botha Cabinet Cleared

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — A judge's inquiry today cleared members of the South African cabinet of involvement in the "slush funds" scandal now rocking the government.

Prime Minister Pieter Botha had pledged to resign and call a new election if the finding had gone the other way.

The three-man judicial inquiry, headed by Judge Rudolf Erasmus, specifically exonerated Prime Minister Botha, who is also defence minister, Finance Minister Owen Horwood, and Minister for Plural (Black) Relations Piet Koornhof.

It was the second interim report from the Erasmus commission.

The commission's first report last December exposed massive irregularities in the now defunct information department involving misuse of millions of dollars earmarked for South Africa's propaganda war.

Botha asked the commission recently to make a special, urgent report on allegations that members of his cabinet had prior knowledge of the scandal, especially the secret funding of the pro-government newspaper, The Citizen.

A Low-Key Welcome In Cairo For Begin

CAIRO (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin arrived to a low-key welcome in Cairo today as Arab foes of his peace treaty with President Anwar Sadat began punishing Egypt.

The Egyptian government greeted the first Israeli prime minister to visit their capital with strict protocol and little warmth.

Begin said he was visiting Cairo "to open my heart to every man, woman and child in Egypt" and to convince them the Jewish state wants lasting peace after four wars with the Arabs.

U.S. President Jimmy Carter is believed to have urged the trip as a means of arousing support for the peace treaty, and Sadat's aides say he felt obliged to invite the Israeli leader in return for the warm welcome the Israelis gave him.

Begin during his 30-hour visit had hoped to ride through Cairo between rows of Israeli flags, to be cheered by crowds and to address the Egyptian parliament. But there was no official effort to bring out crowds and Israeli flags flew only at the airport and at the palace where he was to stay. He will neither address parliament nor hold a joint news conference with Sadat and there are no plans for live television coverage.

Meanwhile, Arab ambassadors began leaving Cairo in response to the agreement by 18 Arab states in Baghdad Saturday to cut all diplomatic and economic ties with Egypt because Sadat signed the peace treaty.

The Egyptian foreign ministry said the Baghdad meeting of the Arab League, which Egypt did not attend, was illegal and its decision to punish Egypt was a "complete breach" of the league charter's prohibition against interference in the internal affairs of a member.

Guerrillas Surrender In Iran

TEHRAN (UPI) — Turkoman gunmen besieging parts of the northeastern Iranian city of Gonbad-e Qaboos today surrendered to the army, Tehran Radio announced.

Representatives of the Turkoman tribesmen, battling government forces for eight days in the town near the Soviet border, signed a four-point peace agreement with central authorities after the army threatened a counter-offensive and moved reinforcements into the area.

Tehran Radio said the Turkomans agreed to withdraw from positions in the city, 296 miles from Tehran, free their hostages, and hand over control to the army.

The agreement did not mention any political settlement, indicating the government had maintained its hard-line stand against regional revolts. Tehran radio said the agreement was reached after a ceasefire, the fourth since fighting began in Gonbad-e Qaboos eight days ago.

$4,300 Grabbed In Parking Lot

City police today are looking for a suspect who snatched a bank deposit bag containing $4,300 Sunday night.

A police spokesman said Vlasta Liscar had just closed Johnny's Coffee Shop, 893 Fort, and was walking to a parking lot at the rear of the building at 8:14 p.m. when a man jumped out from the shadows, grabbed the bag and ran off.

Postal Unrest Feared In Wake of Award

OTTAWA (CP) — The binding contract settlement imposed on 23,000 inside postal workers "is even worse than the union expected," Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said today.

"The mediator-arbitrator has, with one stroke, taken away many of the major protections we have achieved over the last 12 years, protections in such areas as shop stewards' rights and responsibilities, surveillance and severance pay," Parrot said.

Postal workers are forbidden by law to strike during a federal election campaign.

Parrot said he "cannot take responsibility" for the postal workers' reaction to the report.

"What will be the reaction of our members? It is too early to say," Parrot said.

"The mood of the membership will probably be a sad one. No doubt the first reaction will be to walk out — that will be on the minds of everyone."

Union leaders were not instructing a walkout.

Parrot said he hopes the postal workers will get together "and prepare for the next fight."

The binding settlement, effective to the end of 1979, did not deal with problems arising from technological change or the organization of work — two key clauses of the dispute in the first place, Parrot said.

He was speaking at a news conference an hour before going to court to face criminal charges of defying Parliament's back-to-work order to inside postal workers last October.

Four other national executives of the union are also in court today.

"I don't want to say too much about it right now," said Parrot as he prepared to enter the court. But he said the union will not be destroyed if leaders are put in jail.

Facing charges with Parrot are union officers Leroy Hiltz, David Jones, Sid Baxter and Andre Beauchamp.

They were charged after most of the union's mail sorters and postal clerks remained off the job despite Parliament's Oct. 19 back-to-work order. They had started a legal national strike Oct. 16.

Parrot and the other union officers face a maximum penalty of two years in prison if they are convicted on the criminal charge of defying an act of Parliament.

Four other regional directors are facing the same charge in Vancouver, Halifax, Montreal and Toronto.

Details of the mediation-arbitration report by Lucien Tremblay, former chief justice of the Quebec Court of Appeal, are expected later today.

The union will work to recover its losses in the next round of bargaining.

Basically there were no changes in the old contract provisions on technological change and the use of casual employees. But the union felt the old contract provisions were inadequate and was pushing for improvements.

The post office must consult the union in advance of the implementation of new technological changes and it must offer overtime work to regular employees before hiring casual workers.

The union complains that the post office regularly violated those provisions in the past and it was asking for the right to veto any proposed technological changes that would adversely affect members. The union also had asked for an end to the use of casual, non-union employees in the post office.

Parrot said the wage settlement awarded by Tremblay is lower than the post

Voters Can't Decide

TORONTO (UPC) — The first week of the federal election campaign has left Canadian voters more undecided on who will receive their vote than at any time in the past year, according to a poll conducted his weekend by the CTV network.

A poll of 1,000 voters shows 40 per cent of the electorate undecided with the Liberals just nipping the conservatives 26 to 24 per cent and the NDP slipping slightly to eight per cent.

If these ratios hold the Liberals would garner about 42 per cent of the vote on May 22 to 40 per cent for the Conservatives and 14 per cent for the New Democratic party, the poll shows.

Inflation was seen as the most important issue by 31 per cent of the electorate, while unemployment was rated the highest by 18 per cent.

Suprisingly, Liberal attempts to convince voters that national unity is the major issue has made litle impression on Canadians.

U.S. Trucks Off the Road

WASHINGTON (WP) — In response to selective strikes by the Teamsters, the U.S. trucking industry locked out the union Sunday — effectively halting much of the country's freight traffic.

The action followed failure of union and industry bargainers to agree on a new three-year contract by their Saturday-midnight deadline.

There was no immediate word on whether the Carter administration would seek a back-to-work order under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The shutdown is an outgrowth of administration pressure to keep wage and benefit increases for the 300,000 trucking members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters within anti-inflation guidelines.

In announcing the "defensive shutdown," Trucking Management Inc., bargaining agent for more than 500 companies, said it had "no alternative but to instruct its member associations and authorizing carriers to shut down their operations."

Meet The Stars

Veteran actress Geraldine Page has won just about every award except an Oscar and she has a strong chance for her first one on April 9 for her performance in Interiors.

Born in 1924, she was prominent on the Broadway stage in the 1940s and began working in movies in 1953. Just one year later she had an Academy Award nomination, but no Oscar, for her role in Hondo.

In 1978 she gave a strong performance in Interiors, a moody Woody Allen film that drew mixed reviews despite its five Oscar nominations.

It was not nominated as best film.

The Times and VI90 are sponsoring a Visit the Stars contest, offering readers a chance on a trip for two to Hollywood for those who correctly predict the Oscar winners for best actor, best actress and best movie.

There are also five major runner-up prizes.

Full rules and the official entry form is in an advertisement today on page 16.

Britain Closed!

LONDON (Reuter) — A one-day strike by 500,000 British civil servants today caused chaos at airports, closed courts and museums, and crippled government offices and computers.

Employees at Buckingham Palace, as well the prime minister's residence at 10 Downing Street, the Royal Mint, and even the Tower of London, were called out to join the 24-hour stoppage to protest the government's offer of a nine-per-cent wage increase.

More than 300 flights were cancelled when assistant flight controllers stopped work.

Government offices in Whitehall ground almost to a halt, with only a handful of staffers manning the home office and the ministries of health, transport and environment. "It's just like a public holiday," said a diplomatic service official.

Airlines Seek 7% Fare Hike

GENEVA (UPI) — The world's airlines agreed today to ask their governments to approve an average 7 per cent increase in fares and cargo rates to compensate for soaring jet fuel prices.

Airline representatives, meeting for the past six days, reached consensus that the increases should come into force in mid-May. Negotiations continued, however, to permit certain exceptions depending on the routes being flown.

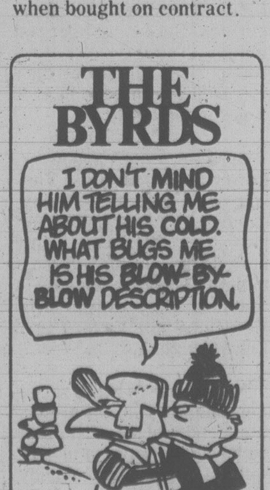
Conference officials said, for instance, that African countries would be unable to tolerate any large increase in fares and cargo rates because those prices already are high on African routes.

The airlines still are divided as well on whether increases should affect all travel categories. They hope to conclude their negotiations by Tuesday.

When the conference began last Wednesday it was thought that increases, sparked by OPEC's new oil rates, should be applied to all travel, whether first class or the cheap advance booking APEX rates.

The APEX fares now may not be affected, officials said.

Jet fuel cost the airlines an average of 44 U.S. cents per gallon in 1978. Prices are now up to 55 cents per gallon when bought on contract.



THE BYRDS
I DON'T MIND HIM TELLING ME ABOUT HIS COLD. WHAT BUGS ME IS HIS BLOW-BY-BLOW DESCRIPTION.

Bubble Shrinks, Reactor Cooling

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The crippled Three Mile Island nuclear reactor is steadily cooling down and the dangerous hydrogen bubble that blocked final shutdown efforts appears to have shrunk dramatically, a top nuclear Regulatory Commission official reported today.

"I think it is certainly safer than yesterday," said Harold Denton, NRC operations chief at the site, referring to the bubble which not only blocked final shutdown operations but also posed the risk of an internal reactor explosion.

Thousands of area residents, however, remained poised to evacuate if necessary. All they needed was word from Gov. Dick Thornburgh.

The evacuation plan that civil defence authorities of six counties surrounding the plant are ready to put into effect could eventually clear 636,000 people out of an area within 20 miles of the plant.

Denton said he still wanted to doublecheck mathematical equations used to guess at the size of the bubble before saying with certainty the bubble had dramatically decreased in size. He said the calculation had been satisfactory while the bubble size was steady, but may be flawed now because it leaves out other vital considerations.

"It is going down (in size)," Denton said. "We just don't know how much."

He also reported that general radiation levels outside the plant were declining although radiation inside the concrete containment building surrounding the reactor were at lethal levels.

Denton also announced at a news conference at the nearby Middletown town hall that the NRC has advised the operators of seven other reactors using the same Babcock and Wilcox cooling system to take steps to assure their plants could overcome the type of pump failure that triggered the Three Mile Island crisis Wednesday. He said some of those reactors reportedly had been shut down.

He also said federal inspectors were being sent to each of those power plants.

The improved outlook followed a visit at the plant Sunday by President Carter — himself a trained nuclear engineer — and Gov. Thornburgh. They donned bright yellow protective boots, personally inspected the plant on the Susquehanna River island and reported the situation "stable."

Denton said only two uranium fuel elements in the reactor at midday were over 400 degrees (F). At the same time Sunday, readings over 500 degrees were reported.

"The plant is still being cooled," he said. "Fuel temperatures are still dropping."

He said the temperature in the containment dome was 90 degrees and the pressure was one pound per square

A brisk inspection of Royal Roads College cadet guard

A smile with Premier Bill Bennett

Victoria Charmed by Bonnie Prince Charlie

By AB KENT
Times Staff

The man who will be king flew into Victoria Sunday and set hearts a-flutter.

The Prince of Wales, it turns out, is not called Bonnie Prince Charlie for nothing.

The Charles charm was evident when a crowd of 500 gathered to hear a booming royal salute and watch cadet guards in red tunics, Lieut.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving, Premier Bill Bennett and other dignitaries and elected representatives line up along the tarmac at Patricia Bay airport to welcome the 30-year-old heir to the throne on his first visit to Victoria.

Girls and grandmothers were out in force and and one young woman kissed Charles in what later turned out to be a set-up so a British photographer could grab a pictuyre.

The prince looked slightly astonished when the woman, wearing a navy duffle coat, leaned over and lightly kissed his cheek.

"Good God," Charles said, coloring beneath his South Seas tan, but he smiled and kept moving.

"Was that planned?" reporters later asked Kate Brooke, 22, who said she had come from Vancouver for the weekend to see the prince.

"Well, I suppose," she said.

"I thought nobody else would. I really wanted to do it, so I did."

Later she admitted her friend Mike Lloyd, of the London Daily Express, asked her to do it so he could take a picture for his paper.

"I just had to do it. I was determined to do it and it was such a good feeling. He gave a lovely smile.

"I tried to kiss him on the lips but I couldn't get there, so I pulled him very hard by the arm and kissed him on the right cheek."

Prince Charles, returning from a month in Australia, Singapore and Hong Kong, was a hit from the moment he strode down the ramp from his Royal Air Force VC 10 jetliner, right on schedule from Honolulu.

"Good morning, your highness," said federal representative Sen. Ray Perrault and the introductions that followed were smooth and quick.

Charles had a smile for everyone, and warm words for many as he paused to shake hands or chat with a dozen-strong official welcoming party en route to the limousine that took him to Government House.

Amateur cameramen, vastly outnumbering the dozen or so professionals, snapped away at point-blank range in the bright spring sunshine.

The prince was brisk in his inspection of the cadet guard and band from Royal Roads Military College and did not linger over the introductions to the dignitaries grouped in front of the hangar.

These included Perrault, government leader in the Senate, the lieutenant-governor, Premier Bennett, Pierre Forget, federal co-ordinator of the royal visit and Canadian equerry Capt. Bruce Griffin.

After inspecting the guard with its commander Officer Cadet A.J. Stephenson, the prince was introduced to North Saanich Mayor G.R. Greenwood, Victoria Mayor Mike Young and Rear-Admiral M.A. Martin.

Small bursts of applause carried forward on the breeze with the last of a 21-gun salute fired by No. 5 (B.C.) Field Battery.

The Canadian ensign, the provincial flag and the Royal Standard billowed and here and there the red, white and blue flash of a small Union Jack could be seen in the crowd.

Charles made his way along the rows of spectators lined behind a rope barrier.

"Did you come out from Victoria?" he asked a group of young people.

"Would you be doing something else on Sundays?"

Noting the cameras several spectators were trying to focus on him, Charles quipped: "Wherever I go nowadays people say, 'You're too close'."

A few feet further on, Helen Robson thrust a ceramic vase into his hand as he was about to pass.

She said it had been made especially for the prince by Ingrid Busch.

"Would you thank her for me?" Charles asked.

"I said I would," Helen told newsmen later, adding she asked Charles to "say hello to your family because I think they're beautiful."

Today the prince was at Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific, the third of three international schools in which his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, took a founding interest.

He had private discussions with the students and faculty, attended a student concert and was to spend the night as their guest.

Sunday night Charles received a number of guests at Government House, among them former governor-general Roland Michener, Pearson College chairman John Nichol, college director Jack Matthews, representatives of the government of B.C., the Royal Commonwealth Society, the English Speaking Union and the Monarchist League.

A government house dinner for the prince and his party followed.

The prince leaves Pearson College Tuesday at 8:20 a.m. for takeoff in the RAF jet at 9:20 and a trip to Yellowknife for the second leg of his official visit which concludes in Ontario.

Search Called Off

A search has been called off for a 36-year-old Esquimalt man who fell overboard from a sailboat Saturday in Georgia Strait.

David Heffler of 453 Head is missing and presumed drowned.

Heffler was with two other persons aboard the 28-foot sailboat Maraiche when it ran aground about two kilometres offshore from Steveston at the mouth of the Fraser River.

The mishap occurred at about 10 a.m.

Rescue officials carried out a search Saturday and Sunday without result.

A rescue spokesman said the matter has now been referred to Richmond RCMP.

Fire Blamed On Smoking

An elderly woman was hospitalized early Sunday after fire broke out in her apartment at the White House Apartments, 1178 Beach Drive.

Mrs. Mary Heybroek was treated for smoke inhalation and released later in the day.

Oak Bay fire officials blame the fire on careless smoking.

A spokesman said the fire started in a loveseat in suite 104 occupied by Heybroek and had likely smoldered for several hours before the woman smelled smoke and turned in the alarm at 1:06 a.m.

He said Mrs. Heybroek smashed a window to get out of the ground-floor suite and injured her foot and hand in the process.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. The battle of Lundy's lane was fought between the British and Americans in the war of 1812-14. I understand the latter withdrew and lost the battle. Can you tell the casualties on both sides? W.H.J.

A. The British had 878 casualties with 84 killed. The American loss was 853 with 171 killed.

City Man's Son Killed

The son of Victoria assistant schools superintendent Bernie Chandler was one of six persons killed in a multi-vehicle pileup near Edson, Alta. over the weekend.

Dean Lyon Chandler, 21, was a passenger in a car that collided with four other vehicles and a tanker truck carrying 2,000 gallons of diesel fuel.

Harold Gumz, 21, of Edmonton, in the same car as Chandler,was also killed as were Michael Szabhou, 38, Thornhild, Alta., driver of a car carrier; Russell Graham, 34, and his children Lisa Meredith, 12, and Barry Russell, 18, all of Prince George, who were riding in a station wagon.

Three Traffic Mishaps Send Eight to Hospital

Eight persons landed in hospital following three separate traffic mishaps in Greater Victoria Sunday.

Thomas Seward, 71, and his wife Kathleen, 65, of 1929 Sooke Road were in fair to good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital today recovering from multiple injuries they received in a two-car collision at Sayward and Pat Bay Highway at 4:09 p.m.

The driver of the other car, Robert Hamilton, 23, of 309-1535 Jubilee suffered minor head cuts and was treated and released from Victoria General Hospital.

But two passengers in his car, his mother, Verna Joan Hamilton, 42, of 7621 Wallace Drive, and sister Darlene Hamilton, 19, were admitted with head injuries and were reported in satisfactory condition this morning.

A two-car collision at Cloverdale and Blanshard at 4:43 p.m. sent a 65-year-old Sidney woman to hospital with severe leg injuries.

Lillian Kelly was listed in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mrs. Kelly was a passenger in a car driven by Alexander Ronald Bell, 29, of Port Alberni. Neither Bell nor another passenger, Kenneth Kelly, 33, also of Port Alberni, were hurt.

The driver of the other car, Glen William Wallis, 25, of 313-909 Pembroke, also escaped injury.

A 32-year-old Saanich woman is in stable condition in Victoria General Hospital after the car she was driving collided with another car on Douglas in front of Mayfair Shopping Centre at 7:37 p.m.

Norma Woods, 4036 Quadra, received severe neck injuries.

A passenger in her car, Rosemary Fuller of the same address, was treated for chest pains and later released.

City firemen had to use their Jaws of Life machine to remove Woods from the wreckage.

The driver of the other car, Clive Bond, 38, of 890 Tulip was not hurt.

Police said Bond was driving south on Douglas when his car went out of control, hit a traffic island, spun around and collided with Woods' car which careened into a power pole.

For Our Dinner, 'Taties and Herring

THE HERRING are gone now, and where they have removed to in their shoals and multitudes, only the wide seas can answer. But while they were with us, they were a strong presence — a reminder of the incredible richness of ocean.

We first became aware that the herring were running in these waters when we stepped outdoors to smell a fishiness in the morning air.

It was a prevailing odor. It went with us all the way up the line to Campbell River.

That was the morning, too, when we counted 21 eagles. White-headed adults and scruffy immature birds, they perched enormous in the tops of roadside evergreens, or on rocks that jutted from the tide flats.

Offshore, the gulls were also busy, wheeling and diving with discordant fussings. The herring were in. Not a huge school, or even a very big one, and nothing to compare with the live-and-silver concentrations of fish from which herring boats were loading themselves almost to foundering-point elsewhere.

But enough to bring liveliness and a sense of anticipation to these narrow waters. For when the herring move in on their spawning run, there are no ifs, ands or buts about the weather picture. The springtime has arrived triumphant.

Later that day, an Islander of our acquaintance gave us a gift of some herring.

No, he told us, they hadn't come off any boat. He had caught them himself with a dip-net, and could guarantee their freshness.

He and his wife, we learned, had been walking a beach when they spotted a thick stream of herring pouring into one of the low-tide pools. They were coming in to leave their spawn on the seaweed.

"We watched them roaring into the pool for a while," he said, "then we went up to the house and got a landing net. All we had to do was stand there and dip it, and in no time we had all the herring we could use."

This friend also produced a scrap of seaweed which he spread carefully on a table. The crinkly sea-lettuce twinkled with a frosty lacing. This was herring spawn, clustered thickly on the weed to guarantee that new herring would return in their myriads in due time.

The absolute lavishness of the herring runs tempts fishermen, and governments, to excess. With fantastic prices paid by Japan for herring roe, the inroads into the schools have been heavy.

Too heavy? That remains to be seen. I'm uneasy about the herring future, remembering the over-fishing of past years which reduced the schools to such an extent that for an anxious time it was touch-and-go as to whether the fishery would ever recover.

Perhaps this time, the federal authority has acted with wisdom, keeping the inherently-wasteful catch of roe herring within bounds. But I find myself wishing that we had our own provincial fisheries department (or at least a department which consisted of more than a couple of men concerned with shellfish) to guard a provincial resource.

Meanwhile, we were glad to accept those little silvery fish, which I contemplated freezing and laying away for salmon bait. Then Win suggested that a traditional herring-and-'tatie supper would be nice, and we changed our plans.

I gutted and scaled our herring. Win rolled them in flour, then gave them a quick frying.

They came to our table with boiled potatoes. That was it. No other vegetables, no sauce or garnish. Just potatoes and herring, for a memorable feast.

We ate the scraps of roe too, but found it piddling stuff, gone in a snap and a swallow. I can't understand why the Japanese bother.

Heroin Treatment Plan Now in Second Stage

B.C.'s controversial heroin treatment plan, launched in January, has shifted into second gear with the start-up of the voluntary entry phase.

Bert Hoskins, director of the Alcohol and Drug Commission, said area co-ordination centres around the province are now beginning to accept voluntary applications from persons with drug dependancy problems.

He said a total of 56 persons — six from the Victoria area — have already indicated they want treatment. They include 11 persons with dependancies on drugs other than heroin. One of them is an old age pensioner who wants help withdrawing from the effects of a perscription drug, Hoskins said.

He said it will likely take a couple of weeks before any of the voluntary entries are referred to the treatment centre at Brannen Lake.

The reason for the delay, he said, is area assessment panels have not yet been appointed by the provincial cabinet. The panels must review each application before entry is made.

Hoskins said some of the estimated 200 persons who were receiving treatment under the old narcotics addiction program and accordingly transferred to the new one in January, will start arriving in Brannen Lake this week.

He said many of the cases will likely be dealt with by the area co-ordination centres on an out-patient basis. The centre in Victoria is located in the 2600-block Douglas. As of Friday the centre had an active caseload of 11, all on the methadone program

The most controversial part of the treatment plan — the compulsory aspect — is still in limbo pending a court case testing its constitutionality.

The question is whether the plan falls under criminal or health laws. Under the British North America Act the federal government has jurisidiction over criminal matters while the province has jurisdiction over health.

When Health Minister Bob McClelland announced the program last year he said all persons dependant on heroin will have to take treatment whether they want to or not. The plan allows police to arrest addicts and force them into treatment. Hoskins said the police entry phase is scheduled to begin in late July, depending on the outcome of the court case.

British Columbia's Social Credit government almost emptied the provincial treasury today in a budget filled with a sweeping series of vote-catching handouts.

Topping the list of the goodies is a reduction in the sales tax to four per cent except for liquor effective at midnight tonight.

It is the second cut in as many years and brings the sales tax to its lowest level in B.C. in 25 years.

The tax on liquor remains at the two-year-old level of seven per cent.

B.C. now has the second lowest sales tax rate in Canada after Alberta which has no sales tax at all.

The government also announced a $100 jump in the homeowner grant bringing the annual total tax relief for property owners up to $380.

For senior citizens, this year's raise boosts the grant to an annual total of $580.

The budget — the fourth under Premier Bill Bennett — appears almost certain to take the province into an early election.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe in presenting the 60-page budget document to the house this afternoon called it "One of the most important in the history of the province."

Asked if it heralds an election Wolfe smiled and said, "It looks good enough to be one,"

But he quickly pointed out everyone said last year's was almost certainly an election budget.

The provincial government will spend $4.56 billion, an increase of more than five per cent over the last year fiscal year which ended Sunday.

Revenues are estimated to equal expenditures for a balanced budget, Wolfe said.

Health, education and welfare again eat up the lion's share of taxpayers money, with both health and education each exceeding the $1 billion mark for the second successive year.

Health costs are set at $1.2 billion or a quarter of the entire budget.

Education adds $1.1 billion and human resources another $648 million.

The spending for the three ministries totals $2.98 billion, almost equal to the NDP's entire budgetary expenditures in their last year of government four years ago.

The sales tax reduction is expected to cost the province $133 million.

But consumers are spending more than the governednt anticipated last year. For example, at the current five per cent rate, sales tax will bring into provincial coffers $50 million more than estimated in last year's budget.

Wolfe said the sales tax decrease is the equivalent of a $70 tax reduction for every B.C. family.

A number of items such as vitamins, dietary supplements, diabetic and ostomy supplies are exempted completely from sales tax effective immediately.

The increased homeowner's grant will cost the province $55 million more according to figures released by Wolfe.

In addition to using up the surpluses, the government is providing tax relief in other areas including an increase in the renter's grant to a maximum of $150 from $100.

Wolfe also announced a slight reduction in the provincial personal income tax from 46 per cent of the federal tax level to 44 per cent.

There will be a further personal income tax break next year for those with low incomes.

Postal Unrest Feared In Wake Of Pay Award

OTTAWA (CP) — The binding contract settlement imposed on 23,000 inside postal workers "is even worse than the union expected," Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said today.

"The mediator-arbitrator has, with one stroke, taken away many of the major protections we have achieved over the last 12 years, protections in such areas as shop stewards' rights and responsibilities, surveillance and severance pay," Parrot said.

Postal workers are forbidden by law to strike during a federal election campaign.

Parrot said he "cannot take responsibility" for the postal workers' reaction to the report.

"What will be the reaction of our members? It is too early to say," Parrot said.

"The mood of the membership will probably be a sad one. No doubt the first reaction will be to walk out — that will be on the minds of everyone."

Union leaders were not instructing a walkout.

Parrot said he hopes the postal workers will get together "and prepare for the next fight."

The binding settlement, effective to the end of 1979, did not deal with problems arising from technological change or the organization of work — two key clauses of the dispute in the first place, Parrot said.

He was speaking at a news conference an hour before going to court to face criminal charges of defying Parliament's back-to-work order to inside postal workers last October.

Four other national executives of the union are also in court today.

"I don't want to say too much about it right now," said Parrot as he prepared to enter the court. But he said the union will not be destroyed if leaders are put in jail.

Facing charges with Parrot are union officers Leroy Hiltz, David Jones, Sid Baxter and Andre Beauchamp.

The union will work to recover its losses in the next round of bargaining.

Basically there were no changes in the old contract provisions on technological change and the use of casual employees. But the union felt the old contract provisions were inadequate and was pushing for improvements.

The post office must consult the union in advance of the implementation of new technological changes and it must offer overtime work to regular employees before hiring casual workers.

The union complains that the post office regularly violated those provisions in the past and it was asking for the right to veto any proposed technological changes that would adversely affect members. The union also had asked for an end to the use of casual, non-union employees in the post office.

Parrot said the wage settlement awarded by Tremblay is lower than the post

$4,300 Grabbed

City police today are looking for a suspect who snatched a bank deposit bag containing $4,300 Sunday night.

A police spokesman said Vlasta Liscar had just closed Johnny's Coffee Shop, 893 Fort, and was walking to a parking lot at the rear of the building at 8:14 p.m. when a man jumped out from the shadows, grabbed the bag and ran off.

BCRIC Costs $15M

The distribution of free B.C. Resources Investment Corporation shares to every eligible British Columbian will cost $15 million, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe admitted today.

Wolfe recently said he had no idea how much the distribution of the BRIC would cost and denied Opposition suggestions that the total cost could exceed $20 million.

But in presenting the 1979-80 provincial budget to the legislature today, Wolfe revealed details of the share giveaway costs.

Banks and other financial institutions will receive $9 million for handling the applications, $3 million goes to printing and a further $3 million for data processing.

Asked about the cost at a press conference, Wolfe said the NDP and Conservatives had been projecting a cost of more than $24 million.

Hydro Needs $671M

B.C. Hydro estimates it will need another $671 million during the 1979-80 fiscal year, Finance Minister Evan-Wolfe said today.

In his budget speech he said Hydro already has $350 million towards that amount and the remainder will come from various pension plans and sinking funds.

The minister also said legislation will be introduced during the current session allowing Hydro to increase its borrowing limit to $5.65 billion from $4.9 billion.

Last year, Hydro was given more than $476 million — $425 million from provincial trusteed funds and $51.8 million from Canada Pension Plan funds.

U.S. Truckers Off the Road

WASHINGTON (WP) — In response to selective strikes by the Teamsters, the U.S. trucking industry locked out the union Sunday — effectively halting much of the country's freight traffic.

The action followed failure of union and industry bargainers to agree on a new three-year contract by their Saturday-midnight deadline.

There was no immediate word on whether the Carter administration would seek a back-to-work order.

The shutdown is an outgrowth of administration pressure to keep wage and benefit increases for the 300,000 trucking members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters within anti-inflation guidelines.

In announcing the "defensive shutdown," Trucking Management Inc., bargaining agent for more than 500 companies, said it had "no alternative but to instruct its member associations and authorizing carriers to shut down their operations."

The union's "selective" strike, which encompassed some of the nation's largest as well as economically most vulnerable freight lines, "will cause a major disruption in trucking transportation, not a limited or selective stoppage," TMI said.

Meanwhile, as a stop-gap measure, the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized its local agents to grant temporary permits to any trucker seeking to provide "needed service."

Meet The Stars

Veteran actress Geraldine Page has won just about every award except an Oscar and she has a strong chance for her first one on April 9 for her performance in Interiors.

Born in 1924, she was prominent on the Broadway stage in the 1940s and began working in movies in 1953. Just one year later she had an Academy Award nomination, but no Oscar, for her role in Hondo.

In 1978 she gave a strong performance in Interiors, a moody Woody Allen film that drew mixed reviews despite its five Oscar nominations.

It was not nominated as best film.

The Times and VI90 are sponsoring a Visit the Stars contest, offering readers a chance on a trip for two to Hollywood for those who correctly predict the Oscar winners for best actor, best actress and best movie.

There are also five major runner-up prizes.

Full rules and the official entry form is in an advertisement today on page 16.

Bubble Shrinks, Reactor Cooling

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The crippled Three Mile Island nuclear reactor is steadily cooling down and the dangerous hydrogen bubble that blocked final shutdown efforts appears to have shrunk dramatically, a top nuclear Regulatory Commission official reported today.

"I think it is certainly safer than yesterday," said Harold Denton, NRC operations chief at the site, referring to the bubble which not only blocked final shutdown operations but also posed the risk of an internal reactor explosion.

Thousands of area residents, however, remained poised to evacuate if necessary. All they needed was word from Gov. Dick Thornburgh.

The evacuation plan that civil defence authorities of six counties surrounding the plant are ready to put into effect could eventually clear 636,000 people out of an area within 20 miles of the plant.

Denton said he still wanted to doublecheck mathematical equations used to guess at the size of the bubble before saying with certainty the bubble had dramatically decreased in size. He said the calculation had been satisfactory while the bubble size was steady, but may be flawed now because it leaves out other vital considerations.

"It is going down (in size)," Denton said. "We just don't know how much."

He also reported that general radiation levels outside the plant were declining although radiation inside the concrete containment building surrounding the reactor were at lethal levels.

Denton also announced at a news conference at the nearby Middletown town hall that the NRC has advised the operators of seven other reactors using the same Babcock and Wilcox cooling system to take steps to assure their plants could overcome the type of pump failure that triggered the Three Mile Island crisis Wednesday. He said some of those reactors reportedly had been shut down.

He also said federal inspectors were being sent to each of those power plants.

The improved outlook followed a visit at the plant Sunday by President Carter — himself a trained nuclear engineer — and Gov. Thornburgh. They donned bright yellow protective boots, personally inspected the plant on the Susquehanna River island and reported the situation "stable."

Denton said only two uranium fuel elements in the reactor at midday were over 400 degrees (F). At the same time Sunday, readings over 500 degrees were reported.

"The plant is still being cooled," he said. "Fuel temperatures are still dropping."

He said the temperature in the containment dome was 90 degrees and the pressure was one pound per square

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market fell sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today.

A trading halt imposed at the opening in shares of Hudson's Bay Co. was continued pending further news. Woodbridge Co. Ltd. and Thomson Equities (International) Ltd., holding companies of Thomson family interests, said they have increased their offer for control of Hudson's Bay.

The Thomsons said they now are offering $35 a share for 60 per cent of Hudson's Bay's common shares. Their previous offer was $31 a share for 51 per cent. Hudson's Bay, which has also recieved an offer for 51 per cent of common shares at $40 a share from George Weston Ltd., closed Friday at $33¾.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said class A and B convertible common shares of Canadian International Power Co. Ltd. will be removed from the trading list at the company's request at the close on April 6. The company has created a liquidating trust to complete the liquidation of the company for tax purposes.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped into a broad decline today amid renewed energy worries.

Analysts noted some relief over the latest news from the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., where an accident occurred last week.

General Public Utilities, parent company of the utility that operates the Pennsylvania plant, asked today that the trading halt it requested for its stock on Friday be continued.

Among other issues with links to the nuclear-energy industry, J. Ray McDermott was down ¾ to $18⅜; Westinghouse lost ⅜ to $18; Kerr-McGee fell 2½ to $48½, and General Electric dropped ⅞ to $47⅛.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices continued dropping in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange, with the composite index plummetting 2.43 to 246.59. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce dropped ⅛ at $26½, Consolidated Bathurst A ⅝ at $13¾, Inco ¼ at $23, Norcen Energy Resources ⅝ at $20¾, Shell Canada ⅝ at $19⅛, TransCanada PipeLines ⅛ at $19½, and Walker-Gooderham A ½ at $45¼. FCA International advanced five cents at $3.25 on a volume of 25,500, Stelco A ⅛ at $30⅛, and Bell Canada ¼ at $65¾. Among speculative issues, Silver Stack Mines advanced 20 cents at $2.85, on a volume of 15,000 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market rose fractionally near the close of light trading today. The Financial Times index was up 0.8 to 531.6. Oils gained and golds held steady while industrials were mixed. Canadian shares eased.

VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderately-active trading today.

Interpublishing was the only industrial traded early and was unchanged at $4.60 on a turnover of 100 shares.

Cosmos Resources led resource traders and dropped .57 to .85 on a volume of 25,900 shares. Kandahar Resources gained a dime to .95 on 21,500 shares, Silver Cristal added two cents to .35 on 13,000 shares and Wharf Resources was unchanged at $1.50 on 11,900 shares.

On the curb exchange, Consolidated Cinola Mines gained .80 to $5.75 to 13,700 shares and Beach Gold Mines added two cents to .32 on 10,000 shares.

Ashcroft Resources gained .12 to .96 on 6,000 shares and Mabee Minerals Inc. lost a penny to .59 on 4,500 shares.
